FULL EXTENT OF CALAMITY IS ALMOST COMPREHENDED

Interest Centers Upon the Coroner's Inquest and Official Investigation, Which Will Begin Probably Very Soon to Determine the Cause of the Disaster.

NOW HAVE A LIST OF FIVE MISSING

By ALFRED R. GRUM,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—With the official inspection of the mine, and the admission of The Gazette's reporter and other correspondents to verify the statements of the officials, the excitement of the past few days is diminishing. Interest is turning toward the inquest which Coroner Miller will probably start in a few days.

There continue to be rumors of many dead in the mine, but there is no authoritative source for them. There may be a few men in the "Old Waterloo" or other abandoned workings, but practically all who were in that part of the mine affected have been accounted for.

There is no crowd about the time office or the train road, as on former days. Those who are there are nearly all curiosity seekers. This is good evidence that not many dear ones are now missing. All who have kept in close touch with the search are assured the full extent of the calamity is known, and there are many compliments for the open course of the company in giving out information and taking the correspondents in to see for themselves.

The mine officials have better information than anyone else concerning those who escaped, and their list of missing contains five names only. These are Frank Petrositvech, Joseph Bozia, John Bozia, George Pryblbia and Andrew Babela. These may belong to the unidentified dead that have been brought out. They may be still in the mine. Both General Manager Price and Supt. Robinson agree there may be a few in abandoned workings, but no considerable number. Decomposition of the bodies would disclose their presence by this time if any were near the corridors and headings that have been passed over by inspectors, rescuers and others.

No outside financial aid will be needed, as the men were members of the Cambria Relief association and the heirs of each will receive $1,000. In the meantime the citizens of the city are acting promptly to relieve the immediate necessities of the families of the victims. The newspapers of the town are taking subscriptions and the banks and financial institutions also receive them. From this source about $1,000 has been collected.

In all the churches of the city today the pastors made appeals to the congregations for aid and there was a generous response. The stricken city is caring for her own with a lavish generosity that really resents outside help. The Cambria Relief association funds in some cases will not be available for some time because of conflicting claims from relatives, friends or outsiders.

MANY MINERS FEAR TO RE-ENTER MINE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 13.—The disaster has frightened the miners and considerable trouble is experienced in securing men to start work in the morning. Many of them have become superstitious and refuse to enter the ill-fated Mill mine again. Most of these men have gone to Mineral Point, a few miles from here, and secured work. They say they are satisfied with the treatment of the company, but do not wish to go back again in the Klondike section. Some of the miners who have been working in this mine for 12 years have left Johnstown to work elsewhere. The great loss of life on Thursday has so horrified and frightened them that any future work in the mine is out of the question with them.

Many of them have decided to leave Johnstown altogether. It was learned yesterday from a number that they would leave for Uniontown and secure employment in the mines in that vicinity. Some of these men have been influenced by the pleadings of their wives not to enter the mine again.

An old Welsh miner told your correspondent today that as far as most miners are concerned they think they are just as safe in one mine as another; but the Polish miners are more or less prone to superstition. In spites of the fact that the mine has been pronounced safe by state inspectors, it has no influence on these workmen.

Word was spread among the workmen yesterday that work would be resumed here in the morning. Many seemed satisfied with the assurance given by the inspectors, but some 200 refused to enter the mines again. Those who leave the employ of the company will lose their standing in the Relief association, which has been the salvation of bereaved families.

MINE INSPECTORS SAY IT IS SAFE

Rolling Mill Mine Will Resume Operations This Morning Except the Fatal Klondike Section.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

JOHNSTOWN, July 13.—Deputy Mine Inspectors Josiah T. Evans of Johnstown, Joseph Williams of Altoona, C. B. Ross of Greensburg and I. G. Reby of Uniontown were in every part of Rolling Mill mine between 9:30 a. m. and 3 p. m. They found every part, except the Klondike section, perfectly safe and Chief Inspector Roderick issued a permit this evening for the operation of all save the Klondike headings tomorrow. General Manager Price will start the mine in the morning.

The inspectors had an hour conference with Chief Roderick, reporting conditions. They refused to make any statement for publication, reserving their knowledge for the coroner's inquest. Chief Roderick said: "I decline to say what my conclusions are since I have talked with the inspectors, who were in today, but I will say I consider the Rolling Mill mine well conducted."

Superintendent Robinson, late this evening, said: "I would not like to assert that there are no more bodies in the mine, but I do not think there are any. There might be a very few, who fled into abandoned workings."

YOUTHFUL HERO TAKEN TO GRAVE

Mike Sabot Who Saved Three Lives Lost His Own Trying to Rescue Another Unfortunate.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

JOHNSTOWN, July 13.—The funeral of Mike Sabot was a special incident. Mike died saving others. He was but 17 years old, but was of the stuff of which heroes are made. He worked as a trapper, and knew the mine perfectly. When the explosion occurred he was unhurt. He went at once to the rescue of men less fortunate. He dragged three into a room where there was no afterdamp, and they owe their lives to him. When his body was found his hands were clutching the clothing of the fourth man, and he was in the attitude of dragging him to safety.

The hero's coffin was draped in pink and covered with flowers. When the cortege moved from the church there was not a dry eye in the crowd of women spectators, and the men stood with bared heads in mute recognition of the heroism that led to death.

The Sincere Devotions Win the Respect of Americans There.

LARGE COLLECTIONS FOR THE SUFFERERS

By GEORGE A. CAMPSEY,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—This has been the saddest day the foreign population of Johnstown ever experienced since the memorable flood 13 years ago. Even then there were not nearly so many unburied bodies in any one day. The street scenes today when the bodies of the unfortunates were brought into the churches, where they might be blessed by the priests before being buried, were most touching. Cambria City witnessed more funerals today than ever before in her history.

The residents were astir early this morning, and many of them, for the first time in years, attended six and seven different church services. The Rev. Father John Martyan held masses at 8 and 10 o'clock this morning. Both services were largely attended. The Rev. Father B. Dembinsky held mass in St. Stephen's Catholic church at 9 o'clock. The Rev. Father F. Csuski of St. Mary's Greek Catholic church, held masses at 8 o'clock and 10 o'clock this morning, and his church was packed almost to suffocation at each service.

Won Respect of Americans.

Most of the members of the churches and regular attendants were unable to gain admittance to the houses of worship at these times, but sat on the steps and

DEATH CHAMBER FULLY EXPLORED BY GAZETTE MAN

Guided by Supt. Robinson and Armed With Safety Lamp, He Penetrates Ill-Fated Klondike Section, Where Most of the Victims Met Their Fate.

ROUTE OF FLIGHT MARKED BY PAILS

By GIBBONS MARSH,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—Guided by George T. Robinson, superintendent of the Rolling Mill mine, who led the rescuing parties, recovered the bodies of the dead and saved the lives of the injured, I visited the scene of the explosion and explored the ill-fated Klondike section this afternoon. The mine is now free from all poisonous gases and work will be resumed tomorrow morning. The officials say they are certain only a few more dead miners have not been found, and they believe these unfortunate men have crawled into some abandoned section and hidden themselves in a remote corner.

Superintendent Robinson says he is unable to say, at this time, just what caused the horrible catastrophe.

By a special arrangement I met Superintendent Robinson at 3:30 this afternoon at the mine office, about half a mile from the Westmont entrance. He gave me a suit of overalls, and then, armed with miners' cap and lamp, I was ready to enter the Klondike section in a little coal car.

At the Mine Office.

It was a long, dark ride to the little office in the heart of the mine. Occasionally I was compelled to "duck" to keep from coming in contact with the roof. Robinson had telephoned to Griffith Powell and Benjamin Hartell, mine bosses, that he was coming into the mine to go over the ill-fated Klondike section. We were met at the mine office by these men. This office is a dismal apartment. It resembles a cave, but inside there are a rough desk and a number of shelves where tools are kept.

Accompanied by these men, we walked to the motor train. This is operated by compressed air, is of longitudinal construction and 200-horse power. We boarded the train and went three-quarters of a mile to the mouth of the Klondike section. At this place Phillip White, the assistant mechanical engineer of the mine, who was guiding the motor engine announced that I would have to get off the car and submit to a search to see if I had any matches with me. I assured Mr. White that I had not, but he smiled and said he was compelled to look into my pockets. I turned them inside out for his inspection.

No Chances on Naked Lamps.

Then Superintendent Robinson took me into the fire bosses' shanty and relieved me of my miners' lamp. I asked him if I would be compelled to walk without a light, and he said I would not, but that he intended to give me a safety light. I asked him if there was any gas left in this ill-fated section, and he said there was not enough to do any damage, even if I carried an open miners' lamp, but he said he didn't intend to take any chances, and thought we would get along through the headings and "dog holes" with safety by this improved light.

We boarded the motor again and were carried into the heart of the Klondike section. We left the car at No. 5 right heading and walked to No. 6 right, where the explosion happened. Superintendent Robinson tested the air. He reminded me that there was still some gas in this heading, and cautioned me to be careful how I carried my light, and to watch where I stepped. We went into this heading to No. 4 room. It was there that the gas accumulated that exploded.

Supt. Robinson explained that this accumulation was due to a slate fall over a place where the coal had been excavated. The terrible effects of the explosion could be traced. Large holes were torn in the sides of the room and at the edge of the heading. The walls of the room had been built up with rocks. These stones had been blown about so that the passageway into the room was almost blockaded.

Held on to Their Dinner Pails.

After inspecting the effects of the explosion, Supt. Robinson told me we would have to crawl over the debris to see the place where so many of the men had been found. Thirty men were taken from this heading. All along side of the room tin dinner buckets were lying in the passageway, strewn to the main heading. I counted 25 of them. They had been carried by the miners until they had become dazed and dropped over, where they were found dead on Friday morning.

We came out of this heading and went into the main entry of this section. While walking back to No. 5 right Supt. Robinson called my attention to the number of dinner buckets in this passageway. He told me that some 25 men had been found along that short lead. The contents of the buckets were still there, just as they had been packed by the unfortunate miners' wives on that fatal Thursday morning.

Supt. Robinson said that from the appearance of the bodies they were from No. 7 heading. After the explosion along the main passageway, they ran until they had become dazed and dropped over dead. He told me he wondered many times when he was carrying their bodies to the cars what induced them to cling to their buckets so grimly.

Going Through a Dog Hole.

When we arrived at No. 5 we entered it and passed along until we came to No. 9 room. The passage through this heading was rough and difficult to traverse. A great deal of water had to be waded, which was over our shoetops. When we came to No. 9 room, Supt. Robinson said that we would have to go through a "dog hole" to No. 4 right. He explained that a "dog hole" was a small opening between the headings used for circulating air. The climb through the dog hole was very difficult, as the ceiling was just three feet high and we went on all fours. We crawled into No. 4 and walked in a stooping fashion until we reached No. 10 room.

Supt. Robinson led me to the place where he found his unfortunate fire boss, Joseph Tomlinson, and four miners. He said this unfortunate man had been making for the fire stick with which the explosion happened Tomlinson ran from the shanty to the place where these men were working and tried to drag them out. They were found with their handkerchiefs over their mouths to prevent the gas from getting into their lungs.

Passed Through a Shoo Fly.

From No. 5 heading right we went through a passage known to miners as a "shoo fly" to No. 7 heading right. A "shoo fly" is a passageway used to carry coal through the main entrance on a trackway. We went through this "shoo fly" to a brattice door. It was behind this door that Fire Boss John C. Whitney was found. Griffith Powell and Thomas Foster had dragged him to this place, but they were compelled to desert him to save themselves. We walked back along this route to the front of the heading and down the passageway to No. 2 heading right. Supt. Robinson took me to the place where he found William Robinson, his brother, who is employed as a machine boss and William Blanch. His brother was alive, but Blanch was dead.

We went out into No. 2 heading to the place where Henry Rodgers, mine boss, and John Retallick, a fire boss, were found. They were found sitting side by side and had been dipping handkerchiefs in a small stream of water and dampening their lips. From this place we crossed the main passageway to No. 4 heading left. This heading is a long one and contains some 26 rooms. At the mouth of this heading 15 living men were found. One died when being taken out of the mine and five have since died at the hospitals.

End of the Exploration.

The walking along this heading was rough. Large quantities of slate have been thrown across the path, and we were compelled to walk in a stooping posture for 200 feet. At room No. 15 in this heading the most gruesome sight that Supt. Robinson had to confront with was on Friday here. He told me there were some 26 men found lying in a heap. I counted 20 of the dead workmen's buckets. They were strewn all over the entrance to the room. About 50 feet inside the room there was a hissing sound that could be heard quite plainly. The three miners had cut a hole in the airpipe. They were found close to it, dead. We walked to room No. 13 where five men had been discovered who had been suffocated.

From this heading we walked back to the motor cars and were taken to the fire bosses' shanty. Here my matches and tobacco were returned to me and we boarded the cars. Our open lamps were also returned to us and we started to the mine office. A telephone message was sent to the office on the outside of the mine that we were about to leave. Twenty minutes later we were in the open air again, dripping, and blackened by coal dust. We arrived at the office where we were met by General Manager Price and Chief Mining Engineer Harshaw. Both these officials said work would be resumed in the mine tomorrow morning.

TEACHERS ARRIVE IN OLD LONDON THIS MORNING

By L. W. STRAYER, Staff Correspondent.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

The Lizard, June 13.—The party of school teachers on a European summer outing as guests of the Pittsburgh Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph saw their first of Europe this morning at daylight, when The Lizard was sighted. At the first report of land ahead all rushed on deck, and there was a hearty cheer, though the entire voyage has been pleasant and there has been even very little seasickness. Those who suffered from mal de mer at the start soon recovered, and the party will enter London tomorrow well and happy and ready for a hard campaign of sightseeing. Every member of the party sends regards to relatives and friends at home.

The voyage has been most pleasant and as it is the first ocean trip of most of the party, all have made the most of it. The Minnehaha has made good time, and there was very little of the voyage that has not been pleasant on deck. With bright sunshine most of the time, we have developed quite a coat of tan, and the whole party seems to be in better health and spirits than when we sailed out of New York harbor on the morning of July 5. Being all good American patriots, there were some sighs and a few tears as the last sight of home soil disappeared in the distance, but the feeling that within a couple of months we would be back again was enough to dissipate all that in a very short time. The entire party is looking forward to tomorrow morning with pleasant anticipations.

The friends in Pittsburgh and vicinity of the guests of Pittsburgh's two leading papers may feel assured that the party is prepared for a few weeks of the greatest pleasure of their lives, as the long ocean voyage has given them the rest necessary to the real enjoyment of a summer outing.

PITIFUL SCENES AS THE MINE VICTIMS WERE LAID TO REST

65 VOLUNTEERS TO DIG GRAVES FOR THE DEAD

Two Great Trenches Made Instead of Individual Tombs.

REGULAR FORCE STRIKES

It Was All the Priests Could Do to Collect Men to Perform the Sad Duty—Burial Will Not Be Finished Before Noon.

By GEORGE A. CAMPSEY,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—The regular gravediggers in the Slavak and Polish Catholic cemeteries refused to do their work today, and the comrades of the men who were to be buried had to perform this last sad office. The hard rock of the cemetery soil made the task of digging the 70 graves separately too great and two great trenches were dug instead.

The scarcity of men to dig the graves came very near causing the county authorities to interfere and take charge of the work. As was told in The Gazette this morning, almost 40 bodies lay in the barn to the left of the foreigners' cemetery in Morrellville all last night. There was not even a man left to guard the bodies, and the sudden change in the weather made the odor noticeable for acres around. The corpses in the barn were augmented this morning by four other bodies which were taken to the barn, and as there were no graves they had to be deposited among the others.

A Few Relatives Volunteer.

The Rev. Father Dembinsky made a herculean effort last night to have men volunteer to go out and dig the graves, but very few responded. This morning he made a personal canvass among his parishioners of St. Casimir's Slavak Catholic church and succeeded in getting several relatives of the dead miners to go out and dig graves. Then the Rev. Father Dembinsky made a personal appeal to the officials of the Cambria Steel Company. They at once sent 30 miners to the cemetery.

During the masses which he held for his own people this morning the Rev. Father Dembinsky again called for volunteer gravediggers, with the result that about five men volunteered their services.

At 10 o'clock mass, held in St. Stephen's Slavish Catholic church, the Rev. Father John Mervin made a stirring appeal to the members of his congregation and quite a number of men agreed to go and at 11 o'clock there were 64 men in the Morrellville cemetery digging graves for the dead bodies of the victims. The two regular gravediggers employed by the cemetery still positively refused to take up a digging iron.

Some Dig in Sunday Clothes.

By 2 o'clock preparations were begun to bring the bodies from the barn and deposit them in the ground. The men worked hard and fast. Then their friends came to the cemetery, and many not in working clothes, who came to the burying ground to attend the funerals, got down into the holes and worked for 10 or 15 minutes each, like Trojans.

A Hungarian miner whose brother had lost his life in the terrible explosion had been among the first to volunteer to the Rev. Father Dembinsky's call this morning. He worked steadily all morning and at noontime refused to go home to eat. While in a grave he fainted and had to be carried back and allowed to lie on the grass. He came back shortly, pluckily started to work again, and continued his labors until the funerals began to arrive at the cemetery.

Nearly all the bodies which were in the barn last night, and those brought to the cemetery this afternoon and evening, were buried. About five remain in the barn, and these will be buried before 1 o'clock in the morning. Lying in the open ground and in the barn together, at one time this evening, there were 65 bodies.

By noon tomorrow all bodies recovered from the Klondike section of the ill-fated mine will be buried. The Rev. Father Dembinsky will hold two masses over dead members of his congregation, and there still remain a few bodies to be buried besides these.

BURIALS ALL DAY LONG

All Sorts of Vehicles Pressed Into Service, Including a Fire Patrol and a Picnic Wagon—Many of the Corpses Mixed.

By GEORGE A. CAMPSEY,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—Lying side by side in three large trenches and in several single graves on the north side of a steep hill in Morrellville cemetery, the dead bodies of almost 60 victims of the Rolling Mill mine disaster are buried. It was a day of continuous interment, and so hard did the gravediggers work that at midnight tonight the last excavations containing the dead miners had been filled.

The total number of funerals held in Cambria City this morning and today was 25. Four bodies were removed to the cemetery this morning and 21 this afternoon. Fifteen victims were buried from St. Stephen's Slavish Catholic church and 10 from St. Mary's Greek church.

Undertakers and liverymen in Johnstown and Cambria City today worked with might and main to get the bodies of the dead men laid to rest, and it was a trying day for the priests and ministers who held funeral services over the deceased men. The total number of hearses and undertaking wagons could not begin to transfer the dead from homes to churches, and cemeteries, and vehicles of almost every description were pressed into service.

Some Mourners Obliged to Walk.

Not enough surreys, buggies, cabs and carriages could be furnished for the friends and relatives to ride in, and many of them were compelled to walk to and from the funeral services and cemeteries.

Four brass bands at the heads of several foreign societies, marched through the streets, playing funeral dirges and appropriate hymns. With slow step and bowed heads, the members of the various societies followed the bands, and it is estimated that over 1,000 men marched in the many funeral processions which wended their way to Morrellville cemetery. Many of these men became weary, after their many trips to and from the burying grounds, and occasionally one would drop out and have to be assisted to some place of shade, and his friends would help to resuscitate him.

Probably the most novel funeral wagons seen in any of the processions to the cemetery this afternoon, were those of the Moxham fire patrol company and a vehicle lettered "Picnic Wagon." Several of the patrol wagons had been wanted for the occasion, and at every trip from the churches two bodies were taken to the cemeteries.

The scenes in the Morrellville cemetery were the most gruesome that have been known since the calamity of 1889. The funerals from the churches were begun this afternoon promptly at 2 o'clock, and as the last cortege reached the inner gates it was just 7 o'clock.

Caskets Rapidly Lowered.

From first to last there was not a quarter of an hour that a body was not brought into the burial ground, and from 3 o'clock when the first body arrived, until the last one came, caskets were being lowered into the graves and trenches at a rapid rate.

The first burial of the day was begun early this afternoon, when the 40 bodies that had been left in a barn all last night with the little hillside burying ground, and when the first corpse from Cambria City entered its gates, fully 1,500 persons occupied almost every available foot of ground in the section where the graves had been made.

At the barn men and women, principally relatives of the dead victims, came to the spot and insisted on being allowed to enter the structure that they might pick out the corpses of their loved ones and be allowed to see them once more, or to see that no mistake was made when they were buried, and that they could be certain of their last resting place. Admittance was denied, but it was difficult to keep the foreigners away. Occasionally they would slip past the guard, and in several instances men were caught trying to raise the lids of coffins and were ejected from the building.

One large trench, 10 feet wide, 75 feet long and 5 feet deep, had been dug out of solid slate in the hillside. This was meant for the graves of 20 Polish miners, whose bodies had been lying in the barn all night. At 3 o'clock, when the first body was brought up from the barn, it was followed by a woman who afterward proved to be the wife of the dead miner. When the body was landed at the brink of the grave it was let down on the ground for a moment until the men who had carried it could have a breathing spell before lowering it into the excavation. The woman went to the coffin and looked at the card. Then, unobserved, she opened the lid of the casket. She uttered a shriek and began to wail and cry, when she was led away by some friends.

Six Hungarians acted as pallbearers, and there were five large men who stood in the trench and let the caskets slowly down into their last resting place.

By the side of the first trench had been dug another and smaller one which would hold about 12 bodies. This was not touched until the first had been filled. This occupied several hours.

Twenty-five caskets in black, white, purple, rose or scarlet in a row made a sight which once seen would never be forgotten, and that it might be recalled more clearly to some minds camera fiends took snapshots of the coffins as they lay five feet down in the ground on a box of hard slate.

The Corpses Mixed.

Before the bodies were buried they became generally mixed, and friends and relatives will never know exactly where their loved ones lie. In order to accommodate a heartbroken widow an effort was made by those in charge of 30 bodies at the barn to get out the corpse of her husband and bury it among the first. This was the start of the confusion and in a short time all efforts toward keeping the proper record was given up.

In the moving of the caskets the cards were loosened and many of them were knocked off. What did not fall off in that manner were blown off by the breeze. When the first grave digging party sent out by the officials of the Cambria Steel Company reached the cemetery this morning there was no one present to direct their movements. They dug one trench immediately below some other graves and water filled it so it was thought it would be impossible to use it.

At the last minute last night, however, it was pressed into service. Fourteen bodies were placed in it and the excavation was filled with dirt. The large trench had to be kept uncovered until late in the evening to allow the Rev. Father Dembinsky to sprinkle the coffins with holy water.

First Funeral Procession.

At 3:45 o'clock this afternoon the sightseers in the cemetery noticed the first funeral procession coming along the road. It was that of Steven Simko, one of the best known Hungarians in Cambria City. He had been found dead and brought out of the mine yesterday. A band headed the procession as it slowly passed a hill. A dirge was being played, and the drums were muffled. Immediately preceding the procession came the Rev. Father John Martvan in a carriage. At the foot of the slight hill leading to the trench he left the vehicle, arranged his robes and led the funeral party to the grave. Members of the St. Louis society, of which the dead man had been treasurer, 150 strong, marched after the casket and ahead of the widow and children.

One sad procession had just left St. Mary's church. The body was in a surrey, and on the seat with the driver was sitting the man's widow, with her arm tightly grasping the casket. The driver noticed her drop her head, and in a moment she had lost consciousness.

Possibly one of the most distressing sights was a butcher' wagon which contained the remains of two dead miners. Two of the children of the dead men sat in the wagon by the side of their fathers' corpses.

English Speaking Victims Buried.

The funerals of several of the English-speaking miners were held today from their various homes in Johnstown. John Thomas' remains were taken from his home to the Main Street Baptist church, where the services were conducted. The funeral was in charge of the K. of P. lodge. The funeral exercises over the remains of John Whitney, one of the fire bosses of the Klondike mine, were held from his house in Vine street this afternoon and was largely attended.

Services were held over the remains of John and Jack Crook this morning and their remains were shipped to Patton, Cambria county, for interment in the afternoon. William Blanch and Daniel and William Lee were buried from different churches, and their funerals were well attended. One hearse did service in conveying four of the bodies of the seven men to the graves, and the last interment was not made until 6 o'clock this evening.

THE WEATHER.

Warmer.

Although the thermometer got as high as 83 degrees yesterday the day was pleasant, as a nice breeze was blowing all day long. In the morning it was decidedly cool, the mercury being as low as 50 at 6 a. m. For today the forecast is for fair weather, warmer than yesterday.

The Gazette's weather service thermometer at Kaufmann's corner registered as follows:

AWAITED DEATH THAT WAS EASY AND PLEASANT

A One-Legged American-Born Survivor Tells His Experiences.

FIRE DAMP OVERTOOK HIM

He Became Weak and Confused—Sat Down and Looked the Future in the Face Without Fear Until Thought Was Blotted Out.

By GIBBONS MARSH,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—One of the most interesting accounts of the mine disaster by a survivor is given by Edward Yamitzk, of American birth, 22 years old, who had a leg amputated as the result of an accident 10 years ago. Boy and man, he has worked in the mines all of his life.

He was attending the telephone at the entrance to the Klondike heading from the main corridor, about two and a half miles from the Westmont entrance, when the explosion happened, and he was carried out from the Mill creek entrance by a stalwart workman, who stumbled over him while racing for his own life. Yamitzk tells this story:

"When I heard the explosion I was just off the main corridor in the Klondike heading. I was not alarmed, for I had heard other explosions. When I saw the 10 trappers and 15 drivers running past me I knew then it had been an explosion of gas and that they were fleeing from the after-damp. I seized my crutches and followed as fast as I could. When I reached the office at the main corridor the clerk called me in and told me to stay while he went to the aid of the miners.

Had Smelt After-Damp Before.

"I stayed until I detected the odor of the damp. I knew it, for I had smelt it before. Then I fled. An able-bodied man could easily have kept ahead of it, as the trappers and drivers did. On crutches, it was not so easy. I worked along as fast as I could. As the damp began to affect me, my one leg became weak. Then my head became somewhat confused, so I staggered. Presently I was blundering about, and then my arms grew weak and my hands so nerveless I could not manage my crutches. I sat down.

"I was not worried about the near approach of death, because it did not appear dreadful to me then. My sensations were extremely pleasant, my thoughts became more dim, and finally everything was blotted out.

"Of course, I knew nothing of my deliverance, except what is told to me; but I am thankful to the man who so generously risked his own life to save mine. I'm glad he got out.

"Now, about the cause of the explosion I know nothing. I believe there are a few dead men in the mine yet. Years ago a corridor was started to the south, about midway between the Westmont and Mill creek openings. It was not driven straight, but curved to the eastward. It is known as "Old Waterloo" and was abandoned about eight years ago. I believe, on account of an explosion in which two men were killed. Then the Klondike corridor was driven, some distance nearer Westmont opening. I thing several men ran into the Old Waterloo when fleeing from the damp and will be found there. I don't think there were many.

Many Perish Through Ignorance.

"The drivers and trappers easily kept ahead of the damp, as they had clear running. The damp does not spread rapidly. A number of miners also ran through and got ahead of it. Many ran into it instead of away from it, and so lost their lives. I suppose they had never smelt it before and did not know enough to know which way to run."

"Will the miners go back to the Rolling Mill mine?"

"Yes, and no. I am ready to go to work tomorrow if the mine is open. I am not superstitious, as it is as safe as any mine. Many of the foreigners are superstitious and will not go back. They may go to work in the Mineral Point mine. Others will come to work in Rolling Mill mine. The wives of some will make them move away at once. Others will be persuaded to return, in spite of their fears.

"The Americans, English and Germans will not be afraid, for they know this mine is as safe as another and probably will be more carefully managed. There are very few of these about here, though some of us with outlandish names are American-born. I am one."

PEOPLE LISTEN TO THE PRIESTS

listened attentively to the services. The men sat reverently with hats off and heads bowed. They all had prayerbooks and their lips could be noticed moving as with closed eyes they repeated prayers for friends and relatives who had lost their lives in the disaster. Old men whose days of manual labor had ended and who must be supported by some of their kin, would sit on the church steps for hours, counting their beads and praying with all earnestness.

The lame and the halt and the blind were there. Many men were on crutches; others walked with canes; some had to be carried to the church. Scarred by years of hard labor in the mines, grimy with the unwashable black, these foreigners, in their simple but sincere way, attracted the attention and won the respect of the Americans who were in the city this morning. Kneeling rows on the sidewalk and even in one place in the middle of the street, were not infrequent sights during the services in the churches today.

Generous Collections Taken.

Thousands of curiosity-seekers attended the Catholic churches of various nationalities today. In all the churches holding masses today offerings were taken up to be given to the widows and orphans of those who perished in the disaster. Every man, woman and child at the services had contributions ready. Some would have the exact amount they intended to give, and others would not have any change, but would drop a coin or bill into the collection basket and take from it the change. It was said last night that about $200 was raised in this manner.

When an American would contribute the collectors always acknowledged the gift with a courteous, "Thank you," or simply by a nod of the head.

One instance which occurred at St. Stephen's Slav Catholic church this morning is worthy of mention. A stylish-dressed American woman attended 10 o'clock mass. She had not gone from curiosity, but as a messenger of charity, expecting to learn of some of suffering ones and arrange to contribute to alleviate their distress. When the collection box was passed to her she put in a scrip bill. The collector held the box in front of her for a minute, but she took out no change and bowed him away. At the conclusion of services the woman was sought out as she was leaving the church by the collector and three of the men whom she thought were officers of the church. The spokesman of the party told her she had put a bill in the basket, and asked her if she did not want her change. She told him she meant to give the whole amount.

Kissed the Woman's Hand.

When the interpretor told the other two men what the good American woman had said they dropped to their knees on the sidewalk in front of her, seized her right hand, and each foreigners kissed it tenderly. Then they arose, bowed, put on their hats and went away.

Fully 2,500 foreigners attended the masses, Polish and Slavish, in St. Stephen's Catholic church this morning. When one mass was concluded they would remain in the church for the others.

There were one or two interesting features of the services in St. Mary's church, Greek Catholic. After 10 o'clock mass had concluded a wedding occurred. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Csuski, immediately afterward the newly married couple wended their way to grief-stricken friends. The Rev. Father John Martvan baptised a number of infants at the end of his last service this morning.

Possibly one of the saddest features of the church exercises today was the attendance of children of unfortunate men who lost their lives in the disaster. They were allowed to sit near one another, away from their mothers, and formed a pitiful group.

Sisters of the St. Frances mother house of Joliette attended services at St. Stephen's church and took especial care of orphans. They caressed and comforted the children who were old enough to know the loss that had befallen them, and looked after the little ones who were too young to know or understand their misfortune.

Four Last Bodies Blessed.

Four bodies were blessed before 10 o'clock mass in St. Stephen's church this morning. They were immediately taken to the barn on the cemetery property and buried this afternoon.

The Rev. Father John Martvon preached a sermon to his congregation after mass was celebrated this morning. His theme was, "Prepare to Meet Thy God." He told his parishioners of the uncertainty of life, referred to the mine disaster, and told of brave, fearless, honest and Christian men who had lost their lives.

"You must all be prepared to give an exact accounting at any time. Death is the earthy end, and you must face your Maker at what time He alone knows. You should not inquire if this is the punishment of God, but should acquiese, and at all times be willing and ready to do His will."

The Rev. Father B. Dembinsky preache on the same lines, basing his remarks from the scriptural passage, "Let God's will be done." He entreated the members of his parish to lead honest, upright, Christian lives, so that when their summons come, no matter how, they would be prepared to meet their Maker.

WIDOWS ROBBED OF THEIR DEAD FOR INSURANCE

Confusion Caused by Ghouls Who Put in False Claims for Corpses.

SEVERAL BODIES MISSED

Some That Started Out of the Mine Never Reached the Morgue—Those Who Get Them Also Receive One Thousand Dollars.

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Staff Correspondent.

Johnstown, Pa., July 13.—Against the black background of this disaster many deeds of heroism have stood out in a white light that added to their luster, but in its dark shadows some shameful acts also are to be recorded. There has been a shocking display of avarice and conscienceless conduct during these past two days. For the sake of gain men and women have tried to wrest the bodies of the dead from their loved ones and bury them as members of their own families. On two occasions they are believed to have succeeded in their purpose, as there is a discrepancy in the number, and one body, and perhaps more, never appeared at the temporary morgue, that were known to have been taken from the mine.

Already conflicting claims have been put in for many of the bodies, and in one or two cases the wife or mother had a hard fight for her dead.

The reason for it all is that there is coming to the family of every dead miner $1,000 from the Cambria Relief association. In many cases the wife or other legal heir lives in the old country, and the body has been seized and buried by the boarding house keeper or some other who knew the circumstances of the man's family.

The Check Number System.

In some cases, where a wife is newly arrived in this country, others have claimed the body and identified it as that of some relative. This can be done easily in many cases, for the men were almost universally identified by check numbers pinned on their blouses. In many cases these were missing, and the morgue attendants are not all sure that there ever was any real identification. In addition, it was not the custom in the mine to assign a man a check number permanently until he had been working several days. As the changes in the 800 men employed in the mine averaged at least ten a day, it can be seen that when a man had no permanent check number, with his name merely in the mind of his boss, who was also killed, there was nothing difficult about identifying the stranger as a relative, burying him and then claiming the $1,000.

As a result of the confusion over the claiming of the dead, and the fact that many men are still asserted to be missing by their families, it is not likely that an accurate list of the dead ever will be made out. Furthermore, it will delay indefinitely the matter of distribution of relief that will be so sadly needed in a short time in many of the stricken homes. Secretary Matthews of the relief association said yesterday afternoon:

Some Have Two Wives.

"In many cases there will have to be an extensive investigation. Many of the men have wives in the old country, and they will have to be communicated with and prove their identity. Some of them have two wives, one in their native land and one here, and the courts may be called upon to decide which marriage shall be regarded as legal.

"Officials of the relief association are hearing of many bereaved wives who have not been able to discover their husband's bodies. One man's body was sent to the surface and loaded on a wagon. It never reached the morgue. I was there at the time.

"A bold attempt was made to get the body of a man whom one claimant insisted was Lawrence Posnik. The morgue officials decided in favor of a woman who also calimed him as her husband, and the fight over the corpse was renewed when it was brought to the cemetery to be buried. Had the unsuccessful claimant not been driven away he would have learned that it reposed in an old barn all last night because there was no grave ready for it, and a raid doubtless would have followed. The woman who claimed it watched until night, but the grewsome task of keeping watch over a pile of 40 inhabited rough boxes was too much for her, and she gave it up, but was back early this morning.

The confusion in the identification of the dead seems to be almost unavoidable, and of the five unidentified yet in the undertaking rooms about the city there are two or more claimants for each body. Warned by recent experiences, however, the officials will not give them up until there is absolutely no doubt that the claimant is honest in his identification, and is the nearest relative or friend here. As a result of this step, it is likely that all five will be buried in unnamed graves, as no one of the claimants have been able to present a very convincing case to the coroner and others.

Tribute to Y. M. C. A. Worker.

H. J. Heinz addressed some 300 men yesterday afternoon in the Sharpsburg and Etna Young Men's Christian association rooms. His subject was the faithful and extended service rendered the association by Hugh Kennedy, who has been president of the association for many years and who is soon to leave Sharpsburg. Mr. Heinz touched upon the lessons which might be gleaned from the faithful and extended service which Mr. Kennedy had rendered the association, and his remarks were well appreciated by all present.

LESSONS DRAWN FROM CALAMITY

WHAT JOHNSTOWN MINISTERS SAY IN THEIR SERMONS.

The Idea of Power Impresses Archdeacon Cole of Pittsburgh Episcopal Diocese. Dr. Hays, Presbyterian, Pays Tribute to Miners.

By GEORGE A. CAMPSEY,
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 13.—References were made from every pulpit in the city today to the disaster. Crowds filled all the churches and special collections were lifted for the benefit of the suffering wives and children of the dead miners. These contributions have not been collected together, so that the total amount drawn by the appeal cannot be estimated until tomorrow.

Archdeacon L. T. Cole of the Episcopalian diocese of Pittsburgh spoke at various religious gatherings in the city. In the morning he delivered a sermon at St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church, taking as a text Phillippians iii:10. He talked of the idea of power and of what we see of the power. He said we are incapable of seeing or understanding the power as men, except through Jesus Christ.

"What men see," he said, "are the phenomena or the results of the power."

As an instance, he cited Mount Pelee and the present mine disaster.

"These things, the phenomena of power," he said, "are what we see, and they paralyze and strike us with terror."

As examples of power he mentioned electricity, light and gravitation. While the phenomena threw the ashes of Mont Pelee high into the air the power of gravitation drew them again to earth. He said history would be a wortless skeleton if the life and works of Jesus Christ were omitted, and that only through His resurrection can the human race withstand such disasters and still have hope in an overruling providence.

Heroes of the Mines.

The Rev. C. C. Hays spoke at the First Presbyterian church tonight on "The Heroes of Our Mines; Some Thoughts on the Disaster," using as his text Phillippians ii:40.

Dr. Hays opened by speaking of the suddenness of the disaster and of our long immunity from similar catastrophes until now, of the security with which the mine had been supposed to be invested, and of "death lurking in the dark corners." Continuing, he said:

"It awakens strange feelings in our hearts, and ought to have a mellowing, softening influence upon us all. There is or should be, first of all, a feeling of gratitude that the disaster has been no worse. Terrible as it is, it might have been many times more dreadful.

"The whole community has been in a greater or less degree affected by this blow. The news has gone over the world, and in distant Germany and Italy and Austro-Hungary there are scores of families who wait with intense anxiety for detailed information and the names of the victims. Some of the greatest sufferers from the disaster will be widows and orphans in those lands who are beyond reach of our help.

Bread Winners Under Ground.

"We have climbed these hills, and have driven these highways, and have given no thought to the men beneath. We have stood at Grandview and have thought of the dead who are buried there, but have made no note or calculation of the living men who were toiling deep below the tombs. Out of the earth these men have brought bread; not only bread for themselves, but for the rest of us."

The Rev. E. E. Haskins spoke at the Somerset Street Brethren church this morning on "The Church, Its Relation to Public Calamities." Among other things he said:

"No institution beside the home comes in as close touch with this sorrow as the church. After the noble band of rescuers have done their work, even after the dead are buried, the sympathizers gone to their homes, and the city has settled to the wonted routine of living, then the discouraged heart will just begin.

"It is not the duty of the church to seek out the cause of this awful disaster, but it is our duty to impress again and again the value of life. Our duty is more than to prepare men for the future; it is also to teach the brotherhood of man here and now.

"Then we should prepare men to live right. How valuable have been hearts right with God and man to these imprisoned men. Many, we feel, went out of time at peace with God and man. There should be a new awakening in the churches, seeking to make it easier for men to prepare for life's eventualities."

LORD SALISBURY GIVES UP PLACE TO MR. BALFOUR

Aged British Premier Tenders His Resignation to King and It Is Accepted.

AWAITED END OF WAR

Has Long Wanted to Retire from Office, but Was Not Willing to Do So Under Fire—His Distinguished Career.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]
(Copyright, 1902, by the New York Herald Co.)

London, July 13.—Lord Salisbury has at last resigned the premiership. At a meeting of the Unionist party, to be held at the foreign office tomorrow at noon, the announcement will be made of Lord Salisbury's resignation.

Vague rumors of his lordship's contemplated resignation have been rife ever since the death of the Marchioness of Salisbury. These began to take more definite shape a few months ago, the end of the war or the consummation of the coronation being mentioned as the probable time of resignation. At the same time the announcement will come as a surprise to the Unionist party, who did not expect it till late in the autumn.

On Friday last Lord Salisbury paid a private visit to the king and tendered his resignation, his advancing years and failing health being the reasons assigned. The king regretfully accepted the resignation, and subsequently communicated with Mr. Balfour, the leader of the commons.

LORD SALISBURY,
Who Has Resigned the Premiership.

Mr. Balfour was received by the king yesterday, was offered the post of prime minister, and he accepted. He then held a meeting with Mr. Chamberlain and other members of the government, who learned the king's decision with pleasure. Mr. Chamberlain being particularly amiable, for Mr. Balfour is exceedingly popular with his fellow ministers. It was then agreed to make the public announcement tomorrow. Lord Salisbury will attend the coronation as prime minister, such being the king's wish.

Is the Third Marquis.

Lord Salisbury is the third marquis, the first marquis having succeeded his father, the sixth earl of Salisbury, in 1780. The first earl of Salisbury was Robert Cecil, youngest son of William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, Queen Elizabeth's famous minister.

On July 2 the marquis of Salisbury completed the sixth year of his premiership, the present cabinet having entered upon office on July 2, 1895. Lord Salisbury had twice before been premier, from June 24, 1885, to February 6, 1886, and from August 3, 1886, to August 18, 1892.

Lord Salisbury's three premierships total 13 years and 7 months, Mr. Gladstone was four times premier, with a total period in that office of 12 years and 5 months.

Born February 3, 1830, Lord Salisbury is now in his 73d year. He first held office as secretary for India in 1866-7. He became secretary of state for foreign affairs for the first time in 1878-80, again in 1885-6, again in 1887-92 and in 1895-1900.

It Is All in the Family.

Arthur James Balfour was born July 25, 1848, and has not yet turned 54. His mother was a daughter of the second marquis of Salisbury, brother of the retiring premier. Mr. Balfour is consequently Lord Salisbury's nephew.

Mr. Balfour was elected to parliament in 1874. He was private secretary to the marquis of Salisbury when the latter was foreign secretary, from 1878 to 1880, and accompanied his uncle on the special mission of Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury to Berlin, in 1878.

Leadership of the house of commons fell to Mr. Balfour for the first time in 1891, this duty going with the post of first lord of the treasury, which office he holds in the Salisbury cabinet.

Thomas Power O'Connor, M. P., in an interview tonight, summed up the situation in connection with the resignation of Lord Salisbury and the appointment of Mr. Balfour:

"The resignation of Lord Salisbury was expected in connection with the coronation of King Edward," he said, "but when the coronation did not take place there grew up an idea that perhaps the premier's resignation was indefinitely postponed. Old men cling to power, and it was supposed that Lord Salisbury was not free from the weakness of so many others. This prospect did not quite satisfy his colleagues.

Slept at Cabinet Councils.

"Lord Salisbury's health has been notoriously indifferent, especially since the death of his wife, his extreme obesity is, of course, inconsistent with activity, either of mind or body, and there were whispers that he sometimes was overcome by sleep in the midst of momentous cabinet councils and that he only awoke when the discordant voices of Joseph Chamberlain (the colonial secretary) and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach (chancellor of the exchequer), the two chief opponents in the cabinet, reached an unusually high pitch.

"One or twice, too, lately, in the house of lords, he has shown a want of grip that has been almost painful. For instance, when the terms of peace in South Africa had to be announced he calmly asked the house of lords whether they desired to hear the words of Lord Kitchener's dispatch, as though the communication was really of little or no importance.

"Probably his resignation now has been influenced partly by the desire to make sure of the succession between the Cecil family and still more with a view to preventing the accession of Mr. Chamberlain. No man could be more adverse than is Lord Salisbury to supreme power being in the hands of so impulsive, restless and arrogant a politician as the colonial secretary.

Are Hostile in Secret.

"Though they had been made political bedfellows by necessity, Lord Salisbury and Mr. Chamberlain remained apart and were secretly hostile to each other. In addition the accession of Mr. Chamberlain might involve the immediate dismissal of Lord Cranborne (under secretary for the foreign office), and the earl of Selborne (first lord of the admiralty), one the son and the other the son-in-law of Lord Salisbury, and it must also have meant such a paling of the star of Mr. Balfour as to practically destroy his prestige.

"It is doubtful, in any case, whether the rank and file of the Tory party would have accepted Mr. Chamberlain willingly. They use him, but they do not like him. There is a certain section of young Tories who do not love Balfour, thinking him slack, decadent and lethargic, but he is still the darling of the straight Conservatives and his appointment would be even more popular with his political opponents than with his political friends. Despite his many faults, Mr. Balfour remains the most popular figure in the house of commons and his very faults help him in this respect. If he be indolent, he is also courteous, tolerant and broad-minded, and he will not insult other nations as Mr. Chamberlain has done. His tongue is well under restraint and he has all the instincts of a gentleman.

Ireland Sees a Hope.

"I regard the change as beneficial to Ireland in the long run. Mr. Balfour has had much experience of Ireland and, though he is not yet a home ruler, all his old animosity has disappeared and he is just the man to propose a solution of the long outstanding difficulty. But Mr. Balfour does not come into office at a very happy moment. The education bill, which he is piloting through the house of commons, arouses tremendous religious passions on both sides, and it is doubtful if he will be able to carry it through without such concessions to his political opponents as will exasperate some of his own political friends.

"The aftermath of the war also has come and the majority of the government, though large, is wanting in cohesion. But it is useless speculating further; the unexpected is always the dominant factor in English politics."

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—The appointment of Mr. Balfour to the English premiership will not result in any change in the existing relation between Great Britain and the United States. This is the opinion of state department officials, who express the opinion that Mr. Balfour will be as much disposed as was his predecessor, Lord Salisbury, to continue the friendly relations between the two countries.

PASTOR HUSS SEEMS TO HAVE DESERTED

Minister of East McKeesport Presbyterian Church Away on Vacation Locates in Yellowstone Park.

The Rev. Charles F. Huss, pastor of the East McKeesport Presbyterian church, near Wilmerding, will probably not return to the pastorate. A letter was received from him last week by a member of the session of the church, dated near Cheyenne, Montana, stating that he had about concluded not to return to the east, as he would no doubt shortly accept a government position in the Yellowstone Park. He made no mention of the nature of his proposed employment. The letter was received in answer to one sent him several weeks ago, asking him to return at once to his church work in East McKeesport.

The members of the church believe from the letter that Mr. Huss is about to leave the ministry. Early last April he was granted a three months' leave of absence on full pay, the latter offered voluntarily by the congregation, and he started for San Francisco. He asked for the vacation for the benefit of his health, and the congregation presented him with a liberal fund for his personal use, in addition to his salary of $100 per month, he having received $1,200 per year.

Mr. Huss wrote to members of his congregation from various points along the Pacific coast, and was confidently expected home at the close of the limit of his vacation, the last Sunday in June.

Members of the congregation began to worry about his failure to return and take up his work and a letter asking him to come back at once was sent. Mr. Huss said it would be impossible for him to return to East McKeesport before the latter part of September, as he had practically decided to accept the Yellowstone Park offer. He said that if such arrangements were not satisfactory to the congregation it could consider his resignation offered.

Mr. Huss has been with the East McKeesport congregation since it was formed two or three years ago. No congregational meeting has been called to take action on the matter, but as the pastor is in favor with a majority of members his demands may be acceded to.

READY FOR BIG OUTING.

Arrangements Completed for Greatest Picnic on Record for Orphans of St. Paul's Asylum.

The final meeting of the committee having in charge the picnic for St. Paul's Orphan asylum was held last night at St. Paul's cathedral. The picnic is to be held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week at Calhoun park, and last night's meeting made final arrangements. Every sub-committee reported its work in good shape.

Chairman Brady of the music committee said he had secured the best orchestra for dancing that had ever been brought together in Pittsburgh. The committee on sports reported its program and announced that the cuties embraced first class talent that would make this feature a drawing card. The decoration committee reported that experts had been engaged to beautify the booths and they promise to make the big park prettier than ever.

The other committees made reports quite as formidable and the prospects are that this will be the most successful picnic ever held for the asylum.

The 700 orphans at St. Paul's are largely dependent for their support on this picnic as this is the greatest source of revenue the asylum has. It is the one occasion when the general public has an opportunity to help the institution, and the Rev. Father Lynch and the men and women co-operating with him make a special appeal for generous support this year. Complete street car facilities have been guaranteed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company that will take the crowds to and from the park in comfort and safety, no matter how large they may be.

PELEE ACTIVE AGAIN.

Volcano at Martinique Again Throws Out Mud and Stones—No Fatalities Are Reported.

FORT DE FRANCE, ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE, July 13.—Last night and today Mont Pelee was in eruption, the activity being as great as that of Saturday and Wednesday last. Morne Rouge, Ajoupa Bouillion and Macouia were covered with stones and cinders and were rendered uninhabitable for several hours. The volcano emitted a dense column of flame and at the same time electrical phenomena were observed. The eruption was accompanied by a deep rumbling resembling continuous thunder. There were no fatalities reported, but the inhabitants of the northern part of the island were panic-stricken, all the residents of Fort de France remaining calm, however.

The French scientific mission has been recalled from Guadeloup by the governor and started this morning for Mont Pelee.

Found Dead in Bed.

Mrs. Lostus, a widow aged 52 years, was found dead in bed at her home, at the corner of Kearsarge and Pelona streets, South Side, last night at 9 o'clock. Her death was due to heart failure.

NEW MINISTER TO SUCCEED WU AT WASHINGTON

Sir Liang Chen Tung Has Been Appointed His Successor by China.

EDUCATED IN AMERICA

Has Held Many Important Positions in the Diplomatic Department. Like His Predecessor He Is a Believer in Western Civilization.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peking, July 13.—Sir Liang Chen Tung, secretary of the Chinese embassy to the coronation of King Edward, was today appointed Chinese minister to the United States.

New ministers to Russia, France and Italy have also been named. The selections for these ports show that the dowager empress continues to regard the diplomatic service as unimportant. None of the appointees is of higher than the Blue Button rank and none has held any important office.

All of them except Liang Chen Tung are unknown to the foreign community. Liang Chen Tung's appointment pleases the Americans here. The newly appointed diplomat was educated in America. He is a graduate of Yale university and is able, dignified and honest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister at Washington, was not surprised to hear of the appointment of a successor to himself as he has been expecting an announcement of this character for some time. He had received notice that his services would be required in another capacity and for this reason has been prepared to hear of the naming of his successor at any time.

WU TING FANG,
The Present Chinese Minister, Whose Successor Has Been Chosen.

Liang Is a Young Man.

Sir Liang Chen Tung, the newly appointed minister, is a comparatively young man, being a little over 40 years of age. Like the present minister he is said to be a man of progressive ideas, whose opinions have been formed from his education which was received partly in the United States, from his former connection with the Chinese embassy here, and from his contact with European civilization in the course of several special missions.

Liang was one of the four Chinese boys who were sent to the United States about 20 years ago for the purpose of completing their education. The idea of the Chinese government was to have each of the boys spend 15 years in this country, 10 years of which were to be in the preparatory schools and the remainder in the universities. Before Liang completed his course, however, the plan was discontinued, and he returned home.

While Chang was minister to Washington some years ago, Liang served as interpreter during the three years of his incumbency; later he was secretary of a special mission sent to Japan; and when the jubilee of Queen Victoria was celebrated he filled a similar position to the embassy which went to London. It was from his connection with the latter mission that he obtained his knighthood and received the title of sir.

Also an Apologist.

Last year when China dispatched a special mission to Germany to make formal apologies for the murder of Baron von Ketteler, Liang was a member of the party.

The retiring minister, Mr. Wu, has been at this capital since April, 1897. His relations with the administrations of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt have been of a most cordial character. The ordinary term of ministers in the Chinese diplomatic service is three years, and they are not reappointed. Mr. Wu's term of service, however, has been continued indefinitely from time to time. He was of great assistance to his government during the Boxer trouble. Several months ago he was appointed a member of the commission to codify the existing Chinese laws and prepare a set of modern laws for his country, and it is this business which in all probability the Chinese government has in store for him when he returns to his native land. Mr. Wu also is minister to Spain and Peru.

ROWDIES TRAMPLE AND INJURE FOUR

Crush to Board Kennywood Cars Sees Young Girl and Boy Roughly Used.

In a rush to get on a McKeesport street car, at the Kennywood park entrance last night, a crowd of rowdies trampled under their feet a young girl, a boy of 12 years, and two others waiting to board cars for their homes. The injured are:

MISS SADIE WALLACE of Duquesne, rushed off her feet and sorely bruised about the face, arm and body.

JOSEPH HUMMITT of McKeesport, the 12-year-old boy, whose face was squeezed against the running board and badly bruised.

A. VAN JULIAN of Duquesne, bruised about the legs and body.

ERNEST TRINKLER of Duquesne, bruised about the arms and body in attempting to save Miss Wallace.

The affair caused much excitement at the park entrance, and for a time there was little less than a riot. No arrests were made. The officers on duty can do little in these rushes for the cars, which occur frequently, and often threaten serious results, with car bells clanging and a long string of cars moving one after another.

Hundreds of men, women and children had congregated along the siding last night, awaiting a car, when the tough element began to show its force. Women with children became alarmed and appealed to the rowdies, but with little effect. A moment later a McKeesport car swung by and a rush was made to board it. There were many women with children in the crowd. The injured people were taken home in the cars which followed the rush.

ENGLAND ASKED TO INTERFERE

NEW MOVE IN GAYNOR AND GREENE EXTRADITION CASE.

Entirely Independent of Action by the Ordinary Judicial Methods—Nothing Yet Said About Alleged Collusion of Canadian Officials.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—Steps have been taken by the state department for the extradition to the United States of Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. Benjamin D. Greene, now under arrest at Quebec, Canada. A formal application for their extradition has been made by Secretary Hay to Mr. Raikes, charge d'affaires of the British embassy, who is now at Newport, and who, it is expected, will cable the request promptly to his government.

The grounds on which extradition is asked are comprehensive in character.

This action of the state department is independent of the proceedings now in progress to obtain the extradition of the men through ordinary judicial process. The secretary has not yet acted on the suggestion of the department of justice that there were obstructions placed in the way of the Canadian proceedings by reason of connections between counsel for Messrs. Greene and Gaynor and crown officers.

PERSONALS.

E. J. McCullough, manager of the Empire theater, returned from the east last evening. Mr. McCullough was at Atlantic City for several days on pleasure, and found a great many Pittsburghers there on the same mission. "I was also in New York for a few days," he said, "and while there consulted with Stair & Havlin, who control bookings now for both the Empire and Bijou theaters in this city, in regard to the attractions to be presented during the coming season. The feeling in New York among the managers and on 'the Rialto,' is that the next year will be one of the most prosperous ever known in the theatrical business. I was asked many questions in regard to the rumors of new theaters to be built in Pittsburgh, and discovered that it is generally believed in New York that most of the rumors were circulated by several managers simply for advertising purposes, but I also learned that one or two theatrical people who have the control of all the capital necessary, are quietly making every effort to break into Pittsburgh with a first-class play house. In fact I have it pretty straight that the property has already been obtained in a prominent location, but that the leases on it will not expire until next April, and they are too expensive to purchase from the present occupants, otherwise the building would commence at once. The New York managers rate Pittsburgh as the best amusement town in the country, and the best informed and shrewdest of them are firmly convinced that a new first-class theater will certainly be built within the next year."

N. H. Simonds, a brewer of Houston, Texas, who was returning to his home from New York last evening, said at the Baltimore & Ohio station that Texas was a great field for a few good breweries. "It is a large state, you know," he said, "and the climate is productive of a pretty good thirst. There are but few breweries, however, and these are located only in the largest cities. The smaller towns are good consumers of the beverage, but the freight is heavy and ice is very scarce, consequently a big syndicate has been formed in Houston to build breweries and manufacture ice in several of the towns throughout the state, and thus supply a long felt want. I have been in New York for several days looking over machinery and getting estimates, as the representative of the syndicate, and I think that in a very short time after I make my report the work of relieving the beer thirst of my suffering fellow Texans will be only a question of a few months."

The Baltimore & Ohio station has seldom, if ever, been more crowded than it was last evening at 8 o'clock, not only with travelers, but also with people who were out walking and were attracted by the large gathering. The travelers were mostly all excursionists. The Baltimore & Ohio had an excursion of 10 cars to Wheeling and 12 cars to Ohiopyle, with one from Morgantown and one from Cumberland of 10 cars each, to handle during the day, and as the outbound excursion trains were about to go out in the evening, the inbound returning trains arrived, and this was the cause of the immense crowd. The regular accommodation trains and the through trains also added to the crush, but all were handled with quickness and dispatch.

The Pennsylvania limited last evening carried a number of officials of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company who are on their way to attend a meeting of the trustees and agents at Milwaukee next Tuesday.

Senator M. S. Quay, his wife and three daughters, Mrs. L. R. Davidson, Miss Coral Quay and Miss Sue Quay will leave Beaver at 5 o'clock this morning en route to the north for their summer outing. They will pass through Pittsburgh.

Thomas J. M'Tighe of New York, brother of the late Rev. Father James J. M'Tighe, was at the Hotel Henry yesterday. He has come here to attend the funeral of his brother.

George F. Rummel, assistant general sales agent of the American Steel and Wire Company, with headquarters at Chicago, was a passenger on the Pennsylvania limited last evening. "I have been making a visit to a number of eastern cities on business for the company," he said, as he paced the platform at the Union station for exercise while the trainmen examined the airbrakes and wheels, "and I observed that building operations are falling off to a considerable extent all over that section of the country. This I attribute to the labor agitation and the strikes which are annoying the contractors and prospective builders and are greatly hindering all branches of labor operations. We manufacture, among other things, wire nails, and the cessation of building will cause a falling off in our sales in this line, but we have plenty of work on hand and orders enough booked ahead to keep us busy for a long time."

Neighbors Visiting Pittsburgh.

The following visitors from nearby towns were registered at Pittsburgh hotels yesterday:

Duquesne—Benj. H. Rose, H. P. Boyd, Parkersburg, W. Va.; E. L. Werner, Sharon.

Henry—Mr. and Mrs. George B. Drake, Waynesburg; Mrs. E. R. McKee, Chillicothe, O.; George M. Richards, Erie; E. T. Jeannot, Youngstown.

Monongahela—Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bostern, New Bethlehem; John L. Deems, Beever; Miss Grace Weaver, Morgantown, W. Va.; W. Forgie, Washington; B. F. Houtt, Fairmont, W. Va.

Victoria—Mr. and Mrs. E. Keller, Rochester, Seventh Avenue—W. C. Maclay, Altoona; E. J. Helms, Steubenville, O.; Ira Brant, Lisonier; George L. Pressey, T. E. Leyman, C. L. Seelee, Oil City; John H. Cook, R. A. Elliott, James Young, Hollidaysburg.

Pineapples. Pineapples now are at their best. They are cheap and will not be cheaper. Do not delay in buying from Somers Brothers Company, Nos. 444-446 Seventh avenue, corner Grant.

FRIARS ABSORB FULL ATTENTION OF PRESIDENT

Spends Greater Part of Sunday With Secretary Root Going Over the Question.

MUST LEAVE THE ISLANDS

Reply to the Vatican Will Soon Be Ready to Send to Gov. Taft—Officials Are Too Busy to Attend Church.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 13.—President Roosevelt and Secretary Root were so busily engaged today in the consideration of important subjects that neither one attended church.

Shortly before the morning services began at Christ Episcopal church Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by four children, Theodore, Jr., Archibald, Kermit and Ethel, arrived at the church in a trap from Sagamore hill. The edifice was thronged. The rector, the Rev. Dr. Washburn, made indirect reference to the assassination of Mr. McKinley by basing his sermon upon the last words of the late president: "The will, not ours, be done."

One of the important questions discussed by the president and Secretary Root was that relating to Gov. Taft's negotiations with the vatican respecting the Philippine friars. Both Mr. Roosevelt and the secretary deem it unwise that the friars should remain in the archipelago with the prestige they now possess. The attitude the friars assume is regarded not only as a menace to the peace of the islands, but also as an obstruction to the government and to the civilization of the inhabitants.

No statement of the conclusion reached by the president and Secretary Root could be obtained, but unofficially it is understood that a note is being drafted in response to that transmitted by the pope through Gov. Taft to the administration.

As Gov. Taft initiated the negotiations, it is entirely likely that the reply of this government will be sent to the vatican authorities through him. Ample assurance is given that the United States will take strong ground in support of its contention that the friars must go.

It is said absolutely that no official statement of any phase of the situation will be made public until the negotiations with the vatican have been concluded.

Miss Alice Roosevelt arrived here this evening shortly before 6 o'clock. She has been enjoying a brief sojourn at Camp Santinnoni, on Newcomb lake, in the Adirondacks, a few miles from the startling point of Mr. Roosevelt when he left the north woods for Buffalo after the death of President McKinley. Miss Roosevelt made the drive to the railroad station from the camp, a distance of 40 miles, in a buckboard, her driver being the same man who drove Mr. Roosevelt on that memorable midnight ride.

THERE'S A NEW COON AT ZOO AND HE IS WHITE

Albino Arrives from Near Moundsville and Two Babies Are New Attractions.

They have an Albino coon at the Highland park zoo and he was a center of attraction for the largest Sunday crowd of the summer yesterday. The sagacious little fellow was a bit shy and sleepy yesterday, and besides his recent coming into activity from Coon hollow, near Moundsville, W. Va., did not please him a bit. His ride was in a tin cage, consigned to Superintendent William Falconer, and his pale coal still bears the evidence of his first railroad jaunt.

They are talking of christening the newcomer "Payne," in honor of the "Coon" man of The Gazette, in case he brightens up so as to be worthy of the title. Prospects for this are good, as he has a good countenance, which, disregarding the pale eyes and coat, is not unlike that "same old coon" which usually appears on the first page of The Gazette early each November, and not unlike several of his kind appearing with more frequency.

The Albino coon disappointed the crowd yesterday by ignoring his visitors. His chief interest was the elephant, whom he scanned attentively each time the crowd parted so that he could get a peep at his great strange neighbor. The elephant ignored the coon. He, too, was a bit lazy yesterday. The keepers say he is brooding over the loss of members of his own family.

The past week was a rather eventful one at the zoo. A baby donkey arrived, becoming the sixth member of his family at the zoo. There is also what the ladies call the cutest, a baby elk, born last week. This makes an even two dozen of elks in the zoo colony. Both babies of the week are sprightly and promising.

The occupants of the cages were enlarged by two interesting contributions by Pittsburghers in the past week. T. Hord of East McKeesport sent a horned owl and G. C. Blackmore of No. 819 Sheridan avenue a small alligator.

LABOR LEAGUE STEPS INTO POLITICS AGAIN

Joseph H. Armstrong Indorsed for Legislature—Took Up Fight of Flour Teamsters.

The United Labor League of Western Pennsylvania took another fling at politics last night. By unanimous vote it indorsed the candidacy of Councilman Joseph H. Armstrong of the South Side for member of the legislature from the Fifth district. Mr. Armstrong is the Republican candidate from that district. He has been a stalwart in organized labor's affairs for a score of years, having been prominent in both organizations of the Window Glass Workers.

The league passed another set of resolutions indorsing the strike of the organized teamsters of the Pittsburgh Milling Company, who came out a few days ago with various grievances. Among the alleged grievances, it is said, the management of the company has not been paying for overtime, has caused the wagons to be overloaded and has failed to fulfill promises to pay the scale price of time and a half for overtime, sometimes failing to pay at all for this service.

The league in its resolutions urged all its constituency in organized labor and its friends to refrain from buying the product of the company till the strike is settled.

Fear Steeple Will Fall.

VENICE, July 13.—A rumor is in circulation here that the clock tower of the church of St. Mark is in danger of falling. A crack has been noticed in the stone work but the authorities declare there is no danger. The tower will be strutted, however, and the bells will be chimed less frequently.

HE HAS MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

INSANE TICKET AGENT MAKES TROUBLE FOR L COMPANY.

Refuses to Take Pay from Any One and Hands Out Small Coin and Bills to All His Customers—Is Now in the Bellevue Hospital.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—After having had all the teeth in his upper jaw pulled out, Henry Phillips, a ticket agent of the Manhattan elevated railroad, proceeded to give away money and tickets belonging to the company tonight until the entire lower West Side was hurrying to his station. Before the main body of the advancing army arrived he was taken to Bellevue hospital to be examined as to his sanity; but not before an inspector of the company, with rare presence of mind, had induced him to restore nearly half the amount that he had given away.

Phillips is 33 years old and unmarried. For some reason, of which he was unable tonight to give a coherent explanation, he went to Dr. Franklin Devenport today and had all his upper teeth extracted. When asked why he had caused this to be done, he said:

"Oh, it was all right. Some of the teeth were spotted and they were uneven, anyway. I wanted to have them out."

After leaving the dentist he went to work at 7 o'clock at the uptown station of the Sixth avenue line at Franklin street. Phillips first betrayed his condition to a shabby man who bought a ticket and offered a nickle in payment.

"Here, by good man, you don't have to pay for that," the agent said, pushing back the coin. "Take all the tickets you want. Take a handful."

He thrust a bunch of tickets through the window at the astonished passenger, who rushed aboard his train for fear there might be some mistake. Next came a respectable old gentleman, who also wished to purchase a ticket.

"Don't give me any money," said Phillips. "I don't need it at all. We are all in hard luck, more or less. Here, take this 50 cents."

The man fled to the platform, looking back over his shoulder to see if he were being pursued. To a pretty young woman who followed, the agent made some complimentary remarks, and then presented her with a $5 bill, which she accepted, smilingly.

Rumors of what was going on soon reached the street, and boys ventured upstairs to try their luck. They met with a kind reception, being given a handful of nickels and all the tickets they wanted. Then the police stopped it, all too soon for the crowd.

OVERTAKEN BY DAMP BUT RESCUED ALIVE

The Only Man in the Mine Beyond the Fatal Switch to Survive, Tells His Story.

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 13.—"It was more luck than good management," said Mike Klusde tonight, "that I ever escaped alive. I was the only man beyond the fatal switch in No. 1 heading, right, that escaped uninjured. The explosion occurred within 1,000 feet of where I was and I ran as I never ran before, and was out of the Klondike section when the afterdamp overtook me and I fell, but was later picked up by the rescuing party."

Klusde is a trapper, or inside switchman, who makes up the trains of coal cars which the compressed air motors then haul to the main shaft, where they are taken up by the cable and dragged out of the Westmont entrance. The trappers and driver of the mules that haul the cars from the rooms to the headings are practically the only ones who escaped from the mine uninjured. Out of the 185 employed in that portion of the mine affected, 115 are known to be dead, 18 of the injured survive, and, according to the story of Klusde, the only persons to get away were the trappers and drivers, who did not exceed 25 in all. Klusde said in regard to the matter:

"Almost all the trappers and drivers escaped, but no others passed me before I fell. The fire damp was close after me and overtook me just as I got out of the most dangerous part of the mine.

"The miners at work in the rooms had little or no chance to get away. The drivers and trappers were all in the headings and were minutes ahead of the workmen in getting the warning and flying. In spite of this, one driver was killed and nearly all of us were overcome, and saved only by the appearance of the rescue parties. All of us tried to save the injured, but most of the men were dead when we reached them.

"Of course, the mine officials know about the men in there, and I hope that only a few of them are in yet, but I cannot understand where some of them escaped, and they may find more dead than they expect, in nooks and corners.

"Yes, I always thought the mine was safe enough, and there was not so much gas as in other places; but there were danger signs posted. The Klondike workings were known to have some gas, but no one thought anything would happen.

"A blast could easily have caused the explosion, but I was not in No. 6, right, and do not know anything about what they were doing then. Blasting is often used to bring down the coal. I only know that I was almost the last to get out of the Klondike uninjured, and the men behind me were nearly all dead when found, and if there are any more there they will be dead, too."

Klusde overlooks the fact that stronger-lunged men may have passed after he fell unconscious.

DEFEND THE FRIARS.

Catholics of Grand Rapids Declare Against Their Expulsion.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., July 13.—A mass meeting of the Catholics was held here tonight to protest against the United States forcing the friars out of the Philippines. All the Catholic clergy, including Bishop Richter, attended. Resolutions were adopted in part as follows:

"Whereas, The friars, as a class, are unjustly maligned and are even threatened with expulsion and the spoliation of their property, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we, the bishop, clergy and Catholics of the city of Grand Rapids, Mich., as citizens of the United States, protest against all the wrongs and unjust acts perpetrated on our fellow Catholics in the Philippines."

KING AND CZAR MEET TO TALK DISARMAMENT

Hearty Reception Given Ruler of Italy Upon Arrival at St. Petersburg.

BANQUET AT THE PALACE

Anthems of the Two Countries Played by the Emperor's Band—Visit Expected to Mean Much for the Peace of Europe.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Petersburg, July 13.—Emperor Nicholas II., wearing the chain of the Order of the Annunziata; the czarewitch, the Russian grand dukes, Count Lamsdorff, the minister of foreign affairs, the other cabinet ministers and a number of officers greeted King Victor Emmanuel of Italy upon his arrival at the railway station here at 4:30 this afternoon.

Preceded by a band playing the Italian national anthem, a guard of honor escorted their majesties to the palace, where the czarina and dowager empress welcomed King Victor. A banquet was given in honor of the royal guest in the hall of Peter the Great in the palace, at which the cabinet ministers, the members of the Italian embassy and high court dignitaries were present. Count Lamsdorff, at the czar's command, handed to Signor Prinetti, Italian minister of foreign affairs, who accompanied the king on his arrival, the insignia of the Order of St. Alexander Newski.

The official papers extend to King Victor Emmanuel a sympathetic greeting declaring that the interests of Russia and Italy are antagonistic in no quarter whatever.

At the banquet the czar, in toasting the king, said:

"It is with lively and deep satisfaction that we greet your majesty and it is especially agreeable to us that your majesty has begun his travels by visiting us. The whole of Russia sees therein a fresh proof of the bonds of true friendship which unite us and identifies itself with our sentiments. These feelings of mutual sympathy which are increasingly apparent between our two peoples, favor the development of the most desirable relations and interests of the two countries."

Heavy Blast Causes a Woman's Death; Elks Now in Control at Beaver Falls

WOMAN KILLED BY HEAVY BLAST

Piece of Tie Strikes Mrs. Evans While She Is in Her Garden.

TWO HOUSES ARE DAMAGED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., July 13.—(Special.)—Last evening while blasting at the mound brick works too heavy a charge was put in and the railroad ties covering the hole were hurled with great force across the stream, smashing all the windows in a house opposite and knocking a big hole in the roof of another.

One tie broke in two, and a piece of it struck Mrs. Mary Ann Evans, who was out in her garden, injuring her so badly that she died a few hours afterward.

Mrs. Evans was the widow of the late John Evans, an engineer on the Fort Wayne railroad, who died about 13 years ago. She was 60 years old, and is survived by three daughters and one son. They are: Mrs. Adam Dickson, with whom she lived; Mrs. Christian Stengel of this place, Mrs. George Reger of Allegheny and Henry of Boston. She was the sister of Joseph Woods, a retired manufacturer of Bedford, Pa.; Thomas Woods of Crestline and Mrs. John Perrott of Bucyrus, O.

Cash Brothers Seek Fight With John Crawford and He Prepares Them for Burial.

CUMBERLAND, MD., July 13.—(Special.)—John Crawford, residing at what is known as "Hardscrabble," in West Virginia, is said to have killed two brothers named Cash. There had been bad feeling between Crawford and the Cash brothers for some time. The Cash brothers were at the home of a neighbor, and as Crawford was passing one of the Cash boys came out and said:

"Crawford, I have been wanting revenge for some time, and now I will have it."

Crawford pulled out a pistol and killed him instantly. Just then the other Cash boy made his appearance to meet a similar fate. Crawford then coolly helped to lay his victims out, after which he surrendered to an officer.

SHERIFF IS WORRIED.

Keeps Watch on W. M. Hahn at Mansfield, Though He Is Out Under Bond.

MANSFIELD, O., July 13.—Another hearing will be given William M. Hahn, ex-state insurance commissioner, in the circuit court this week. Following the circuit court decision, the case will be taken to the Ohio supreme court for a final rendering on the priority of Gov. Nash's warrant for extradition to New York over the local warrant on which the defendant is under arrest here.

While he has been at his suburban home near the city since his release from the county jail, Mr. Hahn has been under the surveillance of the sheriff, who, from the conflict of opinion of counsel and various orders seems to be at a loss regarding what he should do.

COKE COMPANIES USE ELECTRICITY

Contract for Power Made With the West Penn Company of Pittsburgh.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., July 13.—The West Penn Light, Heat and Power Company, a Pittsburgh organization, which has combined the electric light plants in Connellsville, Scottdale, Mt. Pleasant, Uniontown and Greensburg, has contracted with the H. C. Frick Coke Company and other coke concerns in the Connellsville region to furnish their coke plants with electric power.

The power is to be furnished from the company's central power station, which is being built at the foot of the Laurel Hill mountains, on the Youghiogheny river, beyond Connellsville. Electricity will be used to displace horse power and dinkey engines for charging the coke ovens and for hauling in the mines.

ATTACKED BY MANIAC.

Miner Who Lost Brother at Johnstown, Becomes Violently Insane and Is in Greensburg Prison.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., July 13.—Chief of Police Joseph Romer had a desperate fight with a maniac in the borough prison this morning. A miner from the Sewickley district was found raving in the streets early this morning. He talked in a rambling manner of the Johnstown disaster, of a brother who had probably lost his life by the explosion, and it is believed that the catastrophe lost him his reason.

Policeman Frank Folsom attempted to arrest the man and he chewed one of the officer's fingers almost off. He was placed in the prison, and when the chief opened the door to give him some water the maniac with a chair raised above his head bounded out. A hand-to-hand battle was waged for 10 minutes. Finally the maniac made a dash out of the door and started over the hill.

He was finally captured, and it required several blows from a mace of Office Folsom to quiet him.

STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 13.—The body of an unknown woman, aged about 35 years, evidently dead for five days, was found afloat in the Ohio river here today.

SHARON, PA., July 13.—Announcement is made that all mills of the Republic Iron and Steel Company will resume operations Monday under the Amalgamated scale.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., July 13.—John Yeagher, aged 14, accidentally shot himself through the head with a flobert rifle while hunting yesterday. He died at the Cottage hospital today.

WOOSTER, O., July 13.—Work is to start tomorrow on the plant of the Pocock Glass Company. It is expected that the works will be in operation by November 1. About 100 blowers will be employed.

SHARON, PA., July 13.—Mr. D. M. Forker of this city, who has been engaged in the iron business in Alabama for a number of years, lately as general manager of the Republic Iron and Steel Company's mills, has resigned.

GREENSBURG, PA., July 13.—The Greensburg Thiel college committee is greatly encouraged by the addition of $12,000 to its subscription on Saturday. Of that amount $500 came from Col. James M. Guffey of Pittsburgh. The committee now has $24,000.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., July 13.—The Chieftan Coal Company has been organized in Connellsville with a capital stock of $400,000. The incorporators are Worth Kilpatrick, Cyrus Echard, Capt. E. Dunn and Harry Dunn, Connellsville, and E. A. Humphries, Scottdale. The company owns 2,500 acres of coal and 200 acres of surface near Clarksburg, W. Va.

ELKS CONTROL BEAVER FALLS

Everything Ready for the Street Fair and Carnivel Opening Today.

BURGESS TO STEP DOWN

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, July 13.—The street fair and carnival under the auspices of B. P. O. Elks, lodge No. 348 of this place, will open here tomorrow and continue all this week. The most extensive preparations have been made for the event and if the weather holds good it will no doubt be the biggest affair ever held in the Beaver valley.

The merchants, business men and manufacturers have subscribed liberally and the citizens generally have lent a helping hand. The attractions arrived today and include 150 performers, a brass band, a lot of trained animals and all the tents, booths and other necessities.

Tomorrow will be taken up principally in completing the decorating and getting things in shape and a mass meeting will be held at which Burgess William Raymer will make an address and turn over the keys of the city to the Elks. Already strangers are beginning to come into town.

MAN IS FOUND DEAD WITH HIS MONEY GONE

Probable Murder and Robbery Is Being Investigated by Authorities at Latrobe.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LATROBE, PA., July 13.—Latrobe has added another to the already long list of tragedies that have happened near the Pennsylvania railroad viaduct spanning the Loyalhanna, between Latrobe and West Latrobe. At 4 o'clock this morning, Night Watchman McDowell found the body of Charles Campbell lying on the bank beside the track, with a gaping wound in the back of his head, and his right arm ground off.

An investigation showed that the man had probably been robbed and murdered and the body thrown on the track. Campbell's watch and $30 were gone and his pockets turned inside out. His hat and shoes were also missing.

UNDER THE TREES GUARDSMEN HEAR WORDS OF TRUTH

Khika-Clad Volunteers Turn Vocalists at the Call of Regimental Chaplains.

GREAT CROWDS IN CAMP

Troopers Hardly Have Time to Make Their Morning Toilets Before Visitors Begin to Arrive—Pleasant Day at Gettysburg.

By ROBERT WRAY,
Staff Correspondent.

Camp George G. Meade, Gettysburg, July 13.—Under the spreading branches of tall forest trees and in the open sunlight, the regiments of the division heard divine service this morning. Elaborate programs had been prepared by many of the regimental chaplains, and there were song services in which the singers were selected from among the guardsmen. The number of trained voices among them is surprising. Here and there among the big audience of khaki-clad men could be seen a representative of the fair sex, wives of guardsmen who have come to camp and a few local visitors who dropped in about the time services began.

Hardly had the smoke from the morning gun cleared away when the visitors began flocking into camp. They came by train, by trolley, by wagon and on foot. It would be hard to estimate how many there were, but 35,000 would be a conservative guess. For hours the roads from the two stations were a solid mass of sweltering humanity under clouds of dust. Teams were stopped for long periods solely because there was no room on the roads for them. A horseman, even, had difficulty threading his way through the solid ranks which filled the roads.

Beds Are at a Premium.

At the camp the people were soon engulfed among the company streets. All of the morning and all of the afternoon the procession continued and thousands of belated visitors who have missed their trains are tonight unable to get beds, as all the hotels are crowded to overflowing. During the day the people wandered at will, the only restrictions being at headquarters and the field officers' street in many of the regiments. Fakirs were lined up along the roads and gallons of pink lemonade and acres of pie indigenous to this country were eagerly devoured. Being Sunday army regulations forbid any other work than what is absolutely necessary, consequently only the regulation guards were on duty and the policing of the camp was the only work required. Many of the regimental commanders of the second brigade, however, held inspection of quarters, but as this ceremony only took a short time the men could not complain. The camps were found in excellent condition and the men's tents thoroughly policed.

The sun's rays were blazing hot today, but a strong breeze swept over south mountain. There were no cases of prostration reported and the hospitals were deserted by all but the medical corps. The health of the camp is excellent. There are about a dozen men reported sick, but their ailments are trifling. The discipline of the camp has been very good and the patrols have little to do in maintaining order.

Now for the Real Work.

The real work will begin in the morning. Drills of all kinds will be held and on Tuesday the annual inspection commences.

The inspection will last nearly three days. The first regiment will report at 7 a. m. and will be followed two hours later by another regiment. Owing to the injury received by Gen. Stewart last fall Col. Frank G. Sweeney will this year inspect the general appearance of the troops and the other officers of the inspector general's department will be assigned to inspect regimental drills, guard duty, extended orders and outpost duty. It is likely that the inspection will be continued on the lines of last year. In the regimental drills colonels will not be given a list of movements to execute, but instead will be told that they will have from 20 to 30 movements to demonstrate their knowedge of the drill regulations as applied to regimental manœuvers. In the extended order a problem will most likely be given. A point will be designated by the inspector and each colonel informed, for instance, that an enemy is intrenched there and the colonel will be directed to carry the position. The means the colonel uses to carry out the attack will be noted and the regiment rated accordingly.

The inspection will be conducted by each brigade inspector. The general inspection will be made by Col. Frank G. Sweeney, inspector general, under the direction of the adjutant general. The inspection will be closely watched by the regular officers sent here by the war department.

An interesting feature of the encampment will be the hospital drill of the United States hospital corps of Washington. The corps is in charge of Capt. Fred R. Reynolds and marched from Washington to Gettysburg. The drill will be held in the morning in front of division headquarters and will be witnessed by all the medical and other officers of the guard, besides the hospital corps of the division. During the drill the corps will demonstrate the building of field hospitals and show its utility in many other ways. At the close of the drill it will be inspected. It was on the suggestion of Lieut. Col. Joseph K. Weaver, division surgeon, that the corps was sent to Gettysburg so that a practical demonstration of the utility of the corps could be seen by the guard officers. Col. Weaver, who is acting as surgeon general in the absence of Col. John V. Shoemaker, who is in Europe, would have the hospital corps of the division formed into three companies and consolidated into a battalion. On Thursday this hospital corps will drill before Gov. Stone.

New Horse Equipments.

The staff and non-commissioned staff officers of the division were presented this morning with new russett leather horse equipments by Gen. Charles Miller. The equipments were made at the Harrisburg arsenal and are said to be the finest ever turned out there. Gen. Miller has also offered to the brigade quartermasters a prize of a set of the same kind of horse equipment for the brigade having the most uniform camp. A similar prize has been offered to the regimental quartermaster having the cleanest and neatest camp in his brigade. This prize is offered by Col. Thomas Potter of the governor's staff.

Governor's day will be on Thursday, but the program has not been finally settled. The governor will arrive in camp at 1:30 tomorrow morning. He will come from Harrisburg in a special train, and will be escorted by a squadron of cavalry to his quarters. Upon his arrival, one of the light batteries will fire a salute.

The first of the big ceremonies of the week was held just before sunset this evening, when there was dress parade, modeled upon the brigade dress parade of the old infantry tactics. There is nothing in the drill regulations now governing the army to provide for such a ceremony, but the brigade commanders all believe in holding up the old impressive ceremony. The brigades were formed in line of masses exactly similar to the formation for review, and from that formation the ceremony was carried through. The sight was particularly impressive on this famous battlefield.

Reviewed by Wylie.

Shortly after 5 o'clock long columns of khaki-clothed men marched out from the camp and formed in brigade grounds. The bands were consolidated and when the line of the Second brigade was trooped to the music of "Auld Laung Syne," the crowd broke out into applause. Gen. Wylie reviewed the parade, which was witnessed by Gen. Miller and his staff. The regiments were then marched past in review before the general.

In the early afternoon lectures on the battle field were delivered by the guides, Long and Minnigh, the former at Little Round Top and the latter at the Bloody Angle. Thousands of soldiers listened to both lectures. The lectures caused much enthusiasm among the men, and their officers say the description of the battlefield will have a lasting effect on young soldiers.

The kick over the bread and canned corn rations is ended, both contracts having been cancelled by Col. Robbins, commissary general. The bread was not only mouldy and doughey, but what there was that might have been used was burnt.

Col. James E. Barnett of the Tenth infantry announced tonight that he had offered the chaplaincy of his regiment to the Rev. H. W. Teaple of the First United Presbyterian church of Washington, Pa., and that the appointment would be made after the return of the regiment from Gettysburg.

Government Holds Bluefields.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA., July 13.—The director general of telegraphs of Nicaragua declares that Bluefields has not been taken by revolutionists, as has been reported. Government reports announce the capture, July 7, of a number of revolutionists near Bluefields.

TILLMAN STILL HOTLY FIGHTING HIS COLLEAGUE

Declares He Will Oppose McLaurin's Confirmation on Court of Claims.

EVEN IN OPEN SESSIONS

Intimates He Will Not Oppose His Rival for Some Other Place Not on the Bench, and Such a Berth May Be Substituted.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The end of the fight between Senators Tillman and McLaurin of South Carolina is not yet. Senator Tillman has registered a solemn vow that he will oppose on the floor of the senate his colleague's appointment to the United States court of claims bench. He furthermore says he will not confine his opposition to executive session behind closed doors, but intends to say in open senate, and say plainly, why his colleague should not be confirmed as a judge.

Mr. Tillman purposes to place in the Congressional Record all the allegations that have been made charging Senator McLaurin with betraying his party, in addition to his own personal criticism and his reasons for opposing Mr. McLaurin's confirmation for a life-long position. Friends of both senators now say that should Mr. Tillman carry out his threats it would only serve to renew the bitterness of the fight which last winter resulted in a hand-to-hand encounter on the floor of the senate while in session.

On this account, the president has been urged to give Senator McLaurin some position outside the judiciary, for Mr. Tillman has told his friends that he would not carry his opposition to an appointment that was not to the bench. The president is said to be considering this view of the situation, and some other appointment is not impossible. With the Democratic opposition against Senator McLaurin, it was said tonight there is grave doubt if he could be confirmed as a judge of the court of claims.

OIL FUEL FOR WARSHIP.

Naval Men Eagerly Watching for Lieut. Winchell's Report of the Mariposa Experiment.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—(Special.)—On the result of a 7,300-mile voyage of the oil-burning steamer Mariposa, which will leave San Francisco on Tuesday for Tahiti, Society Islands, will depend much in the future of oil in naval engineering. All officers in the navy who have given the matter any attention will watch eagerly for the report of Lieut. W. P. Winchell, who has been detached from the Boston and ordered to observe the results of the trial of the Mariposa, which may determine that oil is an improvement upon coal when burned in the proper manner. He will be aboard the vessel during the entire trip.

It is the intention of Rear Admiral Melville of the bureau of steam engineering to have a war vessel fitted with an oil plant and given a thorough service trial subject to all the danger of explosions which are more likely to occur in a warship than a merchant vessel. The gases generated by burning powder, the noxious fumes of smoke, and even the odors from the extensive cooking galleys of a modern battleship, are such that the chemical effect of contact with the fumes of crude petroleum might cause an explosion.

Careful attention must be given in the case of warships to the stowage of oil fuel. Lack of proper ventilation will be disastrous. Only recently Lieut. Commander Edwards of the bureau of steam engineering, who has been conducting extensive experiments with Beaumont and California oil under an appropriation granted by congress, learned of a case in which the tanks had not been properly ventilated. The effect was such that the oil fumes penetrated the full thickness of a steel deck. Such an occurrence in time of battle would be fatal. It is thought this may be avoided if the tanks are nickled.

Falls Under a Tedder.

WOOSTER, O., July 13.—(Special.)—A horse hitched to a hay tedder ran away on Jacob Brenneman's farm early last evening. Brenneman tried to stop the animal and was thrown under the machine. When he was taken out of the wrecked machine his body from head to feet was found to be literally picked to pieces. Brenneman is crazed with pain. He will probably die.

Rathbone Among His Friends.

CINCINNATI, July 13.—E. G. Rathbone, late director-general of posts in Cuba, arrived here today and was met during the day by many of his old neighbors. He will go to his former home at Hamilton, Tuesday, and later he will join his family in Western New York. He declined to be interviewed.

MINERS IN WALES PREPARE FOR MOVE TO AID STRIKERS

Object to Shipment of Coal to America to Take Place of Anthracite.

IT WILL BE DISCUSSED AT THE LABOR CONGRESS

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, July 13.—Unless the coal strike is settled in the meantime, significant action on the subject will be taken by the Miners' Federation of Great Britain and Ireland, the most powerful labor body in the country, some time this month. The federation's deliberations may result in the beginning of an international labor combine.

As a result of the coal strike in the states large orders for anthracite coal have been received at Cardiff, and it is reported that 10,000 tons of this class of coal were shipped last week. The Welsh colliery owners, anticipating trouble with the colliers and coal porters if it came to their knowledge that the coal was being shipped to America for the purpose of fighting the strikers there, kept the destination of the steamer a secret. In many cases steamers other than those that were known by the workmen to be employed in transatlantic transport were chartered. The scheme leaked out and the men showed a great deal of dissatisfaction when they discovered that they were being deceived. Many of them threatened to strike, but the majority insisted on referring the matter to the officials of their respective unions before any definite steps should be taken.

The coal workers of America and those of England do not appear to be affiliated. It is believed, however, that an issue has been raised that will be discussed at the next meeting of the trades union congress, which will be held here in September, at which delegates will be present from America.

Without waiting for the congress the miners' federation will discuss the situation with the view of hurrying on a consolidation of forces between American and English coal workers.

REMEMBERS ALL ABOUT IT.

Young Woman Temporarily Insane in Texas Hails from New York.

TERRELL, TEX., July 13.—The young woman, Miss Ada Barker, who was brought to the State Insane asylum here by the sheriff of El Paso county a week ago in a supposedly demented condition, has so far recovered that she remembers having left her home in New York during the latter part of May for the Galveston carnival.

After reaching Galveston Miss Barker's mind is a blank until within the last few days. The young woman was well supplied with money on leaving New York and still retains a portion of it. She has written relatives in New York apprising them of her whereabouts and condition.

Physicians pronounce her case one of double consciousness or recurrent dementia.

GAY DAY IN PARIS OPENS ANNUAL FETE

Celebration of Bastile Day Began in Advance Because of Fine Weather.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARIS, July 13.—While the official observance of the fete nationale on the anniversary of the fall of the bastile does not begin until tomorrow, Parisians today took advantage of the fine cool weather to begin the celebration with pilgrimages of the Alsatian and other patriotic societies to place wreaths upon the statue of Strassburg in the Place de la Concorde and upon the monuments to Jeanne D'Arc and Gambetta.

The city everywhere is gay with bunting, and numerous American and Russian flags are mingled with the French tri-color. The principal streets and boulevards were thronged throughout the afternoon and upon the approach of evening the proprietors of many cafes and wine shops set tables in the streets, which were soon occupied by diners.

As darkness gathered open-air balls were started around the bandstands which had been erected in every available space, and these are now in full swing with every prospect of continuing until dawn.

Another Yankee Invasion.

BERLIN, July 13.—A private dispatch from Warsaw says the agricultural societies of Poland are negotiating with American manufacturers direct for the purchase of machinery, excluding the German middlemen. Several newspapers publish the above dispatch as illustrative of the efforts of Americans to supplant German manufacturers.

Saharet Taken Ill.

BERLIN, July 13.—The Australian dancer Saharet, while en route from St. Petersburg for New York to begin a long engagement in the United States, was attacked by peritonitis, and is now dangerously ill at the Westminster hotel in this city.

THREE DROWNED.

Floods Continue to Do Great Damage in Kansas—Kaw River Breaks Its Banks.

TOPEKA, KAN., July 13.—The Kansas river at this place is yet slowly rising. One of the piers of the street railway bridge has given way and traffic over the line has been abandoned. Three persons were drowned near Silver Lake today, their carriage being washed from a bridge. The Santa Fe has not yet succeeded in fully repairing the damage to the road at Lakeview, but the trains probably will be running again tomorrow.

LAWRENCE, KAN., July 13.—Ninety feet of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad track at Lakeview were washed away today by water rushing into the old river bed from the Kaw river. The previous break in the track across the eastern arm of the lake just formed had not been remedied and a work train was caught between the two breaks without coal or water.

The country east of the lake is badly flooded and many families are moving out. The river here is three inches higher than it was yesterday. It broke through its north bank a mile north of here today, and is now giving the Union Pacific railroad cause for alarm.

WITH HER HANDS WOMAN STRANGLES AN AGED JEWELER

Ghastly Murder Committed to Escape Payment for a Few Trinkets.

LITTLE CHILD GIVES THE CHIEF EVIDENCE

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, July 13.—From Buda Pesth comes the story of a particularly ghastly murder committed by a woman of 26. Her name is Esther Petroff and she is unusually strong. Her victim was an old jeweler of over 50, named Erdeyl, from whom she bought some trinkets a while ago on the instalment plan.

The woman was behind with her payments and Erdeyl went to her little shop to try to get his money. While they were arguing the matter the woman suddenly leaped on the old jeweler, and, in spite of his struggles, threw him back on a bed, when she choked him to death with her hands.

She took an immense knife and cut the body to pieces as well as she could, after which she rolled the members up in an old shawl and put the bundle in her baby carriage. Then she trundled the carriage out into the suburbs of the town and hid its contents in a deserted house.

Some men working nearby saw the woman, whom they did not recognize, enter and leave the house, and, growing suspicious made a search, which resulted in the discovery of the jeweler's hacked-up remains. The Petroff woman was not suspected of his murder, however, until a 3-year-old child came forward and described every detail of the crime, which she had seen from an upper window across the street.

IS A QUIET PRINCE.

Next Ruler of Siam to Come to America in Very Simple Style. Educated in England.

NEW YORK, July 13.—It is learned from authoritative sources that the crown prince of Siam will come to the United States in the same simple manner that he has visited King Edward and the various continental rulers, accompanied only by his brother, the next in succession to the crown prince, and two aides de camp, officers in the Siamese army.

The crown prince is in his 22d year and for more than eight years has lived in England. He has been educated at Oxford, is president of the Cosmopolitan club of that university and is most simple and unaffected in his manner.

He will call on the president and secretary of state officially, either in Washington or such other place as the American authorities may designate.

Defective Flue Again—A poorly constructed chimney caused a fire last night at the house of Mrs. Mary Kerr of Tecumseh street and engine company No. 13 was called out.

Played Craps on Sunday—James Eiben of No. 92 Pius street was arrested at South Eighteenth street and Larkins alley yesterday for playing craps. His companions got away.

Mrs. O'Brien's House Raided—Police Lieut. Milton Bailey raided the house of Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, No. 9 Poplar alley, yesterday and arrested Mrs. O'Brien and four of her visitors.

House Said to Be Disorderly—Mrs. Bridget Connors of Bates street was locked up yesterday by Police Lieut. Edward McPoland in the Oakland police station on the charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Fight in a Boarding House—With black eyes and cuts and bruises on their faces and heads Samuel Dabrich, George Shobrich and R. Barich were arrested in their boarding house, No. 1524 East Ohio street, Allegheny, last night and locked up. They had had a general fight.

Arrested for Gambling—An alleged gambling house kept at No. 40 Chestnut street by Thomas Oppenheimer, was raided last night by Inspector Fred Will and Capt. G. B. McClelland. The proprietor and eight visitors were arrested and locked up in No. 2 police station.

Fire in the Diamond—Somebody saw smoke issuing last evening from the basement of "Billy" Hammel's German restaurant in Diamond street, below Wood, and sent in an alarm. The firemen put out the fire before it caused any damage. A pile of rubbish in the cellar had caught fire somehow.

Ninth Annual Reunion—The ninth annual reunion of the Ancient Order of United Workmen and Degree of Honor of Western Pennsylvania, will be held at Rock Springs park, Chester, W. Va., on Thursday, July 17. A train will leave the Union station at 8 a. m., city time, and the first train from the park in the evening will leave at 7 p. m.

Knocked Out by a Septuagenarian—James Lappan of Center avenue, 70 years old, was released on $300 bail yesterday to await a hearing before Magistrate John H. Armstrong on the charge of assault and battery. It is said that Lappan knocked down Joseph Carr of South Twenty-second street on Penn avenue, broke his jaw and hurt his head. Carr is at St. Francis hospital.

Afraid of Another Explosion—The citizens of Carnegie are passing around a petition asking the Atlantic Refining Company to remove its oil tank cars located a block from the railroad station. The company has a number of cars stored there and the citizens fear a repetition of the Sheraden disaster, as the scores of locomotives passing the cars every day may set fire to the oil.

Right of Way for Telephones—At Saturday's meeting of the council of Turtle Creek borough the ordinance granting the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Telephone Company the right to erect poles and lines passed third reading. Burgess John A. Clugston vetoed the ordinance vacating Thompson street and the veto was sustained.

Thrown from a Car—George Smith of East Pittsburgh fell off the running board of a Frankstown avenue car last night. The car was crowded, all the seats being taken, and the space between the seats of the car and the running board being filled. Smith, who was painfully hurt, was taken to the West Penn hospital in a patrol wagon.

Colfax School Teachers—The Colfax sub-district school board, Twenty-second ward, has elected the following corps of teachers: J. K. Ellwood, principal; Margaret A. Frew, Mary E. Davis, Alice E. Smith, Anna A. McConnell, Lelia Dickson, Bessie McKelvy, Mamie J. Frew, Nell McGuire, Nellie Bennett, Edna Ellwood and Sarah Frew. Lena Paulus, Anna James, Emma Notz and Letitia McGovern were elected substitutes.

Another Carnegie Station—Next Thursday evening the Mt. Washington branch of the Carnegie library will open a deposit station at the Bartholomew Drug Company's store, at Washington and Allen avenues. The deposit station will be open for the loan and return of books every Thursday evening, between 7 and 9 o'clock. This is the third deposit station to be opened, the Hazelwood branch library and the Lawrenceville branch each giving one.

Said to Have Wronged Young Girl—Stephen Mill of No. 43 Pius street, South Side, was committed to jail yesterday by Magistrate David J. McGarey on a serious charge preferred by Police Inspector William McShane in behalf of Mary Vogtun, an 18-year-old Polish girl. On Friday night Officer Bart Carmody picked the girl up on the street and at No. 7 police station, where she was sent, she told her story. Mill took her to his home, she says, and she was afterwards driven out by his wife. Mill denies all serious details of her charges.

Holdens Remain Obdurate—Alderman W. D. Mansfield of McKeesport expects to have the Holden cruelty case before him again today, in some form, as the children have refused to provide for the aged couple, and they are about to be dispossessed on a landlord's warrant. Last Friday Edward, George and Alfred Holden, sons of William and Frances Holden, were held for court under $300 bail on the charge of cruelty to their parents, preferred by Samuel F. O'Brien, agent of the Humane society. As they still refuse to aid their parents, it is possible that the city authorities will have to provide for them temporarily.

Arrest Led to a Strike—The bricklayers and carpenters employed on the new addition to the storeroom of the Westinghouse airbrake works in Wilmerding struck Saturday. Albert Smithena, a bricklayer, was stopped by Watchman James Foreman and not allowed to go through the gate to the works because he showed no check. There was a fight and Foreman had Smithena arrested. The bricklayer refused to pay the fine levied by the burgess and was locked up, and the bricklayers and carpenters went on strike, insisting that the company pay Smithena's fine. Smithena finally paid his fine and the men will probably go back to work today.

Indignation Is Being Shown—The councilmen of Wilkinsburg are being blamed for their apparent disinterestedness in the matter of securing a site for the $50,000 library donated by Andrew Carnegie to that town. An indignation meeting is threatened unless some definite action is taken soon. A committee was appointed several months since to report on the most available location, but up to date has failed to agree. All the available sites have been optioned by the realty dealers, and this committee cannot agree as to who should get the plum. It is argued that the realty men should not get large profits from the town just because it must get a site.

ATLANTIC CITY.

Jewish Chautauqua Discusses Religious Educational and Immigration Problems.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 13.—(Special.)—A popular conference was the feature of today's session of the Jewish Chautauqua assembly and the meeting was the most generally interesting thus far held. "Jewish University Students—Their Attitude Toward Jewish Problems," was the topic of discussion, the principal speakers being the Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Simon Wendkos, University of Pennsylvania, '04; Dr. Charles S. Bernheimer, University of Pennsylvania, '87; Gerson B. Levi, University of Pennsylvania, '99, and Dr. Charles S. Rubenstein of Baltimore. Leo N. Levi, University of Virginia, '76, was the presiding officer.

"The Jewish Immigration, Religious and Educational," was the problem mainly discussed and some of the speakers were remarkably frank in their statements, one of them declaring that the rabbis of the Ghetto were deaf, dumb and blind to the necessities of the situation. Strong arguments were made in favor of organized effort along Jewish educational lines and also in favor of organization of congregations and Jewish students' leagues in the large cities. In the general discussions which followed some exceptions were taken to several of the statements made by students as being too far removed from the old tenets of the faith.

A Japanese Prince in Town.

Still another foreign notable has arrived here, and he ranks as a prince. The titled visitor is Dr. S. Gato, a relative of the mikado of Japan and of the governor of the island of Formosa. The prince is accompanied by K. Oshima, a chemist in the employ of the United States government; Dr. Ignazo Nitabe, an official of the Japanese department of agriculture, and two secretaries, all of whom are at the Dennis. The prince refused to be interviewed by the newspaper correspondents, but authorized one of his secretaries to say that he is in the United States on business and came to the shore for a few days' rest.

Belated Fourth Fireworks.

The patriotic citizens of Pleasantville, six miles from this city, had arranged a pyrotechnic display for the night of the glorious Fourth, but the fireworks did not arrive until yesterday. Believing it is better late than never, the people got together last night and celebrated Independence Day.

Porpoise Leaps Into a Yacht.

The yacht Chalfonte of the inlet fleet ran into a school of porpoises this afternoon a short distance out at sea, and one of them jumped into the cockpit of the yacht. Before it could be captured it leaped back into the ocean.

CHAUTAUQUA.

Dr. Whitman Preaches of Salvation as Applied to Personality.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 13.—(Special.)—Saturday night brought an unusual number of visitors to Chautauqua for over Sunday.

Dr. B. L. Whitman of the Fifth Baptist church of Philadelphia preached the morning sermon. He took for his text "Salvation," but it was no old-time exhortation, such as the subject might indicate. It was rather a psychological discussion of the philosophy of life. He said:

"When we make a study of life in all its phases, we find it is a larger and richer thing than we expected, and our interpretation of it is determined by the general setting of our lives. Every one has his own philosophy of life, from the wildest boy to the holiest of saints. Every person is made up of many selves. There is the physical self, the self that eats and drinks; and the intellectual self that thinks and knows. There is the moral self, the social self, the political self, as many selves as there are groups of human interests.

"The first task in the building up of the personality is to decide which one of the many selves shall have the right of way; which one shall rule and be crowned king. The self that can be hurt the worst, you will find is the real self, the dominant self. Around this all the others group, and to it all pay tribute. Life is ruled for good or evil, and we come, then, to the inevitable antithesis.

"All interests fall at last into two groups, the higher and the lower. The saving of the better self is bound up with the higher group. The narrow, selfish, mean, devilish man loses all that is best for him, even his own soul. He who says, let come to the flesh what will, I will keep my ideals pure and live by them, is safe, even though he dies by the scaffold or is burned at the stake; but when once the soul has been given to God by choice of the higher, a new miracle of grace is wrought and the soul learns that the lower is also destined to divine use."

No Tax for Strikers.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 12.—At a meeting today of the Archdiocesan Catholic Total Abstinence union the board of governors was authorized to exempt from the payment of the percentage tax for 1901-1902 all societies in the coal regions that are in financial difficulty by reason of the mine workers' strike.

AN ITALIAN WITH A RAZOR DOES BLOODY WORK

Young Men at Braddock Interfered With Returning Picnic Party.

DESARO RAN FOR LIFE

Supposed to Be the One Who Slashed Cyrus Masters in a Manner That May Result Seriously—Other Excursionists Alarmed by Collision.

About 35 young Americans and over 100 Italians engaged in a fierce and bloody riot just after a boat excursion party of the Italians arrived at the Ninth street landing in Braddock at 7:30 o'clock last night. Probably a score of men were more or less injured. Three of the principals in the crowd of Americans sustained ugly wounds about the head and face. The following are the more severely injured:

CYRUS MASTERS of Braddock, 23 years old; cut to the bone from the crown of his head to the left side of his mouth. The attending surgeon took a score of stitches to close the wound, and serious complications may follow.

"BUD" MASTERS of Pittsburgh, brother of Cyrus, 25 years old, sustained a deep, ugly gash at the back of his neck, about two inches long, and was otherwise bruised.

W. C. LITTLE of the Twelfth ward, Pittsburgh; badly cut about the arms, supposedly with a razor.

KNIGHT M'NUTT of Braddock; cut over the hands and face with a razor while attempting to aid Cyrus Masters.

HENRY SOUDD of Pittsburgh, 25 years old; nose broken and face badly cut by being hit with a brick.

Hard Work to Quell the Riot.

Police were on the scene promptly and had hard work to quell the riot. Chief William Bennett gave chase for Andy Desaro, the Italian who is supposed to have started the riot by bringing into play a razor. It was he who is alleged to have so cowardly cut Cyrus Masters, after which he fled and the general fight followed.

All manner of improvised weapons were brought into play. Bricks were hurled in all directions and other missiles filled the air for a short time.

The landing was strewn with blood, and the first news of the conflict that passed through Braddock was that murder had been committed.

Chief of Police William Bennett established, he believes, that it was Desaro who made the first onslaught with the razor. Desaro is a barber, and he was traced to the Italian colony in Rankin, where Chief Bennett lost his trail. The chief declares, however, that he will apprehend his man, and officers in Pittsburgh and the towns and boroughs about Braddock have been called on to watch for him.

Ate Ice Cream with Their Hands.

The vicious slash of the razor was brought about by Masters and the crowd he was with confiscating an ice cream freezer that had been placed on the landing by the Italians. The Americans were helping themselves to the cream with their hands. As soon as the Italian struck Masters, he turned and ran and several of Masters' associates gave a futile chase. Masters' wound is a frightful one. Dr. D. F. Price, who dressed it, had to take about 30 stitches to close it, and if there are no more serious results he will be disfigured for life.

It was the members of the Frank DePoli society of Braddock Italians who were mixed in the fight. They had had a boat excursion up the Monongahela river and when the boat landed at Ninth street in the evening the Masters' crowd was there and bent on mischief. The Italians were unloading the remains of their feast afloat and when an ice cream freezer was put down Masters and his chums made it their plunder to the extent of helping themselves to the frozen delicacy with their hands.

A broken razor was picked up on the dock when the fight was over. This is supposed to have been dropped by the Italian who started the cutting.

Other Excursionists in a Collision.

Another party of Braddock excursionists was thrown into panic by an accident at 5 o'clock at the Tenth street landing. They had been out on the Beauty and when the boat was being moored it brought up with terrific force against the towboat D. T. Watson, which held a tow of coal barges.

Both boats were badly broken alongside. The damage to them will amount to about $2,000. The coal barges broke loose, but was recovered a short distance down the river. None of the excursionists or boat crews were injured.

In the panic which ensued one unknown woman jumped overboard and was rescued by firemen, using ropes from a steep declivity. Nearly all aboard the Beauty were thrown off their feet, most of them standing up in readiness for the landing. Several women tried to jump overboard, but were held back by other passengers.

SLAVISH-HUNGARIAN RIOT AT LEETSDALE

Once Again This Mixture of Foreigners Leads to Sunday Bloodshed and Disorder.

Another Sunday riot occurred near the Riter-Conley Manufacturing Company works at Leetsdale yesterday afternoon in a crowd of about 200 Slavs and Hungarians, who held a picnic there. It was one of those outbursts so frequent in such mixed meetings of these foreigners and a number of the participants were severely injured.

At 10 o'clock last night a constable of Leet township brought two of the rioters to the Allegheny Central police station and had them locked up. They are charged by Stanley Stemrock, before Justice of the Peace Nathan Buckley of Leet township, with disorderly conduct. The names on the warrant are John Smith and John Jones, but it would be hard to make the men understand a clear English pronunciation of them. The constable expressed suspicion that the names were not real.

Both men have badly cut and bruised faces. They cannot speak English and little could be learned from them as to the riot.

The constable said a hundred of the picnickers were fighting at once and many were badly hurt.

Two Boys Drowned.

DETROIT, July 13.—Two boys, Anthony Rukano, aged 16, and Adolph Budelier, aged 18, residents of this city, were drowned today in Cass lake, about 25 miles from here. The boat began leaking and finally tipped over before they could reach shore.

HOFFSTOT BACK TO TAKE UP BIG DEAL

FRESH EFFORT TO FORM $89,500,000 CAR CONSOLIDATION.

There Has Already Been a Hitch on Terms, the Pressed Steel Car Company People Demanding $50 Value on Their Common Shares.

President F. N. Hoffstot of the Pressed Steel Car Company is back from Europe and this week negotiations will be resumed looking to the consolidation of his company with its $25,000,000 stocks and $4,500,000 bonds, and the American Car and Foundry Company with $60,000,000 capital stock. The matter has been practically left alone in the absence of Mr. Hoffstot. He arrived at New York on Saturday.

The deal thus far has been impeded by the leading officials of both companies failing to arrive at a basis for an exchange of securities for the new combination, in which it is proposed to make the American Car and Foundry Company the investor interest.

The Pressed Steel Car Company people are said to have held out for a value of at least $50 per share on their common stock and the American Car and Foundry Company people wanted their common stock, or the new common stock to be issued, to go in on a parity to this.

Jacob Rubino, representing his own and the interests of J. B. Haggin, the copper king, in the Pressed Steel Car Company, and both of whom are heavily interested in the American company, Mr. Haggin being a director, has been keeping the consolidation scheme alive in Mr. Hoffstot's absence, although not undertaking to bring it to a crucial point. No underwriting interest has as yet been dealt with. There was nothing done at the recent annual meeting of the American company in relation to the consolidation scheme. Some of those in interest now question that a deal can be closed, although both sides took it up in the first place with the avowed purpose of not haggling over small margins on the terms.

Miss Burnham Goes to Wellesley.

BIG TIME AT M'KEESPORT.

Carnival of the Elks Opens Today With a Monster Parade—Other Features Numerous.

The Elks' carnival at McKeesport will open today. Today's big feature will be the monster parade and demonstration which takes place this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The route will cover all the principal streets of the city and it is expected that several thousand, including all the military and secret organizations of the city, will be in line.

The carnival will be held in Water street and the whole of the Youghiogheny river front will be taken up by the carnival attractions and the various merchants' booths. The carnival will be opened by Mayor R. J. Black and the city for one week will be given up to hilarity. Extra police precautions will be taken and good order will be kept.

Many strangers are already in the city and many thousands more are expected to come in when the carnival gets fairly started.

BODY FOUND IN LAKE.

James McBrier, Jr., Lost from One of His Father's Vessels.

ERIE, PA., July 13.—(Special.)—A telegram from Sault Ste. Marie informed Erie relatives of the finding of the body of James McBrier, Jr., in the lake off that port. The body was identified by letters found in the pockets. The dead man is a son of James McBrier, president of the Ball Engine works, and a prominent boat owner of this city.

The young man had been working on the steamer Seveona, one of his father's boats. He was evidently lost overboard on the trip down and the Seveona has not yet reached a port to report.

Salisbury's Retirement.

The retirement of Salisbury from the British premiership is the happening of the expected. It has been for a long time understood that he only awaited the termination of the South African war to cast off the cares of office and seek the quietness of private life for the few days that remain to him. Salisbury is an old man and physically weakened by age and disease. It is said also that he has been failing mentally, and neither mind nor body are now equal to the direction of the vast concerns of the British empire. But his influence will be felt while his successor holds the reins, which may be not long. Balfour is Salisbury's nephew and was trained by him. So far as he is able and so long as he is able he will continue the general line of his uncle's policy. In his succession to the premiership the power of the great office returns to the commons, and whether he retains it or it passes to another, unless, indeed, some unexpected contingency brings Rosebery to the front, in the commons it is likely to remain. Except Rosebery there is no other peer who has shown qualities equal to the requirements of the office, and many doubt whether his velvet glove contains the iron hand needed to hold the lever.

There are factions in the British cabinet and differences among its members that may lead to a speedy reorganization. Chamberlain and Balfour are rivals, and the continued service of the Birmingham manufacturer under the aristocratic nephew of the late premier may be doubted. His retirement might mean a disruption of the alliance between the Unionist handful and the Conservative party and result in new alignments in British politics. But there seems now little chance for the Liberals. They are a leaderless aggregation of units, with little cohesiveness. Their most conspicuous figure, Lord Rosebery, is in theory rather than in practice a Liberal—somewhat after the fashion of the present duke of Devonshire, who found it no hard matter after his split with Gladstone to go into a Conservative cabinet and conform to all the traditions of Conservatism.

It is time for British dissatisfaction with the mediocrity of British statesmanship to develop new leadership. Or failing that, the audacity of Chamberlain may wrest power from weaker hands.

Settling the Canal Question.

During the debates in the United States senate on the interoceanic canal project much was made by opponents of the Panama route of a contract between the old Panama Canal Company and the new Panama Canal Company, by the terms of which the new company was to pay to the receiver of the old company 60 per cent of the net revenues of the canal after completion. The questions involved in this contract, which it was feared might have proved an embarrassment to the United States, have been adjusted by an agreement between the new company and the receiver for the old company, under authorization of the court that appointed the receiver. This agreement has been filed with the department of justice at Washington. By its terms the old company will receive $24,500,000 of the $40,000,000 to be paid by the United States in case of purchase, and the new company will receive $15,500,000. The adjustment outlined is a full settlement of all claims of the old company against the new.

This disposes of one leading objection to the Panama route, and the principal remaining obstacle, not involving physical considerations, now to be smoothed out is the relationship of perpetual control of the United States over the canal strip to the sovereign jurisdiction of Colombia. It is at present engaging the attention of the governments of the United States and of Colombia, and the difficulties of the case probably look large to the Colombian statesmen, and, viewing the matter from their standpoint, their importance is not to be lightly underestimated. But if the United States is to connect the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific it must be accorded a control over the banks of the canal and the termini that will leave merely nominal sovereignty to the government through whose territory the waterway is made.

The question between the two Panama canal companies was simple compared with the remaining question of governmental jurisdiction, but it intrudes in a somewhat more complicated form in the Nicaragua route. Doubtless, however, concession by the United States of an appearance of sovereignty that will "save the face" of the government granting jurisdiction will ultimately be accepted, along with a cash consideration as a satisfactory settlement.

The Passing of Wu.

The versatile Wu Ting Fang, Chinese minister to the United States, is at last superseded. His successor is Sir Liang Chen Tung, secretary of the embassy to the coronation of King Edward. The American people will be sorry to learn that Minister Wu is to leave them. His genius and versatility have endeared him to every one with whom he has come in contact and his ready acceptance of American customs and absorption of western learning have made us appropriate him to ourselves and adopt him as our own. While we have been amused by his looping the loop and his ping-pong and other experiences, and his perennial celestial frankness, we have at all times, at heart, taken him seriously and esteemed him at his true value. Americans will never forget and the world ought not to forget that it was through him that the American secretary of state was able to unseal the mystery of Peking and obtain the first authentic news from the beleaguered legations, holding out against the Boxers and the Chinese government. How much China owes to Wu because of this and flowing from it we can only guess, and he has undoubtedly been potent in the councils of Secretary Hay, who has forced from the European powers concessions to China for which the rulers of that country should indeed be grateful. Wu is the ablest man of his race to be Chinese minister to the United States, and none abler or more influential has served the celestial empire at any capital. If China puts her trust in Wu she will not go wrong in her relations with the rest of the world, but it is a great deal to hope that she will be wholly wise in this particular.

The Friars May End a Dilemma.

When the government, with the cooperation of the vatican, secures the friars' lands in the Philippines, and when the parishes formerly under the jurisdiction of these monastics pass into other hands, as is promised at Rome, the friars will be without occupations. Such a condition ought to speedily and naturally settle the one point on which the committee of cardinals and the pope have not met American expectations. The Roman authorities do not feel able to grant the request for the withdrawal of the friars, and the American government cannot order their expulsion unless they commit some act inimical to good order. The reason the withdrawal of the friars is desirable is historic. It is not based on their conduct under American rule, but on their status in the islands and their attitude toward the people during the Spanish regime. This was such that their restoration to their former parishes would be an incitement to popular violence, while their mere presence in the islands is the occasion for popular distrust and resentment. Catholic France has been equal to wholesale suppression of religious orders within her territory, but the United States guarantees freedom to all religions, and to imitate France would be a violation of the letter of American laws and the spirit of American institutions. But with their occupations gone and their usefulness at an end the natural course for the Philippine friars is to seek new fields of usefulness and thus end the governmental dilemma. They may even come to the United States. The way is open and there is no barrier up against them. If no other points of difference develop it is probable the differences arising from the continuance of the friars where they are not wanted by their co-religionists and where their power for good is at an end will soon adjust themselves by voluntary emigration.

To Prevent Mine Disasters.

Mine disasters invariably provoke discussion as to the enactment of more stringent regulations governing the industry. The laws have been amended from time to time, and as they now stand a rigid system of inspection is supposed to exert its influence to prevent accidents similar to that which has so recently wrought a harvest of death in the mines of the Cambria Steel Company at Johnstown. But the first feeling of horror over the terrible disaster has not been allowed to pass before the same old clamor about new laws for the prevention of mine accidents is to the fore. Certainly if it be possible to frame a law by which the mining industry of the state may be saved these constantly recurring calamities it is worth while to give the subject not only discussion, but such unanimous backing that will see it put upon the statute books at the first opportunity. But in spite of new laws on the subject and in spite of the system of mine inspection, the accidents continue. The great trouble in the past, and we doubt not the principal difficulty that will confront the investigation into the Cambria horror, has been to rightfully place responsibility. If the explosion in the Cambria mine was due to gross negligence on the part of the mine owners, and that fact shall be clearly demonstrated, it will go a long way toward crystalizing the demand for legislative enactment in the shape of a liability law.

Should, however, the fact be developed that carelessness or absolute recklessness on the part of a miner brought about the explosion, as now alleged, no law bearing upon the mine owner will reach the trouble, except in an indirect way, causing him to use greater care in the selection of the men whom he sends into his mines, and it can be easily seen how flimsy a protection this would be, no matter how well carried out.

The subject of more stringent mining laws is not one into which excited opinion may be safely injected. There are immense interests at stake of life and of property. It is idle to suppose that willful disregard of these is practiced, either by the mine owners or by the miners themselves. In so far as law may be effective in reducing the possibility of carelessness on both sides it should be wisely and dispassionately considered.

American Diplomatic Characteristics.

Although the pope jestingly declared that the vatican's prompt handling of the Taft proposition was a lesson to Americans in the renowned art of hustling, another American trait, quite as distinctive as hustle, is not so readily understood in Rome. It is said that the ecclesiastical dignitaries do not know what to make of Gov. Taft's open and business-like methods. They have been accustomed to European diplomacy, with its subterfuges and attempts at deception, proposals and counter-proposals, delays and evasions. The American variety is different. Gov. Taft went to Rome with none of the paraphernalia of the European diplomatist. In fact, he did not go as a diplomatist at all, in the strict sense of the word, but as a business agent of the United States government. He wished to leave Rome on a certain day, to resume the business of governing the Philippine islands at the old stand. He therefore stated what the government of the United States wished to do in as clear language as possible, and as soon after he reached Rome as he could begin.

The United States has often surprised other nations by its straightforward dealing. There was no evasion in the conduct of the negotiations which resulted in the treaty of peace with Spain. We said what we were willing to do, and Spain gradually accepted the situation. In the negotiations concerning China the other parties to the discussion were never at a loss to know America's position, and it was only a few days ago that the London Globe acknowledged that the honor of arranging for the departure of the foreign troops from Tien-tsin belonged to Secretary Hay, and regretted that England had not taken the lead in bringing about this solution, instead of merely supporting the United States.

Honesty is the best policy in diplomacy as well as in business, and the United States deserves the thanks of the world for making it a conspicuous characteristic in its foreign affairs.

The year has been an especially fatal one among men and women of literary prominence, not the least among the number who have passed away being Mrs. Annie Alexander Hector, the novelist, who died at her home in London last week. Mrs. Hector wrote under the nom de plume of Mrs. Alexander, and her novels had a wide reading in America, where they were much admired for a certain tender style of narrative and special power of description.

There is something seriously wrong with Kentucky. A whole month has passed without the arrest of another Goebel suspect. Are there no more Republican voters in that state?

Beyond the periodical charges upon the commissary department the latest Gettysburg engagement has been devoid of fatalities.

The Hon. Dan Lamont has quite gracefully but none the less emphatically sidestepped that New York gubernatorial nomination.

Lord Kitchener has glory enough to pass some of it along to several of his confreres who have been left out in the distribution.

With Henry Watterson and Harry Tracy both at large in the northwest there is a chance for strenuous happenings in that region.

Chicago's recent school census was evidently confined within the limits of the state of Illinois.

By some gratifying mix-up of weather dates July stole one of those "rare June days" yesterday.

Secretary Moody seems to be so certain of the 1904 candidate that the "other fellows" may as well let it go at that.

Perhaps Senator Bailey knows when he has had enough.

President Roosevelt will enjoy Oyster Bay if only the lobsters will keep away.

Hanna's Breakfast Menu.

From the Chicago Inter Ocean.

The breakfast conferences at Senator Hanna's residence in the latter half of the season just ended always led to a great deal of conjecture as to their objects, because of the official prominence of the guests and the probability that important administration matters were under discussion. Postmaster General Payne, known as the politician of the cabinet, was often a guest at Senator Hanna's breakfast, and as he is very approachable, was always bestead by questioners on his return from the conferences.

At first he saw all callers who wanted to know what had been discussed, but after describing on one occasion the pancakes served at the Hanna table and another time dwelling upon the merits of corned beef hash, he grew weary of these post-breakfast visits and finally, when a short time later he was again asked for a summary of the important topics under discussion at one of the alleged breakfast conferences, he rang for his private secretary and dictated the following:

BREAKFAST MENU, MAY, 1902.
Fruit and introductory remarks.
Cereals, cream and the Sandusky collectorship.
Pancakes and Philippines civil government.
Potatoes and Ohio politics.
Chops and the fall campaign.
Coffee and the Isthmian canal.
Cigars and the general situation.
HENRY C. PAYNE, Postmaster General.

Then Mr. Payne turned to his private secretary and said in a weary voice:

"Post that on the door for the benefit of anybody else who wants to know what happened."

THE CONTINENTAL SUNDAY AT HAND

Church in the Morning, Root-Gardening in the Evening, Growing in Favor.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, July 13.

Considerable discussion as to the proper way to spend Sunday evening is to be heard in New York in any gathering of a mixed character. That people should go to church in the evening is the conclusion of old-fashioned persons, even New Yorkers; but there is a large and rapidly-increasing class here which believes that recreation on Sunday night may take a light form, provided it is duly decorous. This means roof-gardening. Tonight every roof garden in the city was crowded. The entertainments were always what is known as "sacred," which means that dancing and other violent exercises were omitted, and that the songs were generally of a sober cast. Moreover, the performers wore only their ordinary costumes, and did not paint their faces grotesquely. Rouge for the cheeks, so that their faces should not seem ghastly in the glare of the footlights, was used, of course, but there were no "character make-ups." One of the peculiarities of roof garden audiences on Sunday nights is that they are made up to a large extent of people one may have met in church in the morning. They are at the roof garden in the evening, because they believe it is entirely consonant with pious profession to spend the evening in amusement. Besides the roof gardens, there was the Duss concert at St. Nicholas garden, and other entertainments more or less "sacred," and all were well patronized. It is in the summer that New York leans more than ordinarily toward the "continental Sunday," and this summer the tendency is very strong. It is argued that, as many ministers take vacations in the summer, their congregations have a right to spend Sunday evening in their own way. This burst of independent sentiment causes much argument, but in the end the persons who like to enjoy the so-called "sacred concert" have their own way. Moreover, the municipal government favors them by giving concerts on the recreation piers and in the parks. There is little question that this metropolis will establish the "continental Sunday" very soon, if it has not done so already.

Pittsburghers Going Abroad.

Among the passengers on the Cunard liner Etruria, which sailed yesterday for Liverpool, were E. Smith and Miss Smith of Pittsburgh.

Urchins in Automobile Patrol.

Two 11-year-old boys who threw stones at an automobile, were caught by a policeman and compelled to face a magistrate in court. They were discharged with a warning. The main point of the adventure to the boys was the pleasing fact that they enjoyed their first automobile ride, with the policeman for company. The automobilist kindly converted his aristocratic Panhard into a "hurry-up wagon" for the occasion, and the boys say they felt as if they were at a circus.

The Gothamite Something of a "Jay."

The big flat-iron building at the junction of Broadway, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street is as much an object of interest as ever was the Dewey arch. The policemen on the corner say there is always a crowd of nearly 100 persons gazing up at the great edifice and commenting on its money value, the probability of its being blown down; what the people in the top floors would do in case of fire, and so on. It does not take much to make visitors to New York look about them, and this new style of skyscraper is a treat for them, as well as for the native New Yorker, who, as a class is more of a "jay" than people coming from smaller centers like Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, which he calls "the country."

A Policeman Abroad.

Police Captain Sheehan of the Tenderloin station came home from Europe on the Campania yesterday. Among the globules of wisdom dropping from the captain's lips in reference to what he had seen abroad was one that "the Spanish policemen are a funny-looking lot." But, then, Li Hung Chang is said to have made a similar remark about the New York police; so, what's the use?

Bishop Potter's Betrothal.

The report that Bishop Potter is engaged to be married has awakened more interest here than usually attends the public announcement of a betrothal. There are few men in this city better known personally than Bishop Potter. He is the kind of man who, when he wants to get to the other side of a street, crosses it wherever he may happen to be. The only place in which he is not comeatable is his home in Washington square. When he is there he is guarded by his private secretary and unless a visitor's business is of such importance or interest to the bishop that it cannot be settled without a personal interview the private secretary is the medium of communication. At present Bishop Potter is in Europe, but is expected back before the end of the summer. The bride-elect, Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark, has for a long time been as busy in church and charity work as the bishop, and there is no doubt that when she becomes his wife, Bishop Potter will have a most industrious and able coadjutor.

Gazette Mine Editions at a Premium.

There is an eager rush for copies of The Gazette as soon as they reach New York. The Gazette's pictures of the Cambria works and mines are acknowledged by persons familiar with the localities to be the best that have been published, and copies of the paper are bought up eagerly here. On Friday night there was a large group of people at the Jersey City terminus of the Pennsylvania railroad to get copies of The Gazette as soon as the train from Western Pennsylvania got in, and an hour later I saw one copy of The Gazette sell for 50 cents. It is remarkable how well Johnstown is known in this city. It may be that the flood of years ago had a great deal to do with strangers stopping at the city afterward to look it over, and certainly passengers on the trains between Pittsburgh and New York never pass through Johnstown without looking at it with strong interest. On this account, therefore, it seems as if every one here has a personal interest in the mine disaster, aside from natural human sympathy; so the Pittsburgh papers are all read here closer than ever, with The Gazette decidedly in the lead.

Platt and His Sunday School.

Gov. Odell is at the Oriental hotel, Manhattan beach, as the guest of Senator Thomas C. Platt. The astute senator is conducting what is called his "Sunday school" by the sad sea waves. That is to say, he is talking over state politics with the governor and a few chosen friends, while people outside wonder what will be the outcome of it all. The governor came down from Albany yesterday and will remain at the beach for some days. There are many worse places in which to talk politics, or anything else, than Manhattan beach, and Gov. Odell is enjoying a rest, while possibly fixing up a few political fences.

Inconvenience of Being President.

President Roosevelt has been fighting for privacy ever since he has been at Oyster Bay, after coming home from his glorious Fourth in Pittsburgh. It is hard to be at the head of the United States government and still enjoy the comforts of a private citizen. President Roosevelt is a hard-headed man, with a keen sense of humor, and he knows that the summer he has been suffering at Oyster Bay is just what he had to expect. He keeps people away from Sagamore Hill, where his house is hidden in the midst of a wooded park, but he cannot fence in Oyster Bay; so they catch him when he goes out. The latter class feels that the Roosevelts are just neighbors and should be let alone. Outsiders, however, who went down to Oyster Bay today just to see what there was there would not allow themselves to be cheated out of the greatest show of the town, the president of the United States, and Theodore Roosevelt had to take his medicine with the best grace possible. He is in hopes that curiosity will die away to some extent in course of time, particularly if people find he is seldom on exhibition.

Property That Escapes the Assessor.

As a suggestion of the enormous wealth of Greater New York it may be mentioned that untaxed property in the city amounts to $640,000,000. This represents 16 per cent of all real estate in the greater city. It includes city, state and federal property and land and buildings used for charitable, educational, religious and hospital work. The parks of Manhattan borough, coming in the untaxed part of the city, are valued at $280,000,000 at market rates.

Bullet-Proof Vests Coming.

Vests of chilled steel are likely to come into more or less use in New York city, according to a report in the Hoffman house last night. Timothy L. Woodruff is mentioned as a likely man to introduce the style. A quick message from France says that metal waistcoats are fast becoming the rage there, and that St. John Gaffney of this city is responsible for the novelty. Mr. Gaffney appeared a few nights ago at a dinner wearing his creation of steel, and it made a decided impression. The waistcoat was elaborately embroidered, and better than that, it was bullet proof. Scores of waistcoats like it have been ordered, and when the ships begin to bring our traveling friends home in the autumn there is no telling how many of them will be smuggled in.

Mayor's Offices to Be Improved.

Big changes are to be made in the arrangement of Mayor Low's offices. When the City hall was overhauled in 1897, to prepare for the first Greater New York administration, much money was expended upon the work, but the suite of rooms comprising the mayor's offices was left untouched, and no improvements were made in them. Not a dollar was spent on them. When Robert A. Van Wyck entered the office as mayor he realized that the rooms were not wholly suited to the purposes to which they were devoted. He was of the opinion that the arrangement of them was mainly wrong; that the entrance to the mayor's office should be as was originally planned, through the space now occupied by the toilet room; that the steam heating apparatus and the old pipes and radiators should be replaced, and that there should be a general remodeling of the apartments. On the ground, however, that it would interfere with public business, and that the apparently necessary work would delay the various boards in carrying out the big constructive policy which he had adopted for the initial years of Greater New York's government, Mayor Van Wyck decided not to permit the mayor's office to be ripped up in those days. Now, however, the work has been insisted on, and Mayor Low has finally agreed that it be done.

Saturday's Cycling Parade.

Every cycling organization in Greater New York was represented in the silver cycling jubilee parade in Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon. The event marked the twenty-fifth year of bicycle making in this country, and the committee who were in charge estimated that more than 10,000 wheelmen and wheelwomen were in line.

Stony Point Anniversary.

The New York state reservation at Stoney Point, on the Hudson, which is in the official custody of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation society, will be formally dedicated on Wednesday, July 16, the one hundred and twenty-third anniversary of the capture of Stony Point from the British by the American forces under Brig.-Gen. Mad Anthony Wayne. There will be a large excursion from this city.

The Arbuckles Deny a Rumor.

A report has been circulated from Kingston, N. Y., that Arbuckle Bros., the coffee and sugar firm with refineries at the foot of Pearl street, Brooklyn, have purchased several large farms in New Paltz and have secured options on the best property in the Wallkill valley to raise beet sugar in their fight against the sugar trust. At the firm's offices yesterday the report was denied absolutely. The firm will continue to secure its supply of raw sugar from its usual import centers.

Chance for Interesting Debate.

From the Philadelphia Press.

As ex-Gov. Pattison was opposed to ripper legislation and Mr. George W. Guthrie was in favor of it, there is a chance to introduce a little gayety into the campaign by getting up a joint debate on that issue between these two distinguished candidates on the Democratic state ticket.

EYE-OPENERS.

According to an English newspaper a man sitting down to be shaved handed the barber some money, saying:

"Here, put this in your pocket for yourself."

The barber replied that he did not often receive his tip in advance. The customer frowned.

"That is not a tip," he said, "It's hush money."—New York Tribune.

"I wish I knew of some absolutely safe investment," said the wealthy young widow.

"Safest and surest thing I know for an all-the-year-round money-maker," declared the wise uncle, "is a gas meter."—Baltimore American.

"Dat's an old, no'count dog," said Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "but I had a chance to trade 'im off las' week."

"Why didn't you seize the opportunity?"

"Well, I thinks a heap o' dat dog. An' I made up my mind dat a man dat didn't hab no better sense dan to make such a trade wah gwine to be too pore to feed 'im."—Washington Star.

"You pretend you don't like politics," observed the doctor, "but when you open a newspaper the first thing you do is to turn to the political page."

"Certainly," replied the professor. "I don't like dead cats, either, but if there's one on my premises I hunt for it with a good deal of interest till I find it."—Chicago Tribune.

"I perceive you are having a chill.
If you'll follow advice,
And be cured in a trice,

But the shaking giraffe shook his head in disdain,
Said he: "You're a writers deceiver,
Ere your cure for the grip
Reached the end of its trip,
I might need to be treated for fever."

VICTOR EMMANUEL'S VISIT TO THE CZAR

His Queen Returns in Triumph to the Scene of Her Humiliation.

THE MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

That King Victor Emmanuel should commence his visits to the foreign courts by going to St. Petersburg is attributable to the fact that his wife is a sort of adopted daughter of the dowager empress of Russia, under whose maternal care and at whose expense she was educated at the Muscovite court. Moreover, it was the czar who furnished her with a dowry when she married, in the same way that he and his father before him have done for her other sisters, and also for her brothers on the occasion of their marriage. For Queen Helen the visit will be a sort of compensation for the cruel disappointment which she suffered in connection with the marriage of the present czar. She had been reared with a view to becoming the consort of the Emperor Nicholas, was regarded while a young girl at St. Petersburg as the future czarina, and was an object of particular affection and solicitude to the now widowed czarina precisely on this account.

When the moment, however, came for Nicholas to fulfill the projects of his parents he balked and gave his father and mother to understand that his wife would be of his own choosing, not of theirs. And thus, while Princess Helen of Montenegro was never actually betrothed to Emperor Nicholas, she was to all intents and purposes jilted, and had the mortification of seeing the Princess Alice of Hesse take the place upon the Muscovite throne that she had been brought up to regard as destined to be her own. It was not until two years after the marriage of the czar that she gave her hand to Italy's present king.

She now goes to Russia, not as the neglected and jilted daughter of a poverty-stricken prince, who has all his life long been dependent on Russian bounty, but as the queen of a country that ranks among the great powers and the friendship of which Russia is particularly anxious to secure. In fact, the king and queen are being treated with the utmost distinction at St. Petersburg, with more, perhaps, than would be accorded to any other sovereign; and both are likely to leave Russia still more amicably disposed and united in stronger bonds of sympathy than has previously been the case. For the queen must have entirely gotten over all her disappointment at not wedding the czar, since it is notorious that she has found more happiness than ordinarily falls to the share of royal consorts in her marriage with King Victor Emmanuel.

Not Cordial with the Kaiser.

Of course, at Berlin the fact that the king of Italy should have gone to St. Petersburg first cannot fail to be resented, all the more as although two full years have now elapsed since Victor Emmanuel succeeded to the throne, he has not only not visited Berlin, but not even had any meeting with Emperor William, which in view of the fact that the latter is his ally, is, to say the least, astonishing.

Up to within a year of his accession Victor Emmanuel was on the terms of the closest possible personal intimacy with the kaiser. But these sentiments underwent a change at the time of his stay at Berlin in May, 1900, while still prince of Naples on the occasion of the coming of age festivities of the German crown prince. Emperor Francis Joseph was a guest of the kaiser at the same time and owing to the presence of the Austrian monarch, Victor Emmanuel was subjected to a good deal of neglect, alike by the court and by the authorities, while in all the banquets and entertainments of a military character, where speeches were made, the Germans hailed and acclaimed the Austrian officers present as their allies and brothers in arms, and laid stress on the comradeship and union existing between the Austrian and German armies, but failed to include the Italian officers present in this fraternization.

The Italian heir to the throne left Berlin deeply affronted. He is a man who seldom forgets slights and what with the influence of his wife, to whom he is devoted, urging him in the direction of Russia, there is no doubt that the bonds of the recently renewed triple alliance binding Italy and Germany and Austria are worth little more than the paper they are written on.

With his other ally, namely, Emperor Francis Joseph, King Victor Emmanuel is not even on visiting terms, as he absolutely declined to call at Vienna until Emperor Francis Joseph returns at Rome the visit paid to the court of Vienna by the late King Victor Emmanuel in 1873, and by the late King Humbert with Queen Marguerite in 1883.

The Jacobite League.

The English legitimists, some times known as the "Jacobite league" and some times as the "White Rose league," who have branch societies even in this country, especially at Boston and Philadelphia, that hold religious services there each year on the anniversary of the execution of King Charles I., have just issued the following manifesto or proclamation apropos of the impending coronation of King Edward:

"Whereas, by the decease of our sovereign Lord King Francis, on the 20th day of November, in the year of grace 1875, the crown of these realms did by just and lineal succession descend to his niece and heiress, the Lady Mary Theresa Dorothea, Archduchess of Modena Este, we, the loyal people of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, do hereby assert, as our forefathers have done before, the right of primogeniture in descent of the crown of these kingdoms, and the indefeasible claim therefore of her royal and imperial highness as heiress of the houses of Plantagenet and Stuart."

The Lady Mary Theresa is Princess Louis of Bavaria, wife of the eldest son of the regent, and destined in course of time to become queen of Bavaria, while the "King Francis" mentioned in the manifesto is her uncle, the old ex-duke of Modena, who died in 1875 and who, unlike his niece, took his hereditary rights to the British throne so seriously as to become a source of considerable embarrassment to the Austrian court at the time of King Edward's first visit to Vienna in 1873, while still prince of Wales.

Dormant Peerages.

Sir James Carmichael, who is reported to be dying, and whose demise may already have taken place ere this letter appears in print, has, according to all the principal genealogists, both official, professional and amateur, an unquestioned and inherited right to the now dormant peerages known as the earldom of Hyndford, the viscounties of Inglisberry and Nemphlar, and to the baron of Carmichael. These have been dormant for over a century, and the fortunes of the last bearer of the title of the earl of Hyndford constitute the theme of one of the late Robert Louis Stephenson's most sensational novels.

Sir James, who was private secretary in turn to Gladstone and John Bright, has been perfectly aware all along of his rights, but absolutely declined to take any steps toward bringing his claims before the committee of privileges of the house of lords. He was formerly Liberal member for Glasgow and was anxious to keep his seat in the house of commons. Some five or six years ago the question was raised in parliament as to whether Sir James really had the right to sit and vote in the house of commons, being in reality by inheritance a Scotch peer, and in the debate which ensued about the matter Colonial Secretary Chamberlain referred to him as "by right a peer of the realm."

It was in consequence of this debate and of the likelihood of his vote on any important measure in the house of commons being invalidated on the ground that he was a peer that he withdrew from the house of commons.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Mrs. Jane Lutton.

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 13.—(Special.)—Mrs. Jane Lutton, aged 73, a lifelong resident of this city, died at midnight. She was the widow of the Hon. William B. Lutton. Her maiden name was Miss Jane Buck and she was the daughter of one of the first settlers of this place, and was a member of the First Presbyterian church for over half a century. She is survived by six children: Charles W., George C., Harry C., Mrs. Charles Matthews and Miss Mary, all of this city, and Mrs. Horatio S. Bennett of Cleveland, O.

Mrs. Ada Eugenie Vrooman Leslie.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Mrs. Ada Eugenie Vrooman Leslie died today at her home in this city after a lingering illness. She was born in 1846, and when only 16 years of age was widely known by her contributions in prose and verse to the leading periodicals. She married Alfred Leslie, a son of Frank Leslie. After his death Mrs. Leslie edited the Lady's Bazar and a number of other periodicals. In recent years she assisted her sons, Arthur and Frank, in organizing the Leslie syndicate.

Gen. Thomas J. Morgan.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Gen. Thomas J. Morgan, who has been ill at his home in Yonkers, died today, aged 62. Death was due to kidney trouble. Gen. Morgan was born in Franklin, Ind. At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of brevet brigadier general. President Harrison made him commissioner of Indian affairs. At the time of his death Gen. Morgan was secretary of the Home Mission society of the Baptist church. The body will be taken to Rochester, N. Y., for burial.

David M. Neal.

David M. Neal, a well-known citizen of Wilkinsburg, died suddenly of heart disease at his home, No. 440 Biddle avenue, early yesterday morning. Mr. Neal was one of the best known members of Lodge No. 45, A. F. and A. M., and was also a member of the I. C. H., the K. G. E., Patriotic Sons of America and the I. O. O. F. He is survived by his widow, Prudence A., and two sons, George H. and E. B. Neal.

E. Cuthbert.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—E. Cuthbert, for eight years the Washington correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch, died here tonight, aged 61 years. He served throughout the civil war on the confederate side. For a long time he was the southern news manager of the New York Herald, with headquarters in Richmond.

Obituary Notes.

Peter Riley, aged 66 years, a resident of McKeesport for over 50 years, died yesterday morning at his home in Fifth avenue. He is survived by his widow and eight children.

Mrs. Sophia Honer Christman died at her home in Camden street, McKeesport, Saturday evening, aged 64 years. She was the widow of the late Jacob Christman and is survived by eight children.

Mrs. John Weible, aged 50 years, of Weible street, West Etna, died yesterday after a protracted illness. She leaves a husband, A. John Weible, a well-known business man of Etna, and several children. Mrs. Weible had lived most of her life in West Etna and was very well known there.

Lila Wallace Mitchell, the 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Annie H. Mitchell, is dead at the family residence No. 243 Forty-third street, after a long illness. She was born in this city and was a daughter of the late William M. Mitchell, a former well-known grocer. The child attended the Seventh United Presbyterian church and was a great worker in children's societies and Sabbath school.

Kitchener and the Monocle.

From Pearson's Magazine.

Monocles are plentiful in Cape Town, but in Johannesburg and Pretoria they are conspicuous only by their absence. "K" does not like them. Capt. ——, of a famous cavalry regiment, out of all the swell officers, alone refused to give up his monocle for anybody. It was the current report in the regiment that he wore it in bed and also when he took his bath.

One day Lord Kitchener met the single pane officer outside the Transvaal hotel in Pretoria. "One minute, captain," said the commander, "may I ask if it is absolutely necessary for you to wear that glass in your right eye?"

"Yaas, certainly, Lord Kitchener—er—er—I could not see without it."

"I am sorry to hear that, captain ——, as I intended to give you a staff appointment, but I must have men around me who can see well. Kindly report yourself for duty to the officer commanding the lines of communication."

The disconfited cavalry officer obeyed the instructions. Three months afterward he was taken prisoner by the Boers, who stripped him of his clothing and sent him back to camp, still attired in his eyeglass, but in nothing else. Such is fate!

Lecturer Got Even.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Harry Furniss tells of a testy but popular Scotch lecturer who, on a tour of the Lowlands, met with a chairman so impressed with the importance of his office that, in introducing the visitor, he actually talked to the audience for an hour. The gathering, a very large one, bore it all patiently. This was the chairman's peroration:

"It is unnecessary for me to say more, so, I call upon the distinguished gentleman who has come so far to give us his address tonight."

The gentleman who had come so far arose, stepped forward, bowed, pulled out and looked at his watch, and then said:

"You want my address. It is 322 Rob Roy Crescent, Edinburgh. A letter will find me there. Good night!"

Saying which he left the stage and the hall before anybody could interpose.

Was Saving Money.

From the Cincinnati Inquirer.

A young man living on Walnut Hills is a close worker in money matters—that is, he stays close to the shore with his expenditures. He had the good luck to marry a girl whose parents are quite wealthy, and is at present living with his wife in one of his father-in-law's houses.

One day not long since, while discussing affairs with a friend, the latter asked:

"Did the old gentleman give you that house?"

"Well—er—no, not exactly," was the answer. "He offered it to me, but I wouldn't accept it."

"How's that?" asked the friend.

"Well," answered the man who had made the lucky matrimonial venture, "you see, the house really belongs to me. I'm living in it, rent free, and I'll get it when the old man dies. If I accepted it now I'd have to pay the taxes."

CONTRACT LABOR LAW MAY HALT PROF. LEMARE

Reported That Musical Protective Union Will Make a Protest.

LEMARE IS IN LONDON

He Went There in the Spring With His Bride Who Was Reported to Be Ill—Rumored That Threats Were Made.

Prof. Edwin H. Lemare, the noted English organist, who came to Pittsburgh from London last fall to accept the position of director of music at the Carnegie institute, made vacant by the death of Frederic Archer, is still in London, where he was forced to return by the illness of his bride after they had been in Pittsburgh only about three months.

The latest report from Mr. Lemare is to the effect that while his wife is still seriously ill he hopes to be able to return to Pittsburgh and resume his seat on the organ bench in September, when the free organ recitals provided by the city begin again.

There is a possibility, however, that Mr. Lemare may not return to Pittsburgh. Members of the Musical Protective union of the United States say that they will not consent to his returning here under the terms of the original contract made between him and the trustees of the Carnegie institute, when he came from St. Margaret's church, London, last October.

Report Is Lemare Was Threatened.

Mr. Lemare left Pittsburgh early in the spring, having served as organist only about three months. Until the close of the season, two or three weeks ago, Walter E. Hall served as organist in the absence of Mr. Lemare.

When Mr. Lemare left Pittsburgh it was stated that his wife had been in poor health during her stay in Pittsburgh, and that an ocean voyage would be taken and a visit of some months made to her former home in England. Nothing more definite was given out at that time.

Within the last day or two, however, it has been reported that Mr. Lemare left Pittsburgh at the suggestion of the Musical Protective union of the United States, under the contract labor laws.

The members of the organization in this city took up the question shortly after Mr. Lemare's arrival, and found, it is said, that as he was brought to Pittsburgh from another country under contract that his act came under the "contract labor law." Mr. Lemare's contract with the board of trustees of Carnegie institute was to serve as organist for five years, at a salary of $4,000 per year.

Doubt Exists as to Return.

No member of the board of trustees of the Carnegie institute could be found last night who knew anything of this threatened action by the musical union in case Mr. Lemare returns to Pittsburgh. It is admitted that there is some doubt as to whether he will return, but this doubt is said to be entirely due to the condition of his wife, who he married just before coming to Pittsburgh last fall. In case she does not improve it is not likely that Mr. Lemare will return here, but will insist on his resignation being accepted.

EDWIN H. LEMARE,
The new organist at the Carnegie Institute, now in London, whose return may be opposed by the Musical Protective Union.

A short time ago a rumor was in circulation to the effect that Mr. Lemare and the music committee of the trustees had had a falling out over some very radical and expensive improvements which Mr. Lemare wanted made to the music hall organ, employing in the making of them some inventions of his own, and that he had returned to England in a huff, taking with him the intimation that no tears would be shed if he did not return.

Sickness Said to Be a Blind.

And it is further said that in order to hide all this rumpus it was given out that the health of his wife demanded his immediate return to England. This story was denied, emphatically, by all the members of the music committee.

The recitals Mr. Hall has been giving during the absence of Mr. Lemare have been in every way satisfactory, and as he is a Pittsburgher with a large circle of admirers, there would be no marked expressions of regret if Mr. Lemare did not return, and Mr. Hall was continued as director of music.

Will End Days in Palestine.

BALTIMORE, July 13.—The Rev. Joseph Eisner, Jewish rabbi and prominently associated with High Street synagogue, will leave Baltimore, tomorrow with his wife for Jerusalem, where they expect to end their days. Mr. Eisner came to this country from Poland, settling in Baltimore, where he identified himself with synagogue work and built up a large commercial business. He has long been identified with the Zionist movement, but he says he goes there now purely as an independent individual.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A beautiful gown of ivory chiffon over glace. The bodice is pouched over a belt of pink glace that is shaped into a high point in the back. The deep yoke is of embroidered chiffon and cream lace applique. The sleeves are finished in a large puff above the cuff.

PRISCILLA'S PENCIL.

During an afternoon saunter in Fifth avenue the other day saw two up-to-date maidens in shirt waist frocks which had just come from Paris. Now, Paris is not a shirt waist city. Paris is for fluffs and frills and all things feminine. It is from London that the best shirt waist models come, after those originated in this country—for America has brought forth smarter shirt waists than any of the older fashion centers so far. One of the Paris frocks was of tan linen, strapped wherever a strap could be put, and each strap finished with three tiny buttons. Just here is where Paris showed itself unmistakably, for the buttons were not put on straight or in a triangular group, after the tailor-made models, but in a line which waved—one down, one up and then one down again! The waist was tucked into a deep yoke, and here again was Paris evidenced, for the tucks were not the straight Puritanical tucks of the accepted shirt waist, but lingerie tucks, fine and small, turned one way and then back again, so that they resembled crimping. A lace tie and a belt of black satin, tied at one side, black gloves and parasol, finished the outfit, which was so pretty that one could not do otherwise than forgive its shortcomings from the tailor's point of view and accept it for what it was, a thoroughly charming French variation.

Watermelon Ice—
Is one of the pet fads of Miss Younger Sister just now and the beautiful but rather tasteless dainty finds favorite place at all affairs where the younger girls go. For luncheon in town—watermelon ice; for the social seance over the confectionery counter—watermelon ice. And wherever it is served you may be sure that the girl with short skirts and low dressed hair, who is not yet "out" and who is only beginning to dream of beaux—has had a hand in the making.

Tinted Velox Prints—
Possible to any one who knows a little about water-coloring are to be found now figuring in girlish collections. The idea originated at one of the boarding schools, and presto! all the pictures of the season were put through a tinting process which shows rosy cheeks and blonde hair in all their charming reality. The rough-surfaced papers offer the best facilities for coloring, and as no girl's collection of treasures is complete nowadays without the amateur album, commemorating school or festive scenes, the idea has plenty of room for spreading.

Parasols for Evening—
Are the most recent development of fashion. They are designed, naturally, for ornament rather than use and are consequently very frail in make-up. Most of them are of transparent chiffon, delicately crinkled and ruffled, and have slender handles of some ornamental or enameled wood. They are carried closed for the most part, but are opened for carriage riding or on any occasion when they will form a background for the face.

Lace or Medallioned Stockings—
Are eminently proper for wear with the dull finished kid colonial slippers now in vogue. The absence of ornament on the shoe makes some elaborate finish to the hose permissible and pretty.

Pie Parties—
Are the latest development of faddish entertainment, and among the younger set of Philadelphia and Baltimore they are reported to be so popular that their early observance in Pittsburgh is a matter of certainty. In combination with ping-pong, the pie furnishes an entertainment which is attractive for other and more substantial reasons than alteration. Served in deep dishes, something like bowls, with an individual pitcher of cream and one of the smart new sugar sprinklers, the pie would be a welcome ending to the ordinary summer evening affair, giving excuse for an informality which fits charmingly with the rest of the average warm weather program.

A Nasturtium Luncheon—
Given by a Wilkinsburg girl last week had some charmingly original ideas in decoration. The round luncheon tables, three in number, each with four guests, were set on the shady veranda of the hostess' home. Each table had a centerpiece of the flowers arranged in a given shape, one a cornucopia, one an artist's palette, one a sort of nest and one in a series of circles intertwining. At each plate was placed a little booklet ornamented with nasturtiums in water-colors and containing the menus, a snapshot picture of the hostess, one of the veranda where the tables were laid, and a vacant space for a picture of the group present, which was taken after the luncheon. All the viands amenable to such arrangement were in nasturtium colors, a salad of tomato cups with mayonnaise and little lettuce leaves being especially pretty.

Glove Buttons—
Are of pearl, gold, silver or enamel this year, and each bears the monogram or initial of the wearer. These are charming for souvenir gifts among school girls and have taken the place of the lettered lockets popular for the past few years.

For White Straw Hats—
A collection of scarfs is a convenience widely appreciated just now. The knotted trimmings are so simple that any one can make them with a little practice, even where a quill is used for emphasis. The modish maid has a white mull scarf—good for exactly one wearing in Pittsburgh—a dark linen scarf set with lozenges of color and a scarf of India silk—these are applied at will and to suit the gown worn.

The Dutch Yoke—
Is in with a vengeance and many of the dark summer frocks are made up with its quaint square. This yoke is very deep in front and behind, cut perfectly square and going up straight to the collar edge, so that nothing at all of it is seen on the shoulders. In black frocks of lawn, this is most effective, especially when made of rich white or cream lace, without lining.

The Wise Girl—
Is she who realizes the softening influence of a light color near her face. She will never make the mistake of wearing an all black ribbon, unless her skin is lily white in tint and irreproachable in texture, and she will invariably have her hat brim lined with a light color. A dull skin is made thrice duller by the wearing of a dark neck ribbon and a dark hat brim.

For Freckles—
Any acid fruit juice is a curative and the light summer freckles will sometimes yield to a simple wash of cucumber or watermelon juice. The best specific however, is lemon juice diluted with three times its own bulk of distilled water. The effect will be all the better if the water is allowed to stand for some hours with a cupful of oatmeal, and is then poured off and mixed with the lemon juice. The more obstinate freckles which will not yield to this treatment are invariably banished by the use of the hydrozone and glycozone used for catarrhal affections.

Knotted Sashes—
Have become so common that the smarter people are discarding the style, which never had any charm anyhow, save that of novelty. The popular sash is now tied immediately in the back with several loops, all short and full, and the two ends are fastened up to simulate loops, the effect being that of a round rosette. The ribbon is not pinned down to a point in front, but is made as broad as possible all around the waist—a charming fashion for a girlish figure, albeit somewhat trying to matronly waists.

The Square Necked Waists—
Of lawn or dimity which have appeared recently are the prettiest thing imaginable for informal evening wear. A bit of ribbon run around the square outline of the neck gives a dainty finish and individuality.

WAR ON LAND AND WATER.

Lake Steamers and Railroads in Fight for Passenger Business.

DETROIT, July 13.—The promised rate war between the rail and lake lines operating between Detroit and Buffalo has been inaugurated, the Detroit and Buffalo Steamship Company taking the initiative by reducing its first-class rate to one-half the second-class rate of the rail lines and declaring that if this is met, a further reduction will follow.

The fight started by the rail lines making a $4 round trip week-end excursion rate and it is said allowing first-class privileges upon such tickets.

Catarrhal affections, like all Colds, are best reached by Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant.

Republicans Have a Chance of Electing Thirty Out of Thirty-two Members of Congress in Pennsylvania This Year.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
603 Fifteenth St., N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.

The renomination on Tuesday last by the Republicans of Lackawanna county of Representative Connell for another term was received here with general satisfaction, as Mr. Connell has not only made a splendid record in congress, but is universally popular. A loyal friend, he has made hundreds of admirers all over the commonwealth. It was in his district that the Democrats hoped to make one of their gains in the event that the Republicans named an unpopular state ticket, but with Judge Pennypacker as the head of the ticket and Mr. Connell as the nominee for congress the Republican majority will be of the usual large majority.

During his political career Mr. Connell has shown that he possessed many of the characteristics of a leader and has frequently been mentioned for higher offices. Even now he is seriously considered for a term in the United States senate if it should happen that Senator Penrose could not command enough votes to secure another term. Although Mr. Connell has opposed Senator Quay in several contests he has gained the admiration of the senior senator and on one occasion the latter said:

"Well, if Penrose cannot get another term I do not know of any man in the state that I would rather have as a colleague than Mr. Connell."

Nineteen Are in Line.

With the renomination of Representative Connell, 19 of the present Republican members of the Pennsylvania delegation have been renominated, as follows: Foerderer, Bingham, Adams, Burk and Morrell of Philadelphia, Butler of Westchester, Olmsted of Harrisburg, Wright of Susquehanna, Deemer of Williamsport, Evans of Ebensburg, Dalzell of Pittsburgh, Graham of Allegheny, Acheson of Washington, Bates of Meadville and Sibley of Franklin.

So far the only members of the delegation to fail to secure a title clear to another term are the veteran Galusha A. Grow and James Rankin Young. The former was thrown into a district with Charles Fred Wright, and as he could not hope to defeat the latter he announced that he would not be a candidate for a nomination in the new district, and on March 4 next will retire with honor from the body that he first entered a half-century ago and of which he was elected speaker. Mr. Young was thrown into the same district with Mr. Foerderer, and as the latter was very popular Mr. Young had to give way.

Of the remaining Republican members of the delegation, Mr. Mahon will probably secure another term, while Messrs. Patterson, Jack and Showalter are facing the fights of their political lives. Mr. Patterson has as his opponent ex-Representative Brumm. The latter for the last two years has vainly sought an appointive office and failing to secure one is now working hard to secure another term in congress.

Favored by Popularity.

As Mr. Patterson is popular and his opponent is not, the chances are in favor of the present member, and especially as Schuylkill county will settle the matter at the primaries. Messrs. Showalter and Jack must secure a majority of the conferees in their new districts and as the former has had three terms and the latter two terms, the ambitious ones think that it is time that they give way to others. The indications are that both will fail to secure renominations.

Representative Lewis of the York district will be renominated by acclamation and as he has made a splendid record, the odds are decidedly in favor of his re-election, although the district is normally Democratic. Mr. Lewis has the distinction of being the second Republican to carry the old York-Adams-Cumberland district, and as he is a man of ability the last legislature reduced his handicap by eliminating Cumberland county from the district with its Democratic majority. In addition, Mr. Lewis will be aided by a factional fight between the Gitt and Zeigler factions of the Democracy and by the further fact that great frauds have been unearthed among the Democratic county officials of York county, the county treasurer being under bond awaiting developments.

Among the Democratic members of the delegation Mr. Mutchler will be renominated and will be re-elected, as the Easton district is one of the Democratic districts of the state. Only once in its history was it carried by a Republican and that was in 1894, when Mr. Kirkpatrick carried the party banner to victory. Mr. Green of Reading is having a hard row to hoe in his efforts to secure another term.

Under the party rules he should give way to a Democrat from Lehigh county, probably ex-Representative Snowden of Allentown, but he is demanding another term and the Berks county Democrats are supporting him in his demand. The contest is becoming so bitter that it is believed there will be two Democratic candidates in that district, with the result that the Republican nominee will win. Mr. Heil of Ridgway was gerrymandered into a Republican district, notwithstanding the fact that he made a splendid member and easily outranked in ability the other Democrats of the delegation. He, therefore, declined to be a candidate again, but instead will be a candidate for the state senate, and will be elected, as his district is strongly Democratic. The other Democratic district (the Sunbury district), will undoubtedly send a Democrat.

Summing up, it seems to be generally accepted here that under the direction of Senator Quay as state chairman the Republicans of Pennsylvania will score their greatest national victory this year and elect 29 Republicans to congress, and possibly 30 out of a possible 32. Their best previous record was in the Fifty-fourth congress, when there were 28 Republicans out of the 30, but in the contest that brought this about, thousands of Democrats voted the Republican ticket as a repudiation of the hard times brought on the country by the free trade policy of President Cleveland. This year, however, the Democrats are in better trim and the election of 30 out of 32 will be marvelous, but even the Democrats are conceding that the estimate is not too high, and especially in view of the conditions named in the Berks and York districts.

ROYAL MUSKOKA NOW OPEN.
Guests Are Arriving Daily at the New Summer Resort.

The opening of the new Royal Muskoka hotel on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka Lakes district, for the season of 1902, has been a source of satisfaction to the proprietors and the reservations that have been made up to the present for accommodation at this resort assures the success of the venture. Guests are arriving daily and by next week hundreds of people will be enjoying the beauties of Muskoka with the advantage of sojourning in one of the best summer hotels in America.

Among the guests at the hotel now are prominent people from Buffalo, Chicago, New York and other American cities, as well as many Canadians.

The Ontario government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway system, is continuing the policy inaugurated last year of restocking the Muskoka lakes with parent bass. The first carload was deposited in Lake Rosseau, June 20, and a finer lot of bass have seldom been seen. Last year 10,000 fish were transplanted into the northern lakes with much success. The fishing this year in the Muskoka lakes is good, some excellent catches having been made, the bass running from two to four pounds, and pickerel from two to eight pounds.

READY TO SAIL TO THE RESCUE OF PEARY PARTY

Steamer Windward Will Depart from New York for Far North Tomorrow.

IS ALMOST A NEW SHIP

Has Been Completely Changed Since Her Arrival on This Side Three Months Ago—Now Sails Under the American Flag.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 13.—The Peary arctic steamer Windward arrived at Jersey City today and will go into commission and depart for the north tomorrow.

The Windward came down under her own steam in the early morning from Newburgh, N. Y., where for the last two months she has been receiving new equipment of boilers and machinery. The ceremony of transfer from the contractor to the club was very simple. The stars and stripes having been hoisted for the first time at the peak, under the special act of congress signed by the late President McKinley, allowing an American registry to the Windward, little Marie Peary, daughter of the explorer and the most northern born child in the world, hoisted to the foretruck the club pennant, designed by herself, and also displayed for the first time. The Windward since her arrival in New York three months ago has been completely changed, and will go north as a full-powered, completely equipped and thoroughly commodious ship for Arctic work. To admit the new and powerful boiler, once in the Vigilancia, wrecked on the Cuban coast, the mainmast has been completely removed, giving the ship the nondescript rig of square sails on the foremast and a fore and aft spanker and topsail on the mizzen.

Across the deck just forward of the poop has been built a house which has five commodious staterooms, three of which, on the starboard side, will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Peary. In the center of the house is a large messroom or saloon, with the cook and his galley adjoining on the port side, while the roof of the house serves as a bridge for the navigating officer. The new engine is a "steeple compound," all parts being exceptionally strong for work in the ice with every modern improvement, and is expected to give a speed of from seven to eight knots, equal to that of the fastest of the Newfoundland sealing fleet and nearly three times that possible with the discarded boiler and engine.

The Windward will coal at Sydney, C. B., and proceed north through the Straits of Belle Isle, touching at Godhaven and possibly at Upernavik, and should, with all favorable circumstances, reach Peary's headquarters and him about August 1.

LABOR DAY MARSHAL HAS A RECORD AS A HARMONIZER

Alexander Hunter, who will be the chief marshal of Pittsburgh's greatest Labor Day demonstration this year, has been a labor leader for a score of years. Born in Allegheny 47 years ago, he learned the carpenter trade under his father, Robert Hunter, subsequently taking up painting. He formed the original district council of the Brotherhood of Painters in Chicago, becoming the business agent of that organization and holding the office for four terms, after which he was the district secretary. Subsequently he was prominent in labor affairs in St. Louis, cementing two rival central bodies there. He is a leading member of both central labor organizations in Pittsburgh, the United Labor league and the Iron City council of the Amalgamated Federation of Labor. Mr. Hunter is now assistant building inspector of Pittsburgh. His selection as chief marshal guarantees a thoroughly harmonious Labor Day demonstration, bringing both the central organizations into a common cause. The chief marshal will name his aids in a short time. Arrangements are being pushed forward which indicate a marching column of 50,000 men.

WANTS THE SPOT OF BRADDOCK'S DEFEAT MARKED

Rev. G. E. Hawes Preaches a Timely Sermon on a Great Event.

GOD'S HAND IN THE FIGHT

He There Marked Washington as the Man to Lead—Braddock Minister Wants Anniversary of Battle Properly Observed.

Last night the Rev. G. E. Hawes, pastor of the Braddock United Presbyterian church, spoke on Braddock's defeat. The 147th anniversary of this defeat occurred last week. Mr. Hawes has been trying to excite some interest in the matter in the community, hoping to crystallize what sentiment there may be into an attempt to erect a monument by the time the 150th anniversary occurs. In his address last night he said:

"This fight on the Monongahela was one of many incidents in one of the many irrepressible conflicts of the world. It was a foregone conclusion that the races with as different ideas as the French and English should some day come to a death struggle on colonial soil. It takes a wider space than a few hundred miles of trackless wilderness to keep such opposite ideas and forces from one another's throats. This battle for supremacy and mastery in the new world had been on for some years before it came to a crisis on the banks of the Monongahela. The waters around Lake Champlain had been made red more than once by the blood of fallen foes who died fighting for the soil of the broad land."

Historical Facts Reviewed.

Briefly reviewing the historical sequence which brought Braddock and his forces into this section, Mr. Hawes continued as follows:

"It is said that the night spent in the last camp was given up to song and mirth. The moon riding the clear sky looked down upon the little army encamped upon the banks of the Youghiogheny and made things so bright that it was with regret the men who had marched all day turned in for their last rest before sleeping in Ft. Duquesne. But at the sound of taps all became still save for the sentinels' calls, and all tents were somber save where officers were talking or planning for tomorrow's march.

Braddock had decided to cross the Monongahela river twice in order to avoid a dangerous mountain defile. Accordingly the advanced guard was up early and had soon secured the first ford. By 11 o'clock the next day the second one was taken and the army was ready to cross. By 1 o'clock they were all over and within a short distance of the place where they were to meet their death.

'Twas an Awful Slaughter.

"An hour after the first shots were fired on the advance and the soldiers heard for the first time the terrible war whoop. A detachment under Burton was ordered forward to relieve the pioneers, and the great slaughter was on. And what a slaughter it was! Killed, 456; wounded, 421; safe, 583. The wonder is that there were any safe ones. They fought in that 12-foot road, enfiladed by unseen enemies who shot them down at will. In two hours the little army, which had laughed the night before was a wreck. Those who could were fleeing. The general was wounded unto death and at last was admitting that there were other ways to fight besides those known and used by the Coldstream guards in the Netherlands.

"It is now 147 years since that sad disaster occurred. It so happens that the anniversary this year falls on the very same day of the week as did the fight. Where our great mills were thundering and rattling last Wednesday between 2 and 4 almost a century and a half ago men were fighting and falling and dying. We went about our tasks and thought nothing of it. Perhaps properly enough; for peace hath her victories no less renowned than war. To make steel rails to bind continents, means more to the race than to fight battles and kill men.

Washington's Brilliancy Shone Forth.

"But this was no ordinary battle. And while it was a defeat for the side with which we naturally sympathize, it was in a larger sense a most signal victory. Without the defeat upon the Monongahela, Providence might not have marked out to the colonists their natural leader for the coming strife; but we know that it was on this ill-starred field that the worth, the dignity, the strength, the military genius of George Washington shone forth with such brilliancy that every colonist saw the light and wondered, then knew.

"God's hand was upon Washington. He was anointing him by the baptism of battle to be the leader of a new people in the new movement for the new idea just as truly as he annointed David king over Israel by the hand of Samuel. If at Concord 'the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world,' on Bradock's field the man of destiny stood revealed so conspicuously that none ever doubted but what God had shown him unto men. This, in my judgment, is the most conspicuous mark of Divine Providence in that memorable event.

Why Not Show the Stranger.

"And 147 years have gone since that day and when the stranger comes among us and asks where did the fight take place we wave our arms in an indefinite sort of way and say 'over there.' But over where? Why is it that we don't know? The literature on the battle is great. Men who fought on that day returned years after and accurately described the ground which they had tried to hold, but could not. If we don't know it is because we haven't wanted to know. A civil engineer could take the data and in a few hours locate the center of the field with sufficient definiteness. And why shouldn't it be done? Why should we allow the matter to go longer without doing something?

"Isn't it time that something be done to retrieve our past failures and to make it possible for us to speak in later days, there was the fight in which the hand of the Lord was put upon the man who was to lead America to independence and direct humanity to higher plains of liberty and life."

WHAT TO DO WITH HARD PROBLEMS

REV. DR. E. M. WOOD DISCOURSES ON SOME BIBLE POINTS.

He Says Some Are Needlessly Disturbed by Some Bible Difficulties and Incidentally Points Out Some Recent Nature-God Happenings.

In the Fifth Avenue Methodist Episcopal chuch yesterday morning the Rev. Dr. E. M. Wood, pastor, delivered a discourse on "Hard Things in the Bible—What Shall We Do With Them?" "It has been carelessly said that not any of the New Testament was in existence for 200 years after Christ," he said. "Of course, no one at all acquainted with the history of Christianity could honestly make such a statement. Peter and Paul were associates in ministerial work and Peter in his second letter tells us that he was acquainted with Paul's letter. And Paul gave directions that all his letters should be read in the churches. And we are inclined to believe that the dates of many of the books of the New Testament might be safely put back much earlier.

"Peter admits that there are some things in Paul's writings hard to be understood and that there were some in his day who distorted those things and also the other scriptures. To prevent the word of God intentionally, or wrest it from its purpose and meaning, is no ordinary offense.

"There are difficulties in the Bible and some are needlessly disturbed by them; others make use of them to the annoyance of good people. Beware of the man or woman who professes that to him has come some special illumination by which all such mysteries are made plain. An inspired Peter found things in the Bible hard to be understood and so admitted, and we may make the same admission without either reflecting on ourselves or on Christianity.

Things to Remember About the Bible.

"We should remember that the Bible is a very old book. Some of its phraseology is now obsolete and many of the customs long ago existing have passed away or are now wholly misunderstood. Translation is a difficult task, as exact equivalents cannot always be found. We find little difficulty in the books of the Bible mostly devoted to moral precepts, as for instance, the Psalms Proverbs, but it is mostly with the historical books, where moral precepts are mingled with incidents and events, where the trouble is greatest. To write a faithful history of a certain people and yet preserve the general divine truth for a future unfolding was the purpose of the historical books. To be faithful the errors of that people must be set down, although not always is the error at once condemned.

"Infidels make much of the differences of commentators. They think nothing, however, of the various interpretations of Shakespeare and they should be as honest about the interpretations of the Bible. It is not easy always to distinguish between the historical and the poetical. In Job and Ecclesiastes the poetry seems evident, and what would be the harm if we were to admit the book Jonah as being of this kind? But it may be said the Savior referred to the latter; so He might quote from a poetical book as well as a historical one and this would not make the resurrection of Christ poetical. Such a fact did not rest upon Jonah, whether historical or not. A good novel may furnish a good illustration.

What the Nature-God Does.

"Many are disturbed by the great slaughter of human beings, seemingly by the will of God. Most of such objectors worship a nature-God, but is He more kind and loving to women and helpless children? Yonder He lifts the lid of a volcano and burns and smothers 30,000 in a short time! Yonder your nature-God rides in the center of a swirling cyclone and lifts and dashes down to death the innocent people in a town on the western plains! Your nature-God smothers people by the score in the mine! Talk of the gentleness and love of your nature-God. Any one should know that this is false reasoning and the Bible saying is true that it is better that a few should perish than that the whole world should be destroyed. God must preserve a people to preserve a truth, and lest that truth be buried in the rubbish of idolatry a wicked and disobedient people must be destroyed.

"Some of the parables of our Lord were historical and some were poetical, but all were exponents of divine truth.

Some Excellent Advice.

"The advice of parents to their boys is good in Bible study, namely, don't go beyond your depth unless you can swim. Never tamper with a dynamo unless you know a good deal about electricity. Let historical criticism alone unless you are a competent critic. The Old and the New Testaments must stand or fall together; each one is a pillar supporting the grand arch way over which divine truth has traveled down to our times. The Jew cannot defend himself without the Christian, and the Christian is helpless without the Jew. And if the infidel could pull down this arch way or demolish one of the pillars, he himself would be involved in the common ruin.

"I shall not strain my eyes until I go blind piercing into the dark patches in the heavens, but I would rather look and look and wonder and wonder as each star and planet comes within my vision, and then if I desire more I will place my eye to that instrument which elongates and broadens my vision, and see new worlds blaze where darkness reigned before. And so a humble and intelligent faith will brighten up an otherwise dark world and the word."

NEARLY 70,000 ATTENDED THE PARK SERVICES

Remarkable Expounding of the Scriptures Took Place Yesterday.

ALL CLASSES TOOK PART

The Movement Inaugurated by the Rev. Dr. S. E. Young, in Which He Had Co-Operation of Pittsburgh Railways Co., Was Successful.

Not in all the history of the breathing spots in and about the two cities has there been such a vast turnout of the masses as was seen at nearly all the parks yesterday afternoon and evening. The attraction at all of them was a special religious service. In the aggregate about 70,000 people attended these park services. At all the parks the people heard splendid renditions of well-known Gospel airs by excellent musical organizations and large choruses, and a simple expounding of the scriptures by some well-known man of God.

These attractions, if such they may be called, proved of sufficient interest to draw the largest crowds of the season to these resorts. It was the first time in the history of the local parks that such a general service was carried in all of them. Every denomination was represented. For instance at Calhoun the venerable vicar general of the Pittsburgh diocese, the Very Rev. E. A. Bush, officiated, and Southern park was the scene of services held by a rabbi and a minister of the Reformed church.

Credit Is Due Rev. Dr. Young.

Much of the credit for the success of this general park service is due to the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, who has ever been an enthusiast in the matter of getting out of doors and in touch with the people. As is well known, he has been at the head of the Schenley park services, and it has ever been his aim to go still farther. When he got this idea of holding services in all the parks on some Sunday the Pittsburgh Railways Company encouraged him, and he at once invited the ministers of other denominations to join with him.

Dr. Young himself preached twice, once in West park, Allegheny, and again in Schenley park in the evening. The official estimate of attendance yesterday is given by the railways company as follows: Calhoun, 11,000; Oakwood, 9,000; Southern, 10,000; Kennywood, 15,000; West park, Allegheny, 5,000; Schenley, 10,000; Highland, 10,000; making in the aggregate about 70,000. Dr. Young preached in West park, Allegheny, in the afternoon to 4,000 people. It was the first time Sunday services have been held in this park in many long years.

In the course of his address, Dr. Young said:

What Follows Keeping Your Eyes Open.

"Have your eyes open! Facing this park four years ago lived a young man who noticed the vast number of laurel trees in Western Pennsylvania and concluded they could be turned to some use. He invented a glue made from laurel and for four years he has been putting in his pocket never less than $5,000 a month, and he proposes to do about everything with that glue except to glue his eyes shut. Along this park's edge four years ago boarded another young man. He watched the clumsy coal cars of the Fort Wayne road and decided he could make better ones. He devised the new steel-hopper coal car and yonder it goes by thousands on all railways earning millions of dollars.

"Have God open your eyes to the invisible company surrounding you. Never are you alone. Your Heavenly Father, the Lord Christ, the Holy Spirit and, I suppose from Scripture hints, the heroes of God in every age, compose this gathering ever hovering above you. Does it not all mean you are too precious, too dearly loved to throw yourself away for a few mere baubles of pleasure here? See and please these witnesses unseen—therein is true living."

Catholic Priests at Calhoun.

Fanned by the breezes from the valleys below, and the scene of an unusual religious service conducted by Catholic priests, Calhoun park yesterday afternoon proved inviting to thousands. The services opened with selections by the Robert Pitcairn band. Very Rev. Father E. A. Bush, rector of St. Peter's church, Allegheny, and vicar-general of the Pittsburgh diocese, then delivered an introductory address.

"It is, indeed," he said, "an uncommon spectacle to see Catholic priests conducting services in a public park. But when we sum it up, it is a good thing. When men and women can combine the spiritual life with outdoor exercise, surely the services that bring such to pass must be praise-worthy, and likewise a thing to be encouraged. It is good for you to be away from the congested districts of the city, it is good for the world, betimes, to come to these breathing spots and leave the cares behind. I trust we shall all gain much spiritual benefit from these exercises."

The band played some sacred selections, after which the Rev. Father Price, pastor of St. James' church, West End, spoke on the Catholic church's influence among all classes.

Catholic Church as an Organization.

"The Catholic church," he said, "is not an idea, but an organization. It has within it a hierarchy, a legislature, a judiciary, and an administrator. No religious organization is complete without an administration. There can be no unity without a perfect organization. It is this great principle that keeps the Catholic church bound together in all parts of the world, from the snows of Russia to the Golden gate."

Father Price explained the internal workings of this great religious body. He was followed by the Rev. Father C. J. Coyne of McKees Rocks, who held the large audience spell bound by his eloquence. Father Coyne drifted away from sectarian standards and delivered a powerful address on the necessity of the world stopping, "if it were only for a minute, to commune with its God."

"In this great country of ours," he said, "where we set the pace for the nations of the world it is absolutely necessary that the vast machinery of man's activities come to a standstill, that he forget for a time the things of the world and commune with his God.

Need of Rest Legislation.

"The activities of the brain have come to such a pass in our country that there is absolutely need of legislation to make man rest one day in the week. How can man know his God, or how can a man know that his God is a good God, unless he gets away from the din of the world and gets into the inner sanctuary of the soul! God alone is great, my friends! God alone is powerful, is holy, is all in all, is supreme! And how are men to know that God alone is great, how are they to recognize their God unless they observe the day set apart for His honor?"

Religious day at Kennywood park yesterday attracted an immense crowd of people, in fact, taxed the railway facilities of the traction company to the utmost. It was announced that the exercises would be undenominational and the crowd was likewise undenominational. All classes of society were represented—rich and poor, white and black—and the program apparently gave the greatest satisfaction to all.

Kennywood Park Services.

The exercises were conducted in the open air at the bandstand, the platform being occupied by Phinney's United States band of Chicago; Rev. D. F. McGill, D. D., of the Sixth United Presbyterian church, Allegheny, who delivered a short address during the afternoon, and Mark C. Baker, who conducted the singing. At 3 o'clock the band played the first number on the program, "Onward Christian Soldier," and within a few minutes every seat was occupied by a most attentive crowd of people who remained until the closing time.

Precenter Baker had some little difficulty at first with the vocal music, as the crowd did not join in with much enthusiasm, but after one or two hymns from the printed leaflet, which had been freely circulated and placed in the hands of everyone within reach had been sung, the chorus gained in volume and could have been heard easily across the Monongahela in Braddock. The band played several excellent numbers and furnished the accompaniment for all the hymns. A cornet duet, "Kindred Souls," by J. W. Merrill and C. Johnson, and a vocal solo, "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go," by Mark C. Baker, were especially enjoyable, as was the pharaphase of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, To Thee," by the entire band.

Amusements for Children.

All the amusements were closed down except the Old Mill and the boating on the lake, and these two attractions were liberally patronized. The children were permitted to ride the ponies and the donkeys, however, as usual, and the little ones were there in crowds. The soda water and ice cream booths did a large business and the restaurant was continually crowded.

The evening concert, which marked the close of the engagement of Phinney's band for this season, was attended by another large crowd. The religious services were conducted by the Rev. W. A. Stanton, and B. F. Butts directed the vocal music. The selections by Director Phinney were entirely of a sacred character, and the chorus, which included many members of the Second Presbyterian church choir, was more enthusiastic than in the afternoon. The two exercises were very satisfactory to the ministers and others having the matter in charge at Kennywood, and it is probable that they will endeavor to have another day set apart for services in the near future.

About 10,000 people were at Highland park yesterday and heard portions of the religious services. The seats about the stand were filled most of the time, many sitting in the blazing sun, while others sought the shade and grass of the hillside of the grove.

There was a most impressive rendition of sacred music by Rocereto's band and an impressive short sermon by the Rev. J. W. Russell, pastor of the East End Christian church. Prof. Muir lead a chorus of the assemblage, with band accompaniment, as several thousands of voices joined in hymns, the beautiful words resounding throughout the park, now in its most resplendent summer beauty. After Director Rubino led his band through an overture, "Benediction of the Temple," by Keller Bela, the assemblage sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

The Rev. Dr. Russell held his audience in rapt attention in his telling of the story of Christ and its application in the mundane sphere. His talk was extemporaneous, the subject being "Eternal Life Through Christ," the text being from St. John vi:68. It was an interesting recital of the old story, indicating to the people how eternal life may be attained through the Savior and His word.

In the course of the musical program following the assemblage sang the hymn, "There Comes to My Heart One Sweet Strain," "Rock of Ages," and "O Lamb of God, I Come." Rendition of the other numbers of the sacred concert kept the people in the grove till nearly 5:30 in the evening. The band recital of "Ave Maria," from "Cavalleria Rusticanna" was particularly impressive and beautiful. Other numbers were rendered as follows: Paraphrase, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," by Reeves; "The Heavens Are Telling," from Mozart's "The Creation;" "Hallelujah" chorus, from Handel's "Messiah;" "Marching, Christian Soldier," by Chambers; "Pilgrim Song of Hope," by Batista; and "Pilgrim Chorus," by Tannhauser.

Other Park Services.

In Oakwood park the Rev. Dr. E. L. Eaton of the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, conducted the services in the afternoon. Benjamin Franklin Butts and choir sang sacred selections. The Chicago Newsboys band likewise rendered sacred music. This marked the end of this remarkable organization's engagement in this city. The evening services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Kaylor and the Rev. Dr. A. J. Turkle.

In Southern avenue park the Rev. Dr. J. H. Prugh of Grace church conducted the services and preached in the afternoon. In the evening Rabbi J. Leonard Levy of the Eighth Street temple, preached. The crowds were so large at this park that a dozen extra cars were turned out and run between Forbes street and the park. The sacred song service at this park was in charge of Luther Harper. The Helen May Butler band added to the interest of the services by selections from the great religious composers. Rabbi Levy has rarely had a more attentive audience than the thousands whom he held spell-bound for nearly an hour last night.

IS A MAGNIFICENT VIEW.

Pittsburgh as Seen from the Hilltops Furnishes the Rev. W. H. W. Rees a Sermon Topic.

"Pittsburgh as seen from the Hilltops," was the subject of an interesting sermon delivered yesterday in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal church by the Rev. Dr. W. H. W. Rees, pastor.

"If one went nosing about the alleys of our local Italy or our Africa," said Dr. Rees in the course of his sermon, "he would get a very unfavorable impression of Pittsburgh and go away disgusted. But let him go to the hilltops and he will form an entirely opposite opinion of the Iron City. It is a magnificent view spread out before one who looks upon Pittsburgh from the hilltops.

"Cities bear a vital relation to all great reforms. Vast populations gather in the cities. Truth, victorious here, may march confidently to the conquest of the country round about. New York is the commercial metropolis of the nation. Pittsburgh the center of its steel and iron industries, London is England and Paris is France.

"The early church fixed its eyes on the cities. Antioch. Corinth and Jerusalem were the strategic points. These captured with the new gospel and the church could march to the capture of the world. Cities are the Thermopylaes of the world; the last fortresses of humanity.

"Our view from the hilltop reveals vast industries. What a picture rises to the view in the clouds of smoke that float away. Bread for the hungry, clothing for the naked, schools for our children. From the hilltops one sees the lights and shadows of life mingle. There is a bright path of sunshine, and right beside it comes a shadow trying to beat it down. Scatter sunshine, my friends, while you may."

NEW POLISH CHURCH IN SOUTH SIDE DEDICATED

St. Josaphat's Is a Forced Off-Shoot From St. Adelbert's by Reason of Railroad Improvements.

The new St. Josaphat's Polish Roman Catholic church in Mission street, on the South Side hillside, was dedicated at 10 o'clock yesterday morning by the Very Rev. E. A. Bush, vicar general of the diocese of Pittsburgh. He was assisted by the Rev. Father Utecht, who acted as deacon. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father F. X. Kettell, assisted by Father Utecht. The Rev. Father Dziadkowic of New Kensington acted as master of ceremonies.

Preceding the ceremonies there was a large parade of Polish societies from the Penn avenue, hill and South Side districts, which formed at the South Twenty-second street bridge and marched down through the city and back to the South Side by the Smithfield street bridge and Carson street. About 3,000 uniformed men were in line, while 21 brass bands furnished music for the marchers. Two hundred young girls, wearing white dresses and wreaths, were also a part of the procession.

When the church was reached the bands united in one large company and produced great noise, if not music.

The church, which is a one-story and basement structure, is built of frame and is furnished in southern pine. It contains many handsome furnishings and articles for ritualistic use, many of which are gifts from Councilman John P. Baldauf of the Twenty-seventh ward, who, while not a member of the congregation, has taken a great interest in its furnishings.

The Rev. Father Francis Bawzewski is pastor of the new church and his congregation now numbers over 600 families. It is expected that a parochial school will be opened in the vicinity in the fall.

The new congregation is an off-shoot from the big Polish Catholic church, St. Adelbert's, in Fifteenth street, the Rev. Father L. M. A. Miskiewicz, rector, and its formation is one of the results of the extensive improvements that have been made for the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania railroad on the South Side. These improvements, while greatly benefiting the railroad, have been a severe blow to St. Adelbert's church, for they have practically cut the congregation in two and there has been erected between the two divisions huge retaining walls of stone, a veritable Chinese wall, preventing former members of St. Adelbert's who live on the hills from reaching that church as conveniently as formerly.

MISSIONARY MEMORIAL.

Field Secretary Casselman Preached an Appropriate Sermon at the Grace Reformed Church.

Special memorial services were held yesterday morning in Grace Reformed church, in honor of the anniversary of Christine Faust, a missionary to Japan, who died in the foreign field. The Rev. D. V. Casselman, field secretary of the foreign mission board, preached the sermon, and an offering was made to the building fund of the "Christine Faust College for Young Women," which it is proposed to erect in Sendai, Japan.

Mr. Casselman is now on his way to Japan and various other foreign fields of the Reformed church. On his return to this country he will make Pittsburgh the headquarters of the board. During the course of his sermon Mr. Casselman said:

"The early church which was so eminently successful in heralding the Gospel, saw visions constantly. The one vision was the man of Macedonia, whose gesture was ever beseeching, and whose emphatic word was 'Come.' The other was that of Him of Nazareth, whose gesture commanded and the burden of whose message was 'Go.'

"No government sends forth her soldiers on their own charges, but with their commission is included weapons, clothing, and transportation. Jesus, the great captain of our host, never sent a man to the front trusting to himself. The constraining love of Christ, then, should be the main motive in missions. The missionary to Africa who could say, speaking of his first convert: 'I have gone through much, traveled over many fields, and seen many strange things; but I'd go through it all again for the love of Christ'—I would say that missionary had seen the visions and knew what St. Paul knew when he said, 'Oh, the depths of the riches of love in Christ Jesus.'"

ALL EYES TURNED TO INDIANAPOLIS

RESULT OF CONFERENCE MEANS MUCH TO ANTHRACITE MEN.

Operators Will Wait Till After the Convention Before Attempting to Start Collieries—Whole Region Quiet Sunday Says the Sheriff.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILKESBARRE, PA., July 13.—The tenth week of the great anthracite miners' strike may witness the crisis. Everything now depends upon the national convention which meets at Indianapolis on Thursday. If the convention votes solid support to the hard coal miners now on strike the conflict with the operators may be prolonged indefinitely.

On the other hand should substantial support not be forthcoming it may have a discouraging effect on the strikers and the operators, taking advantage of it, may attempt to resume operations at some of the collieries. This is the consensus of opinion as expressed in operators' and strike circles. No effort will be made by any of the large coal companies to start up any of their mines this week. Indianapolis must speak first.

Many of the local assemblies of United Mine Workers of district No. 1, United Mine Workers, held meetings today to give final instructions to their delegates to the national convention. Just what the instructions are is not known. It is expected, however, that all the delegates from the anthracite region will vote as a unite in the convention.

Sheriff Jacobs reports that the whole region is unusually quiet.

You can think it all out easier by coming right here where you can see every new wearable for vacation days and moonlight nights.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cincinnati, O., July 13.—And again the Pirates took a game from the Reds. This is the eleventh that they have succeeded in getting from the locals and there are not many more to play this season. With all credit to the Bancroft bunch, however, it must be said that things broke exceptionally lucky for the Pittsburghers, or the large end might have fallen to the lot of Cincinnati.

It seems peculiar some times how luck will stick to a winning team, and this has been the case in over half of the games that these two teams have played together. Noodles Hahn was on the rubber for the locals, and he pitched his best game of the season. He allowed the Pirates only four hits, but they were lucky enough to get three of these in a bunch, and it netted them the majority of runs that they won with.

Hahn Had Fine Control.

Tannehill started as Hahn's adversary and Noodles clearly outpitched him. The latter did not allow a base on balls, while Tannehill allowed two. Noodles allowed four hits, while Tanny allowed six and Leever was nailed for two. All of these hits came separately and singly, however, and there was nothing doing in the run-getting line off them. The only run that was tallied up by the locals was the result of an error on the part of Big Chief Zimmer.

The game was an interesting one, however, and some exceptionally fine ball playing at critical times kept both sides from rolling up more runs than they did. Noodles Hahn, however, had far from good support. In the sixth inning the Pirates got a run across the plate without a semblance of a hit. Every one on the field had strong arms and wild throws were frequent. In fact every one of the six errors that were made were the results of wild throws.

It took an extremely lucky play, however for the Pirates to keep the Reds from scoring a run in the fifth inning. There was Corcoran on third and Hahn on first, with one out. Bobbs sent a liner that Tannehill got in the way just enough to send it shooting over into Ritchey's territory. He threw it to second, getting Hahn and Burke got it to first in time to get Dobbs, completing a double play. Corcoran had scored, but, of course, it did not count. The ball barely hit Tannehill's finger, and threw it out of joint, so that he had to retire. The runs were made as follows:

Made the Most Of Their Hits.

With one man out Beaumont bunted and beat it out. Leach doubled and Beaumont scored, and Wagner singled and Leach scored. The next two men went out on flies to Crawford. This was the last hit the Pirates got until the seventh. In the sixth, however, they again scored. Leach sent an easy one down to Steinfeld and he threw the ball clear over Beckley's head, while Leach took third. Wagner struck out, and Bransfield sent one down to Steinfeld. Leach started for home and was caught between the bases by Hahn, who fell down in touching him out. Bransfield, in the meantime, had gone to second, and was trying for third when Hahn threw the ball to Steinfeld while he was laying on the ground. It went over his head, and Bransfield came on home.

In the inning the Reds also scored. Hoy singled and Beckely singled, Hoy taking third. Jake made an attempt to steal and Zimmer threw the ball wild and Hoy scored. Peitz went out on a fly and Magoon drew a base on balls. Beckley was forced by Corcoran, and the side was retired. The score:

PERCY BROWN,

The Star Local Amateur Who Has Won Many First Place Diamonds on the New Track.

JIMMY WILLIAMS VISITS HIS BABY

THE EX-PIRATE GETS HIS FIRST PEEK AT FUTURE HEIR.

He Professes to Know Little or Nothing About the Baseball Doings at Baltimore—Al Buckenberger Has a Pitching Surprise for the Pirates.

Jimmy Williams, the Pirates' ex-third baseman, who is now guarding second base for the Baltimore team, was in this city yesterday, having made a hurried trip from Baltimore to get a peek at the baby his wife presented him with last week. Mrs. Williams is at the home of her mother in Allegheny, and both herself and the baby are doing well.

The ex-Pirate has always been a very close mouthed fellow regarding baseball, and he has not learned to open up any since leaving the city. Relative to Baltimore baseball and the many rumors concerning that team and its players he did not care to talk and professed to know really nothing as to what is going on. He said he did not believe the report that Andy Freedman, in securing the release of Mugsy McGraw, had secured also the pick of the Baltimore players.

Williams denied having been approached by McGraw or anybody else and when asked how he would like to play ball in New York said it did not matter to him in what town he played as long as he got the coin. He said McGraw is very popular with the players on the Baltimore team, but could not say as to whether Mugsy could win them away from the American league.

Al Buckenberger, who was one time a Pirate leader, and who has always been popular with Pittsburgh baseball patrons, brought his second place Beaneaters over from Cincinnati yesterday morning and the team is quartered at the Monongahela house. Buck is rather proud of the record made by his team on the road and will be supremely happy if he can get two of the games out of the series from the champions. His players are all in first-class trim and will put up a fast game against the Pirates.

Buckenberger has a surprise to spring on the champions in the nature of a new pitcher and if he only lives up to the expectations of his manager he will be a corker sure enough. The new twirler is none other than Pat Carney, the young man who has been guarding right field for the Boston team. Before breaking into professional ball Carney was a pitcher on the Holy Cross college team, and he had quite a record as a college twirler.

Carney is a left hander, and it is claimed that it was a common thing for him to strike out 12 and 14 batsmen in the college games. On days that he was not pitching Carney played on first base and in right field, as he was a terrific hitter and his batting was needed. Manager Buckenberger tried Carney for a few innings in a game against Brooklyn where Hanlon's team had the game already won, and he says the Brooklyn batters could not touch Carney's curves. Since that time Carney has been practicing pitching and will twirl his first full game against the champions.

READY TO RECEIVE THE WHEELMEN

L. A. W. MEMBERS ARE PROMISED A BIG TIME.

Changes Have Been Made in the Program—A Fight for Good Roads to Be Started and Pushed With Vigor.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 13.—Everything is in readiness for the reception of the thousands of visiting wheelmen at Atlantic City this week on the occasion of the 23d annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen, July 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Nothing has been left undone by the committee in charge to revive interest in cycling by the arranging of such a four-day program of events as will appeal to the thousands of wheelmen from all over the country who are expected at the shore next week.

Many changes and additions have been made to the original four days' program, which, besides the more serious business of the good roads convention and meeting of the national officers, includes daily runs to the shore; runs in and around Atlantic; monster cycle parade; 25-mile road race; night smoker, midsummer hop; special events on the piers; pioneers' banquet; special reduced rates for all seashore amusements, and record-breaking championship paced cycle races every night.

Outside of the executive committee the following committees have been appointed at Atlantic City for the reception of wheelmen next week and the conducting of the cycle parade and road race, to act in conjunction with the auxiliary committee, of which J. W. C. Parsons is chairman, Mr. R. G. Stillwell having been obliged to give up that position through business pressure:

Racing committee—Dr. A. Westcott, W. S. Van Kirk, Samuel Lippincott, Henry Karrar, Joseph E. Lippincott, Howard Parsons, T. D. Hackett, Thomas Roberts and John Roberts.

Parade committee—E. H. Miller, Stephen Pharo, W. W. Sprague, Charles Harris, Charles H. Parsons, John W. Berry, James Barber, Edwin Salmons, Charles P. Tilton.

Reception committee—George B. Parsons, Arthur Wright, Frank Gelespie, W. C. Lippincott, James L. Wilson, Paul Lippincott, Emory Iselan, John W. Parsons and R. G. Stillwell.

GIANTS WERE SHUT OUT.

Chesbro Easily Outpitched Mathewson and Struck Out Eleven Batsmen.

The Pirates played all around the Giants on Saturday afternoon, and owing to Chesbro's clever pitching shut the visitors out. Mathewson was on the rubber for New York, but was clearly outpitched by Chesbro, who struck out 11 batsmen, thus equaling his own record. Manager Clarke put up a great game for the champions and set a lively pace for his players by making three hits and scoring three of the Pirates' four runs. The game was witnessed by 5,700 people and the interest was great all the way. The score:

Chicago, July 13.—The visitors won the first game by batting Garvin all over the field, making a total of 13 hits. The score would have been much larger but for fast fielding by the locals at critical times.

Piatt was in great form in the second game and held his opponents safe all the time. Sugden's error was responsible for Chicago's first run; bunching hits and fast work on the bases scored the balance in the fifth. A double steal by Isbell and Mertes, on which the latter scored, was the feature of the game. Padden was put out of the game for kicking. Attendance 12,500. Score:

Thinks He Will Be Able to Add a Mile or Two on Harry Elke's Record. Several Amateurs Are Prepared for a Fast Race.

The race tonight between Albert Champion and William Stinson at the Coliseum track in Allegheny will be the most interesting that has been seen at the track this season. Champion is out to break the record for the hour, and in the form in which he is now riding there is little doubt but that he will be able to do it. He will follow one of the big tandem pacing machines which can develop any amount of speed that the track will stand and Champion can follow anywhere the machines will take him. The Colosseum track has been shown to be the fastest six-lap track in the country, and with any kind of good conditions the spectators tonight can be assured that they will witness one of the best races ever seen in this city.

Champion arrived in Pittsburgh last night. He was to have raced at Manhattan beach track on Saturday night, but the breaking of the motor of one of the other contestants necessitated the calling off of the race. Champion at once left for Pittsburgh with his manager, and his pace makers and the whole party arrived last night. Champion will work-out on the Colosseum track and will be in fine shape for the race tonight.

The entries for the 10-mile amateur race are Harry Brown, Percy Brown, S. A. Shirley, William Hoffeldt, E. Herlinger, Charles Reel, Harry Rupp and David Motter.

SPRINTED FOR CASH.

Bike Riders Put Up Fast Sport and Kept the Spectators All Excited.

NEWARK, N. J., July 13.—There was an attendance of over 6,000 at the Valisburg track today. Marcus L. Hurley of the New York Athletic club won both of the amateur races. While the long mark men captured the money in the half-mile for professionals, they did not do so well in the Spartan open for professionals at two miles. This was the race of the day and brought out 33 starters. The men were sent away to a rolling start and as a $10 prize went to the winner of each lap it was a series of constant sprints which kept the spectators on their feet most of the time. Houseman won the first lap, and sat up, as he was all out. Then Krebs led at the second, third and fourth laps. Bald won the fifth, Penn the sixth and Tom Butler the seventh. Then the champion, Kramer, got his wheel going and won the race in a fighting finish by about two feet. The time, 4:11. It was probably the fastest ever made in a scratch race. Summaries:

Half mile open (amateur)—Won by M. J. Hurley, N. Y. A. C.; Teddy Billington, N. Y. A. C., second; George Glasson, Newark, third; Michael Coffey, Newark, fourth. Won by a length. Time, 1:03 2-5.

Half mile, handicap (professional)—Won by Ralph De Palma, Brooklyn (80 yards); T. J. Grady Chicopee (50 yards), second; John Bedell, Lynbrook (50 yards), third; Menus Bedell, Lynbrook (55 yards), fourth. Time, :56 4-5. Won by five lengths.

Two-mile, open, Spartan (professional)—Won by F. L. Kramer, East Orange; John Bedell, Lynbrook, second; Dowse S. Kimble, Louisville, third; Iver Lawson, Salt Lake City, fourth. Won by two feet. Time, 4:11.

Five-mile handicap (amateur)—Won by M. J. Hurley, N. Y. A. C. (scratch); Charles Schlee, Newark (50 yards), second; George Glasson, Newark (scratch), third; G. G. Camper, Newark (150 yards), fourth. Time, 11:15. Won by a foot. Winner of last prize, Joss Rockowitz.

West Will Have Roller Polo.

RICHMOND, IND., July 13.—The Western Roller Polo league will be incorporated soon. It has been placed on a safe footing. Nearly a score of the crack eastern players have signed.

Among the Amateurs.

The Madison A. C. defeated the James Mason A. C. by the score of 23 to 4. The features of the game was the hitting of Miller and the heavy hitting of the Madison A. C.

The Trentons play Buckley's Sharon team on the 15th and 16th, and expect to play good ball. The Trentons would like to hear from strong out-of-town teams for July 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 29, 30. Address W. Kennedy, No. 9 Mansion street, Twenty-third ward, city.

The Edith A. C. of American Steel & Wire Company, Allegheny, wished to challenge any team of A. S. & W. Co. to play a game of ball for a stake of $25 to $50, and also wishes to hear from amateur teams who have enclosed grounds. A. W. Coombs, manager, care A. S. & W. Co., Allegheny.

Swissvale A. C. by starting the season earlier and by playing evening games has succeeded in playing more games than any strictly amateur team in the Pittsburgh district. They will keep up the gait by playing another evening game on Thursday, and two games on Saturday, when they play the Westinghouse Electrics at 2 p. m. and Elwood, Hamilton at 4 p. m. This is the rubber game of the series between Swissvale and Cottage.

The St. James A. C. has reorganized and will play nothing but first class teams the rest of the season. They have secured the services of Morris, Loxterman and Williams of East End, and Myers of Shadyside academy. These, coupled with Elwood, Hamilton, Boyd, H. B. Loxterman, McIntosh, Kitchenseen, Fischer and Nolan will comprise the team. Morris, Nolan and Boyd will do the pitching, while Loxterman and Myers will be at the receiving end. On account of the Clipper A. C. disbanding, St. James is without a game for Saturday, July 19, and would like to hear from a good team having grounds for their new opening date. Address H. B. Loxterman, 922 St. James street.

HARNESS HORSE NOW READY FOR OPENING

Blue Ribbon Meeting of the Detroit Driving Club of Grand Circuit Begins Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

DETROIT, July 13.—Grosse Pointe track, where the Blue Ribbon meeting of the Detroit Driving club opens the grand trotting circuit of 1902 tomorrow afternoon, will be fast if the weather predictions of tonight are fulfilled.

The feature of the opening day will be the Chamber of Commerce stake for 2:24 class pacers. There are 19 entries and all but one have at one time or another beaten 2:10, which means that the race will not only be hard fought, but will be paced in very fast time.

Another feature of the opening day is the 2:07 pace, in which Riley B. Shadow Chimes, Fannie Dillard and several other good horses are entered.

Tuesday the classic Merchants and Manufacturers' $10,000 stake for 2:22 trotters will be decided. This promises to be one of the best races in the history of the event, which has been in existence for 13 years. The card for tomorrow comprises the 2:15 trot, the Chamber of Commerce stake for 2:24 pacers, the 2:10 trot and the 2:07 pace.

Played It Last Thursday.

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—The American league game scheduled for today between Cleveland and Detroit was played last Thursday, that day being an open date with both teams.

Weekly Review of Market Quotations

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Navy Beans Higher—Canned Tomatoes Lower — Hams and Salt Meat Advance.

While grain markets were rather steady last week, and quotations ruled much above normal, there was prevalent a somewhat easier feeling in corn and oats during the last two or three days of the opening of the week. In both these lines prices are lower than they were last Monday. Hay has made advances, all grades of timothy ruling higher, while millfeed and straw show no change from figures of the first of the week.

In groceries, flour opens this week at the same figures that marked the beginning of last week, although in the interim there was a period of a day or two when prices were lower on account of local competition. The wheat market, though fluctuating, has been in the main strong, and reports from grow

BROKE A RECORD.

Pittsburgh Bank Exchanges for the Week Established a New High Mark.

Pittsburgh bank exchanges for the week ending yesterday were the largest on record for any similar week in the history of the local clearing house association. Compared with the same week a year ago they showed an increase of nearly $1,465,000. The daily average, however, compared with that of the preceding week, was about $1,300,000 smaller. The figures for yesterday were nearly $707,000 larger than those for the same day last year, but about $180,000 less than a week ago. The total for the year to date shows a loss of $25,-992,000. The local money market has showed a tendency to work easier, but is very spotty, being decidedly firm in some quarters, necessitating the calling of some loans. These were easily placed in other institutions, and only slight "switching" of business caused a slight inconvenience. The rate for call and time loans was quoted nominally at 5@6 per cent.

The detailed clearing house reports are as follows:

	Exchanges.	Balances.
Yesterday	$ 8,253,878 50	$1,354,527 85
Previous Saturday	8,432,985 55	1,262,435 41
Last year	7,487,038 45	854,413 29
Yesterday's increase	$765,839 95

The figures of the clearing house for the week ending yesterday, compared with those for the preceding week (5 days) and the same week last year, are as follows:

	Exchanges.	Balances.
This week	$43,294,276 91	$7,344,464 72
Daily average	7,242,068 25	1,225,077 62
Last week	42,747,347 91	7,317,140 52
Daily average	8,549,469 50	1,463,428 10
Last year	41,987,375 87	7,049,826 05
Daily average	6,997,895 97	1,174,254 97

This week's increase, $1,464,082 08.

The exchanges for the week ending yesterday, compared with those for the corresponding weeks in previous years, were as follows:

Coffee and Sugar.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The coffee market opened irregular, with prices unchanged to 10 points higher, after which there was little further change, despite the fact that trade was heavy up to the closing moments. Shorts were the buyers. The large buyers, while importers, sold freely. The close was steady. Was chiefly in the near positions, notably September. The foreign market news was a trifle better than expected and helped to strengthen bull confidence here, though heavy receipts in Brazil to some extent offset the market news. At the close the market was steady and net unchanged to 10 points higher. Total sales were 65,500 bags, including July at 4.85c; August, 4.85@4.90c; September, 4.90@4.95c; October, 4.95c; November, 4.95c; December, 5.00@5.05c; January, 5.10c; March, 5.20c; May, 5.30@5.35c. ADA M'DONALD SHOT AND KILLED YOUNGER SISTER

Tragedy at Elizabeth Yesterday Which Coroner Is Investigating.

MAN KILLED AT CARNEGIE

Mulberry Alley Resident Falls from Third-Story Window While Asleep and Is Killed—Other Cases for the Coroner to Pass Upon.

Coroner Jesse M. McGeary was notified yesterday of the death of an eight-year-old child named Agnes McDonald, who was shot and instantly killed by her sister Ada, aged 20 years, at the home of her father, P. B. McDonald of Elizabeth.

It is said the child was in a bedroom with the older sister, who had a revolver she was about to put away. The weapon was accidentally discharged and the bullet struck the child in the temple.

Andrew Turza, aged 37 years and married, fell from a third-story window of his home at No. 3002 Mulberry alley at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and died a short time afterward at the West Penn hospital. Turza's wife is an invalid and was occupying a room on the second floor, while Turza went to the room above to sleep. About 4 o'clock the wife heard him fall to the pavement and gave the alarm. The police were notified and Turza was picked up and removed by the patrolmen to the hospital. He was bleeding profusely and unconscious.

It is presumed that during his sleep he rolled from his bed through the window and fell to the pavement below. The bed was close to the window. His skull was fractured.

Fatal Street Car Accident.

James S. Grayson of No. 517 Third street, Carnegie, was instantly killed by a street car in that borough Saturday night. His stepson, William Wortley, helped to get him out from under the car and was washing the blood from his face when he recognized the man as his stepfather and was terribly overcome by the discovery. Wortley was the only passenger on the car at the time of the accident. The conductor had got off at the barn to eat his luncheon, while the motorman ran the car to the end of the line. On his return Wortley boarded the car and had rode only a block when Grayson attempted to cross the street in front of the car and was struck. He was 52 years of age and was employed as a foreman at the Novelty works in North Carnegie.

Had His Skull Fractured.

John Williams, a colored man, 22 years of age, died at the Homeopathic hospital at 1:25 o'clock yesterday morning from a fracture of the skull which extended clear across his head from ear to ear. Isaac Harris, another colored man who admits that he struck Williams, is locked in jail and a commitment for murder was promptly lodged against him by Coroner McGeary. Williams went to Harris' house in Sheraden on Saturday, June 28, while a dance was in progress and was put out by Harris. Returning with a bottle of whisky he attempted to gain admittance but after passing the liquor around Harris ordered him off again. Williams then drew a knife and cut Harris about the head, face, hands and back, until his clothes were in ribbons and Harris finally hit him on the head with a shovel and knocked him senseless. Williams was taken to the hospital the next morning and Harris went to jail.

Harris Charged with Murder Before.

Harris has been in jail several times before and once was sent there for murder. He was suspected of knowing something of the death of Grant Bradley, who was found dead under the Panhandle bridge in Main street on February 18, 1900, but was release on June 30 as nothing could be found against him.

William Hagmaier, a boy 15 years old, died last Thursday from lockjaw caused by a wound from a toy pistol on July 3. The attending physician did not report the boy's death to Coroner McGeary until yesterday. The boy's parents live at No. 6123 Dauphin street, where his death took place.

Hallock, the 9-year-old son of Thomas Tainton of West Wilmerding is dead as a result of a wound in the stomach, received from the discharge of a blank cartridge pistol on the Fourth of July. The boy was trying the pistol on that day and the hammer refusing to work he placed the weapon against his stomach in an endeavor to raise the hammer. It slipped from his finger and the wad from the cartridge penetrated his clothing and entered his stomach. Blood poisoning set in and the boy died in great agony.

Drownings Swell the Record.

Joseph Dougherty, 14 years old, of No. 1241 Rush street, Allegheny, rowed over to the head of Brunots island with some other boys yesterday, and all went in swimming. Dougherty got beyond his depth and before his companions could recovered four hours later at 7:30 p. m., by Thomas Kelly, who dived after it.

The body of Anthony T. May, 14 years old, was found at the Allegheny end of the Sixteenth stret bridge in the river yesterday. A watchman on the bridge saw the body floating in the water and called the attention of some rowers to it. It was taken out and sent to the morgue. The boy was clad in knickerbockers and a shirt waist. The coroner learned that he was last seen alive on July 10 at the end of the bridge near where the body was found. It is supposed he fell into the river. The boy's home was at No. 1032 River avenue, Allegheny.

Oil Can Will Cause Death.

Because he tried to light a fire with an oil can, Mrs. Mary Adamkowitch is at the McKees Rocks hospital in a dying condition and her husband, John, is seriously burned about the hands and face. They live on Park street, McKees Rocks, and have been married only a few days. About 4 o'clock Mrs. Adamkowitch went to prepare the evening meal. There was only a small fire in the stove. She picked up a can of oil and began to pour it on. Her husband in the next room heard the explosion and ran to her assistance.

Before the flames could be extinguished her entire body was horribly burned. She was taken to the hospital, and it was stated last night that she could not live. No. 4 hose company was called out, and the flames were extinguished, after a loss of about $200 had been sustained. The building was a two-story frame, owned by Andrew Brirille.

Samuel Mooney, a railroad brakeman, died at the McKeesport hospital last evening of injuries received on June 18, when he was struck by a train at Port Perry. He was a married man, 34 years of age, and lived on Strawberry alley, McKeesport.

GERMAN SINGERS HONORED KELLERS

STATUE AND MONUMENT TO HIS MEMORY UNVEILED YESTERDAY.

Imposing Event in Allegheny and the Weiterhausen Cemetery Was Participated in by Admirers of the Late Prof. Benjamin Kellers.

A statue and monument was unveiled yesterday afternoon in the Weitershausen cemetery, Reserve township, by the German singing societies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny in memory of Prof. Benjamin Kellers, a prominent composer of music and a teacher for years in several of the German singing societies of the two cities.

Nearly 2,500 persons witnessed the unveiling, previous to which a parade took place in the streets of Allegheny and to the cemetery. The parade formed in North Canal street, Allegheny, and the procession was made up as follows:

Grand Army of the Republic band, 24 pieces; Cecelia Maennerchor; Teutonia Maennerchor; Robert Blum Maennerchor; German Austrian band; Franz Abt Liedertafel; Beltzhoover Liedertafel; Drueden Sangerbund; Braddock Gesing and Turn Verein; Maurer's band; Bloomfield Liedertafel; Koerner Maennerchor.

The procession left the Cecelia club house in North Canal street at 2 o'clock, the route of parade being as follows: North Canal street to Madison avenue, to Liberty street, to Cedar avenue, to East Ohio street, to Williams street, to Troy Hill road, to Lowrie street, to Branch street, to Mt. Troy road, to cemetery.

The statue and monument was unveiled by Theodore Daeuble, and John H. Esser made the opening address. Henry C. Bloedel made the principal address, which was in German.

The statue and monument cost about $900 and the funds were contributed by the several singing societies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

The statue is of marble and represents St. Cecelia, the goddess of music. The monument or base of the statue is of polished granite and contains the names of the several singing societies of the two cities which contributed to the fund.

THE THREE RIVERS.

CINCINNATI, July 13.—The river at 6 p. m. marked 18.4 feet and falling. Clear and pleasant. The Joseph Walton was the only coal arrival today. The Charles Brown and Iron Age are due in the morning from above. The W. P. Finley and W. W. O'Neil are due in the morning from the lower river with empties. Both of these boats will take tows to New Orleans.

EVANSVILLE, July 13.—River 18.5 feet and falling. Clear and warm. Raymond Horner passed at 9 a. m.; Roaz, 3 p. m., en route south with coal.

MEMPHIS, July 13.—The river here stands 21.7 feet on the gauge, a fall of .4 of a foot in the last 24 hours. The Georgia Lee arrived this morning from Cairo, and returns Tuesday evening. The little towboat Robert Dodds, from St. Louis, passed down at noon for New Orleans. All the local packets due today arrived on time.

CAIRO, July 13.—The river marks 20 feet on the gauge tonight, a fall of .5 of a foot in the last 24 hours. Fair and warm. The Harry Brown, from Louisville, passed down for New Orleans with coal tow at 7 a. m. The Avalon, from Cincinnati, passed down for Naples at 2 p. m. The Resolve, from Memphis, cleared for St. Louis at 4 p. m. The Fritz arrived from below at 5 p. m. with tow of logs and lumber.

LOUISVILLE, July 13.—River falling; canal, 8.1 feet; falls, 6.9 feet, foot of locks, 10.4 feet. Business dull. Clear and pleasant. City of Louisville left at 9 a. m. for Cincinnati with a crowd. Many met the Cincinnati and returned on the Bellaire. Arrived, Fred Derby, Tarascon from Evansville, and the Exporter and tow from Cincinnati this evening. The J. B. Finley went up last night and W. W. O'Neil went this afternoon. The Sam Clarke and tow arrived from Cincinnati this evening. The Sam Clarke goes south tomorrow. Capts. Weiss and Moren have returned from St. Louis.

News of the Rivers.

The Keystone State, Kanawha and Ben Hur all brought big lists of passengers to Pittsburgh.

Capt. Thomas A. Garrison has been appointed to command of the City of Sheffield to succeed Capt. William McClatchey, who resigned.

Pilot J. B. Ferguson, who has been at the wheel of the steamer Avalon since she entered the Memphis trade, has resigned, Walter Conner taking his place.

The owners of the City of Wheeling are evidently not in a hurry to take the new boat to Cincinnati and install her in the Cincinnati-Madison trade. She is still at Wheeling.

Harbor No. 28 has been presented with a photograph of the old steamers Robert E. Lee and Grand Republic by Samuel J. Smith. The photograph was taken at Cairo in 1870.

The old Louisville and New Orleans steamer Chancellor was a plain, clean sidewheel craft equipped especially to accommodate family travel and to carry through cargo from port to port. She was a "slow boat" in the line, and passengers on the fast steppers used to laugh at the poky progress she made as they clipped passed her. She was never in a hurry, yet her cabin was invariably filled with elderly people and very young people, and she was a money-maker from away back. She was known at every plantation from Memphis down as the "family boat of the Mississippi."

RUBBISH MEN CRY ALOUD FOR DUMPING PLACE

Grave Condition of Affairs Already Confronts the City.

FURNACES ARE NECESSARY

The Matter Has Already Been Brought Up Before Council Sub-Committees, but No Money Is Available This Year.

"The men who haul ashes and rubbish," as they call themselves, have issued an appeal to the public through the advertising columns of the newspapers. They complain that they have no place to dump "rubbish," and they ask why they are "thus imposed upon."

"They ought to ask the courts why they are 'thus imposed upon,'" said A. J. Pitcairn, the superintendent of the bureau of health yesterday. "They used to haul rubbish to the Soho dump, and when we forbade them to unload it there they began to burn it up. The residents complained of the nuisance of a dozen fires always going and sending out pungent smoke and finally asked the court for an injunction, which was granted. Our reason for forbidding the deposit of rubbish was the danger of fire. We have had to get our engine out and pour water on the Soho dump three days in succession, because the rubbish caught fire and the fire would have undermined the whole dump had it not been extinguished.

"It is true, the ash men have no place to deposit rubbish, but there is an abundance of places for depositing 'clean' dirt and ashes. We will not allow them to cast rubbish on the public dumps. Rubbish consists of paper, pasteboard boxes, wooden boxes and barrels, tin cans, greasy paper and rags and a hundred other things.

Grave Danger of Fire.

"To say nothing of the looks of such a dump, there is always danger of spontaneous combustion, and so the bureau of health has issued an order forbiding the dumping of anything but ashes and dirt.

"Since the court forbade the burning of rubbish at the Soho dump, a furnace has been built, with private capital, with a stack 60 feet high, in which rubbish can be burned, although I presume that the rubbish haulers will have to pay for the burning."

In conversation Superintendent Pitcairn said that a serious condition confronts the city, namely, how to get rid of rubbish. Private dwellings and stores produce an enormous amount of it daily, and the problem of disposing of it grows more difficult every day. It may not be thrown into the river, for the United States government forbids that method of disposal; it may not be cast on the dumps, for the bureau of health stands in the way; it may not be burned, except in isolated localities, for householders living near can obtain an injunction. Contractors who formerly dumped or sold the debris of wood that accumulates about a new construction are glad to give it away as kindling wood.

Furnaces Are Necessary.

"It has simply come to this," said Mr. Pitcairn, "either the rubbish haulers must build furnaces themselves or perhaps induce capital to build them, or the city must erect furnaces in different parts of the municipality. Furnaces can't be built by the city this year, for no appropriation is available. However, at a recent meeting of one of the sub-committees of councils having to do with sanitation, the question of building furnaces was discussed, and it was decided that by next year the city may have to enter that field. It will take a good deal of money to erect these furnaces, but the money will be well spent. Of course, that does not dispose of the difficulty now confronting the rubbish men, but it is up to them to find a way for the next few months, for the bureau of health will certainly prevent, wherever possible, the depositing of rubbish, to be a source of danger from fire or a nuisance to the residents."

The bureau of health has five or six watchmen, each one in charge of a public dump. They have strict orders to permit nothing but clean dirt and ashes to be deposited. At present some of the haulers separate the ashes and dirt from the rubbish and burn it on some of the dumps, but that is likely to be stopped at any moment, either by the bureau of health or by the court, if citizens should apply for an injunction.

SAYS IT'S NOT OPTIONED.

Mrs. S. Ammon Denies a Railroad Report—Property Could Be Secured by Condemnation.

Mrs. Samuel Ammon, one of the heirs of Mrs. Mary Darlington, objects to the statement in The Gazette of yesterday, that the Darlington property at Guyasuta station, is to become the property of the Pennsylvania railroad for the north end of its new Brilliant line. Mrs. Ammon says that the property has not been sold, that there is no option on it, and that it is not for sale at any price.

Prominent officials of the Pennsylvania railroad in discussing the matter on Saturday gave it as their information that the securing of the property was a certainty. When the Pennsylvania starts to carry out its improvements, if the Guyasuta terminal plan is adhered to, it will lose no time in taking condemnation proceedings into court, if necessary.

Pineapples grown along the banks of the Indian river in Florida are conceded to be the best of all fruits. We have large quantities of them; the season is at its height, drawing to a close, prices will not be lower. RUNAWAY WIFE STAR AT POLICE HEARING

Her Claim That She Was Privileged to Do as She Pleased Was Not Allowed.

The rate of speed at the Central police station hearings yesterday morning was one case a minute. There were 83 prisoners and they were all disposed of in one hour and 20 minutes. Twenty-lucky ones drew discharges.

Jack Peitrick tried to run away with Annie Winchinist and $46, from a boarding house in Smaliman street, but the woman's husband caught them at midnight, at Penn avenue and Eleventh street. The three were having a row there when Officer Edward Pautley came along and being unable to settle the trouble sent them all to the station. The woman, in defense, said she ran the boarding house and did all the work, but she was fined $25 and costs, and Peitrick the same, while Winchinist was discharged. The woman refused to pay the fine and was still behind the bars last evening, and will probably go to the workhouse today for 30 days.

Bessie Jackson was fined $50 and costs for running an opium joint in the rear of No. 44 Chatham street, and four visitors found there were fined $25 and costs each. Hattie Kirby for keeping a disorderly house at No. 520 Wylie avenue, was fined $25 and costs and nine visitors were fined $5 and costs. Susie Smith paid $10 for the same offense in Our alley, and two visitors $5 and costs each. Pearl Brown of No. 1226 Clark street, paid $25 for keeping a disorderly house and eight visitors paid $5.

Leonard Thompson was fined $50 or 90 days. He was found to have broken a window at 432 Second avenue, and was sneaking about the house. Samuel Kwatowish was fined $5 and costs for attempting to take a pocketbook from a woman at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street.

Police Magistrate David J. McGarey disposed of 13 cases at the South Side station. Five were disorderly conduct cases, four vagrancy and four drunkenness.

Magistrate John H. Armstrong had 14 prisoners before him at the East End and Oakland police stations yesterday all charged with minor offenses. Magistrate J. V. McMasters had 30 minor cases to dispose of at No. 3 station in Penn avenue, and assessed light fines on all of them. Magistrate S. F. Kerr quickly disposed of 12 common drunks and ordinary disorderlies at No. 5 station, Lawrenceville.

Chance to Settle Strike.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Eight of the railroads after conferences between their managers and the members of the state board of arbitration agreed to a proposition that, it is believed, will result in a settlement of the freight handlers' strike. The railroads offered to concede two of the main issues of the controversy, pay for all overtime and no probation. The roads, however, refused to grant the demand for 18 cents an hour, but offered 17½ cents.

This Unusual July Clearance Sale.

Not unusual as to the time for clearance, but unusual in the remarkably trifling bits of money it takes to buy a lot of seasonable goods.

The imagination has to be reckoned with to get a clear idea of what this Clearance means. It isn't everyone who can understand why a large store like this will deliberately lose large sums in order to get its goods out of the way; it isn't everyone who can understand that modern store-keeping consists in losing money when necessary.

In effect this Clearance Sale is a game of profit and loss—customers pocketing the profits and we the loss.

This morning we begin the third week of the Clearance Sale by giving a brief index of today's small-priced things.

All Bric-a-Brac 25 Per Cent Off Through the Month.

Now 25 per cent off means an even fourth less than former prices. That doesn't cut much of a figure on a single-small-priced article, unless you buy a number of them, but when it comes to buying a valuable piece of anything the saving of a quarter on each dollar is considerable.

It seems to us this would be a good time to buy valuable Christmas presents. What do you say?

As for the Bric-a-Brac itself we don't suppose there is such another diversified stock in the city—in fact, we know there is not.

There are some pieces in several of the stores that are just as fine as we carry, but there is no general assortment like ours.

For a fourth less usual prices, choice is from such noted and handsome wares as

ROYAL VIENNA, SATSUMA, JAPANESE, ROYAL BONN, BRONZES, COPENHAGEN, TEPLITZ, WEMYSS, IVORIES, ETC., ETC.

That suggestion about Christmas presents, we think, is a good one. Five months isn't such a long time to hide holiday gifts.

How We Clear Imported Cottons.

Something that will whet the economical appetite. By actual count we place on sale this morning 1,800 yards of and other well-known makes of finest Scotch Madras and Zephyrs, in pretty woven color effects. No material to equal them for shirtwaists and shirtwaist suits, and men's and boys' shirts. Today we put a new clearance price on the collection—

18c a Yard.

A Surprising Price on Dress Woolens.

25c a Yard.

The surprising part of this news is that these woolens sold for $1 a yard—readily—and that they are 46 inches wide.

The pattern is the popular medium size blue and white check, that women like for separate skirts, and that is so pretty for children's wear.

It will lead you to remark, and what you say will be correct, that the last half of this clearance sale is more fruitful of bargains than the first half.

Brief News of the Silk Clearance.

A quartette of admired silks that we are going to sell you today for a trifle.

Liberty Satins, Foulards and Printed Pongees—sold for $1 and $1.25—today 50c and 60c a yard.

Fancy Crepe de Chine in evening shades—sold for $1.50 a yard—today 65c a yard.

Black Crepe de Chine—46 inches wide—sold for $3 a yard—today $2.50 a yard.

Black Peau de Soie—soft dull finish—sold for $2.50 a yard—today $1.95.

The Clearance of American Wash Goods goes along merrily and the Big Basement Store is one of the liveliest of the departments. Such clearance prices as these—

8 1-2c a yard
for 12 1-2c Seersuckers;
for 12 1-2c Ginghams.

15c a yard
for 25c Mercerized Madras, 32 inches wide. Pretty stripes in greens, blues, pinks, tans and black and white.

15c a yard
for 25c Embroidered Swisses, the most popular of all the cottons for Summer wear. Beautiful woven color effects.

J. S. Brown's Tablecloths, $3.75.

Very few women but know of J. S. Brown's fine table linens. We have not time at the present moment to quote history for those who do not know; but we can say there are no finer linens.

This lot of Tablecloths—size 2 1-2x3 yards—sold for $6.75 each.

They are slightly mussed, but as all tablecloths, no matter how fresh they are, go to the wash before they go to the table, their being mussed is of little importance.

Half Price for These—Opportunity to purchase such decorative linens as Renaissance and Torchon Table Covers—sizes 45x45 to 90x90—Mexican Drawn Work and Lace Insertion Covers—2 1-2x2 1-2 to 2 1-2x4 yards—regular prices from $12.75 to $67.50.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I beleive I was born with headache. I have had headaches often ever since I can remember. My mother ordered me to begin the steady use of Ripans Tabules. I used them after every meal for a month or so and haven't had another of those dreadful headaches and have gained eleven pounds in weight.
